HOODLUM RUNS FACTOR HUNT

U. S. TREASURY FACES A DEFICIT OF OVER BILLION

Big Relief Program Offsets Savings.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 16.—[Special.]—Notwithstanding the economies in the cost of administering the federal government which are being effected by President Roosevelt, the indications are that the treasury will close the current fiscal year on June 30 next with a deficit of not less than 1 billion 185 million dollars, according to treasury officials.

That the actual deficit will be considerably above that figure appears fairly certain, for this estimate excludes from consideration the cost of administration depression relief measures now in the legislative mill, such as the half million dollar grant to the states for doles for the idle, the farm commodities bill, the farm and small home mortgage refinancing project and the Tennessee basin and Muscle Shoals development scheme.

Idle Relief Not Included.

It also is exclusive of the cost of the forest conservation corps, which will cost 250 millions a year but for the present is being financed from unexpended balances of appropriations for public works.

Also excluded from the deficit calculation is any expenditure before June 30 on the vast public works construction program which is being incubated at the White House. To the extent that any of these relief measures are put into effect upon enactment the amount expended before June 30 will swell the deficit for this fiscal year.

The big savings accomplished by the President, such as the 400 million dollar cut in veterans' benefits, do not become effective till July 1. At the same time the full effect of the cost of the relief program will not be felt till the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to cut ordinary expenses of the government a billion dollars beginning with July 1, by which time, however, a relief program calling for direct and indirect appropriations aggregating more than 1 billion 600 millions will be in effect.

Budget Balancing Unlikely

Balancing the budget next year therefore, appears now more uncertain than ever. It is such uncertainty that makes for instability in treasury financing. Enormous bond issues accompanied possibly by some form of credit or currency inflation, are in prospect for the financing of the Roosevelt depression relief program.

It is because such large scale financing is in the offing that the administration did not call the six billions of 4¼ per cent Liberty loan bonds yesterday for conversion into obligations bearing a lower interest rate. With the government about to borrow enormously conversion of existing bonds at a lower rate would not be feasible.

The treasury calculation of a 1 billion 185 million deficit compares with an estimate some months ago of 1 billion 217 millions. Total expenditures are now figured at 3 billion 232 millions, exclusive of debt retirement, compared with original estimates of 3 billion 686 millions.

Revenues Decline Sharply.

This 454 million dollar saving has been almost entirely offset, however, by an accompanying decline in revenue. Taxes and fees probably will bring the government only about 2 billion 47 million dollars during the fiscal year even with the new beer tax. In making up its original budget the government counted on 2 billion 469 millions.

Every item on the income side of the ledger except the beer tax is yielding less than was expected because of the continued decline in business since the estimates were made. The heaviest jar to Uncle Sam's revenue, however, was delivered by his foreign debtors. He has collected about 99 millions from them, and treasury officials are not optimistic about getting more. They owed him about 269 millions and their default of 150 millions added to his financial worries.

The income tax, which usually has been the mainstay of the government's revenue, this year probably will not yield as much as the old taxes despite the new high rates. Present indications are that the income tax will fall 74 million short of estimates, yielding 786 millions compared with an estimate of 860 millions.

Excise Taxes a Disappointment.

WAR ON TRADE RACKETS BEGUN BY COURTNEY

Business Men Taxed Million a Year.

State's Attorney Courtney announced yesterday that he personally has undertaken to break up the so-called trade racket associations, which it is estimated are taking more than $1,000,000 yearly from Chicago business men. For the last two weeks the prosecutor has been secretly questioning groups of business men who contribute, under compulsion, to these racket orginizations.

THOMAS J. COURTNEY.

The prosecutor said his plan is to impress on the business men, in personal interviews, that they must stop supporting the racketeers who are in charge of these associations or else be classified themselves as racketeers. So far 25 members of associations which dominate two Chicago industries have been interviewed by the prosecutor.

Told to Withdraw Quietly.

These members, Mr. Courtney said, are to be given an opportunity to quietly withdraw financial support from the associations. If they refuse to coöperate in this plan, then the grand jury and the weapon of publicity are to be brought into play, the state's attorney said.

"If we can stop the source of revenue of the hoodlums and racketeers, we have them licked," said Prosecutor Courtney. "I have promised to drive these men from the rackets, but I must have the coöperation of the members."

The prosecutor has obtained membership lists of the organizations which he has decided to break up. They are in the racket class, the prosecutor said, because it is generally known that such gangsters as Murray Humphreys, successor to Al Capone and Frank Nitti, are the men behind their presumably respectable fronts.

Summoned by Courtney.

Each morning a group of from six to eight business men receive summonses to see Mr. Courtney in his Crimina' court office. They are ushered into his office one at a time and personally interviewed by the state's attorney.

There the business man is free to tell his troubles without fear that his statements may be repeated. The men are asked to what association they belong, why they belong and what dues, assessments or contributions they pay.

The payments usually vary, the prosecutor said, according to the number of employés or the number of trucks which the business man employs or operates. Several examples are cited. Each employé costs merchants in one line of business 60 cents a month and trucks are taxed a $1 per week.

Figures made public show that in one line of industry four men members said they paid the following amounts: $36 for employés and $66 for trucks, a total of $102 a month. $41 for employés and $44 for trucks, a total of $85 a month; $75 for employés and $100 for trucks, a monthly total of $175; $30 for employés and $54 for trucks, or a total of $84 a month.

Yearly Income of $250,000.

This particular association, the prosecutor said, has a yearly income of more than $250,000. It is perhaps the biggest of the organizations the prosecutor seeks to ban. However, he added, the "town is full of these outfits."

"The peculiar thing about these business men who are paying out thousands of dollars is that none of them know where the money goes," said the prosecutor. "They say they never ask how the money is spent or for an accounting. They say they are afraid to ask questions.

"One organization pays out presumably $25,000 yearly for legal fees. I have asked some of the members of this organization what legal advice they obtain. None has been given any legal services."

Mr. Courtney said police protection will be furnished those helping him break up the rackets.

BOMB DAMAGES CLEANING PLANT; 6TH IN PRICE WAR

Damage of $5,000 was done early this morning by the explosion of a dynamite bomb at the rear of the general offices of the Peacock Cleaners and Dyers, 4740 North Racine avenue, operators of a chain of twenty cleaning plants in the city.

This was the sixth bombing of dyeing establishments since the renewal of the price cutting war several weeks ago. According to Sergt. Edward Winkles, who estimated the damage, it was also the worst of the dynamite attacks. Winkles said price cutting was to blame.

The bomb was tossed upon the roof of an annex, used for cleaning, just behind the main offices. It tore a large hole in the roof and ripped out parts of the rear and side walls. Windows throughout the entire plant were shattered, as were windows in apartments and stores in the neighborhood.

Frank Rohrbeck, 2052 Belmont avenue, the night watchman, was in the front of the building at the time and the blast knocked him off his feet. He was showered with plaster dust, but was not hurt.

HORSE STEALING FLARES UP AGAIN IN MIDDLE WEST

A revival of horse stealing in three midwestern states was revealed yesterday with the recovery in Lake county of two draft horses.

The animals were stolen from a farm in Minnesota and sold at Carroll, Ia. They were among seventy head stolen in recent weeks from Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri by an organized ring. Due to the depression, hundreds of farmers have abandoned tractors and there is now a demand for horses which are at a premium because of a decline in breeding in recent years.

The two horses recovered were found in the stables of Fred Converse, a horse trader at Round Lake, in Lake county, by Deputy Sheriff John Froelich. Converse is aiding the authorities in trying to break up the horse thief ring.

STANLEY KUNZ ACCUSES MAID OF $300 THEFT

Sophia Baelinski, 38 years old, was held by the North Racine avenue police yesterday on a complaint that she stole $300 from former Congressman Stanley H. Kunz, in whose home at 1916 Potomac avenue she has been employed as a maid.

Kunz said that the money had been taken from a roll of $1,600 in his trousers pocket. He said he questioned Miss Baelinski Saturday night and that she admitted taking the money and giving $200 of it to a man. She returned $100 to Kunz.

The maid refused to give police the name of the man to whom she gave the $200.

An Old Friend Inquires About James Ritchie

Mrs. Catherine Schreiber, 4345 Martha avenue, New York, yesterday made a long distance telephone call to the Chicago detective bureau. She inquired as to the condition of James Ritchie, who, she said, had been seriously injured in an accident. Lieut. Richard Barry asked for details of the accident.

Mrs. Schreiber said she had received a telegram from a Dr. D. D. Basker, reporting that Ritchie was in a critical condition and needed an immediate operation. The telegram asked that she wire $200 to Dr. Basker at the Starr hotel, 617 Madison street. Other than that she knew nothing, Mrs. Schreiber said.

The Police Make Inquiry.

Lieut. Barry sent Sergt. William Penny and his squad to the hotel. Dr. Basker was not registered there. Leaving one of the squad at the hotel to await the possible appearance of the doctor, Sergt. Penny went to the Western Union office at 308 South La Salle street to seek further information.

Within fifteen minutes of his arrival a shabbily dressed man presented himself and asked whether there was a message for Dr. Basker. He was taken into custody. As he was confessing that he was Basker, but not a doctor, a second man entered the office.

"Don't arrest him," the newcomer said. "I am Ritchie. It's all my fault. If you arrest him he'll be taken off the relief roll. I did it all."

An Old Sweetheart of His.

Ritchie explained that Mrs. Schreiber was an old sweetheart and that he hoped to get money from her through moving her to pity by the telegram. He said he had prevailed upon Basker to aid him.

"I came from New York last October and got on the Chicago relief roll at $4 a week," Ritchie said. "A few weeks ago I got a job and went off the roll. I lost my job two days ago. Then I got this idea and thought it would get me a couple hundred dollars. After that was spent I planned to go back on the relief roll."

Basker, who is 41 years old and lives at 323 South Damen avenue, said he has been receiving relief of $4 a week for more than a year. He and Ritchie, who is 45 years old and gave his address as 551 Madison street, were charged with operating a confidence game.

WARN MERCHANTS NOT TO DELIVER BEER IN INDIANA

Robert G. Estill, prosecutor of Lake county, Ind., yesterday warned Chicago merchants that they are forbidden by the new Indiana beer regulations to deliver beer to customers in Indiana. He ordered police in the county to seize any drivers delivering beer, and to confiscate their trucks.

The law provides that beer may be imported into Indiana from other states only by licensed importers, of whom there is one in each of ten districts in the state. All other importations are banned.

Saturday evening two deliverymen for a Chicago department store were arrested in Indiana Harbor when a case of beer was found in their truck. Store authorities told Mr. Estill that they were not aware of the provisions of the Indiana law, and promised to make no more deliveries. The deliverymen and their truck were released when it was found that they had not violated the law, which provides that before an arrest can be made the beer must have been delivered to the customer, who is also liable to arrest.

PREACHER'S SON ROBBED OF TOGS; WOMEN GIGGLE

Ernest Luehr, 19 years old, 1551 North Massasoit avenue, son of the Rev. Henry Luehr, a retired Lutheran minister, was standing at the "L" transfer station at Lake and Paulina streets this morning waiting for a train.

Two Negroes seized him. They stripped him of his hat, overcoat, suit, and shoes and left him standing on the platform in his underwear and socks.

Just then a train drew up. Young Luehr hesitated a moment, then, impelled by a chilly morning breeze, stepped into the coach. Several feminine giggles greeted his appearance, but a modern gallant came to the rescue.

This man gave Luehr his overcoat. At California avenue the youth alighted from the train and was met by Detectives Hugo Olson and Edward Pelch of the Warren avenue station, who drove him home.

FAIR WEATHER AND WARMER ON WAY TO CHICAGO

Rather cool temperatures are expected to continue today, but the cold, rainy weather is about over for the time being, according to C. A. Donnel, government forecaster.

Mr. Donnel said last night that the temperature today might reach about 50 degrees, which would be somewhat warmer than yesterday.

"Tuesday ought to be comfortably warmer," said the forecaster. "Chicago is in the path of warm weather which drove the mercury into the 80's in the Dakotas yesterday. Tuesday is expected to be fair also."

Society Defies the Rain with Easter Styles

A page of pictures of the Easter observance in Chicago and the suburbs will be found on the back page of today's Tribune.

BY JUDITH CASS.

There wasn't any Easter parade yesterday—the rain spoiled that—but that doesn't mean that smart new clothes and fragrant corsages weren't out for any one to see who attended church. There were just as many as there would have been if the sun had shone and the weather been as pleasant as it was last year on Easter morn.

In some cases decorative raincoats covered new coats and suits, and in every case worshipers had to use umbrellas to walk from their cars to church entrances. But clothes accenting the latest edicts of fashion were in evidence, and, judging by the number of new, broad shoulders, high hats [both men's and women's] and gay scarves, most of the clothes were new.

Hats on the "Up and Up."

Fashions this spring are different enough from those of last year to make it impossible not to recognize a "little last year's model," and there weren't nearly as many of those as one might suppose there would be. Hats are certainly on the "up and up," but no matter how high and severe they are, if they are worn at the proper angles and given the right pushes and pats, they are becoming.

Masculine fashions are not popular with Chicago society women, for every well dressed woman we saw yesterday, north, south, or west—was garbed in purely feminine style—no slouch hats, no mannish suits nor anything of the sort. There was a dearth of pancakes, too—perhaps not for breakfast, but in the line of hats.

It's a White Easter.

It was a white Easter as far as flowers went. Ninety per cent of all the flowers we saw were white—gardenias leading, carnations and sweet peas vying for second place, and orchids "showing."

Artificial flowers were worn by a few, the most stunning bunch we saw being of white violets pinned to the black fur coat of Mrs. William J. Chalmers, always one of the most fashionably and appropriately dressed of Chicago grand dames. Her high black hat with its cockade of white ribbon was particularly chic.

Corsages still are worn high on the shoulders in spite of the rumor that they were coming down to nestle near the waistline this spring.

White Piqué Leading Accessory.

White piqué leads as an accessory. It was seen yesterday in collars, wide lapels, scarfs and gloves, on women and girls of every age. Colored scarfs that matched or went with hats to perfection were much in evidence, too, many of them of bright plaids or checks.

Where do all the silver foxes come from, we wonder? They are the most popular furs, and well may they be, for nothing is more becoming or flattering to women of all ages and colorings.

Mixed tweeds have given way in popularity to monotone tweeds which are only semi-rough in texture and which, combined with white pique, are about the smartest things imaginable. Various shades of brown from sable to champagne, are popular in these tweeds, but aside from

KIDNAPED BOY'S CAPTORS SEND A SECOND NOTE

Murray Humphreys Joins Negotiations.

Murray Humphreys, a leader in the gang formerly headed by Al Capone, and Lieut. Leo Carr, a Chicago policeman on sick leave, last night were disclosed as the principals in private negotiations being conducted by John [Jake the Barber] Factor for the release of his 19 year old son, Jerome, from the hands of kidnapers.

In the face of denials by Factor and his friends and despite gang intimidation of witnesses in an apparent effort to keep ransom negotiations secret from the authorities the police learned yesterday that a second communication had been received by Factor from the kidnapers at midnight Saturday. Factor insisted that a note, received Friday, demanding $50,000, was the only word he had heard from the kidnapers. The police early today were still trying to find out the contents of the second ransom note from Factor and his friends.

Messenger Boy's Story.

Anthony Schneider, 1627 Burling street, a messenger boy employed by the Postal Telegraph company, who delivered the second communication to Factor, disclosed the rôles of Gangster Humphreys and Lieut. Carr in the unofficial negotiations being conducted on behalf of Factor.

Schneider was first questioned by Lieut. Carr at the Morrison hotel, where Factor is maintaining the roof bungalow and four other suites at a total cost of $100 a day. Next he was sent to the bureau of identification at police headquarters to view pictures of criminals.

While at the bureau Schneider was questioned by reporters. Apparently frightened by his experiences, the youth refused to answer their questions, saying: "Murray Humphreys told me to keep my mouth shut." This slip revealed for the first time the hoodlum's connection with the case.

Denial by Carr.

Later Lieut. Carr denied that he had seen Schneider or knew anything about his story of delivering the letter to Factor. The police lieutenant told Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, that his visits to the Factor hideout in the Morrison had no connection with the kidnaping case.

Capt. Gilbert's men disclosed that Carr had been in and out of the Factor quarters for two days. Factor explained that Carr volunteered his services because they had been friends for several years. Carr has been on sick leave since April 1. Capt. Gilbert said he would complain to State's Attorney Courtney of what he termed "improper conduct in Carr's working unofficially on the case and refusing to coöperate with the state's attorney's investigators."

The Missing Ransom Letter.

A detailed account of the delivery of the second message to Factor was obtained from Postal Telegraph employés early this morning by Detectives Richard Cotter and Matthew Murphy of the state's attorney's office. They questioned young Schneider, the messenger; Samuel Gold, 1513 South Trumbull avenue, a clerk, and Samuel Pokovitz, 1523 South Ridgeway avenue, night manager in the Board of Trade office of the telegraph company. It was from this office the letter was delivered.

After hearing their stories Capt. Gilbert raised the question, "What has become of the letter?"

Schneider, whose fright was evident, refused to talk beyond saying that he had delivered the note to William Bleet, Factor's secretary, at suite 4029 Morrison hotel. Pokovitz at first told the detectives that they would have to get their information from Lieut. Carr. "I have been told not to talk to any one," he explained. He was persuaded to talk, however.

How Note Was Delivered.

"Young Schneider was just coming to work Saturday night," Pokovitz said, "when a man stopped him outside the office. He was between 38 and 40 years old, about 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weighed 140 pounds or so. He wore a dark coat and a light fedora. He asked Schneider to deliver a message for him.

"The messenger explained that the letter would have to be handled first through the office. The man then stepped inside. Gold took the letter and collected a fee of 25 cents. Schneider then took the letter for delivery.

"When Schneider went to the hotel suite he found a number of men playing cards. One of them told him, 'Don't be alarmed, there's a police officer here.' They kept him prisoner for an hour. Gold then became alarmed over Schneider's absence and telephoned the room. He was told, 'This is a representative of the police department. You'd better come over immediately.' Gold went over and was taken with Schneider to the detective bureau, where they were shown pictures of possible kidnaping suspects for nearly two hours."

Seized in Hotel Room.

Schneider is reported to have said that he was seized by several men when he entered the hotel room with the message. He said he could not swear that Carr or Factor was in the group.

Gold, however, told of being called to the hotel room and of meeting Lieut. Carr. He said that the lieutenant took him and Schneider to the detective bureau to look over pictures and that he and Schneider were told "to keep their mouths shut." It was on this visit that young Schneider mentioned the name of Murray Humphreys. The police were unable to learn whether Humphreys was in Factor's room.

Humphreys is well known to Factor, both being habitues of the night haunts and unfailing first nighters. Factor admitted that he made the rounds of the cabarets early yesterday and asked his friends to assist him in private negotiations with the kidnapers.

Police were convinced yesterday, after investigating the story told by Factor when he was first questioned Saturday night, that he wants none of their assistance and will not hesitate to deceive them. In the first place they learned that Factor had not been in Washington last week, but that he had been at the Morrison hotel since Thursday. Jerome was kidnaped Wednesday night.

Factor Tells of "Trip."

Factor told Capt. Gilbert he went to Washington Tuesday in connection with his fight against extradition to England on charges of swindling investors out of $7,000,000. The United States Supreme court is scheduled to hear arguments today in this case.

Capt. Gilbert asserted that Factor's statement to police that his present wife, the former Rella Cohen of South Halsted street, is in California with their 6 year old son, Alvin, was false. It was learned that she is in the roof bungalow of the Morrison and was there Saturday.

Factor's first wife, now Mrs. Leonard Marcus, who is Jerome's mother, was said to be prostrate and under the care of three physicians yesterday in her home at 1215 Lunt avenue. It was at this address that the kidnapers seized Jerome. He had been staying with his mother while attending Northwestern university where he is a pre-legal student.

Secretary Once Indicted.

Factor's professed desire to coöperate with the authorities was gravely doubted when Capt. Gilbert was obliged to threaten force before he was able to penetrate the barriers with which Factor surrounded himself in the Morrison. The secretary, Bleet, told Capt. Gilbert half a dozen times in response to telephone calls yesterday that he didn't know Factor's whereabouts. Bleet, it became known, was indicted with Arthur J. Klein, one of Factor's associates in the stock swindle, two years ago in Washington, charged with conspiring to bribe a department of justice agent to take Klein's finger prints from the records.

In view of Factor's misleading statements and the mysterious actions of Lieut. Carr, Capt. Gilbert declared he is certain that the millionaire promoter is relying upon his own resources to reach the kidnapers and free his son.

Capt. Gilbert expressed the belief that the second letter, which Factor denied receiving, contained a second ransom demand, and that secret efforts are now being made to compromise the $50,000 figure and agree upon an intermediary.

Denies Seeing Humphreys.

While Factor talked freely of his tour of the night clubs, he denied that he had seen Humphreys. He said he would be glad to see him, however, if Humphreys thought he could help accomplish the boy's safe return.

Police recalled reports which they credited two years ago that a plot to kidnap Factor himself and hold him in ransom of $1,000,000 was thwarted when the good offices of Humphreys were engaged and Capone was induced to warn the hoodlums against carrying out their design. Factor is said to have spent two weeks under guard at the Congress hotel during the time.

The former Halsted street barber continued yesterday to insist that, despite the reports of his wealth, he could not possibly raise more than $10,000.

"There's a human life at stake," he said. "I'm not a rich man. Two years ago $50,000 would have meant nothing, but it's a different story now. About all I've got left is a lot of bum mortgages and real estate."

DIES OF HEART ATTACK IN NORTH SHORE CHURCH

Homer A. Marsh, an employé of the jewelry department of Marshall Field & Co., suffered a heart attack and died in his pew while awaiting the opening of services yesterday morning in the North Shore Congregational church at Sheridan road and Wilson avenue. Mr. Marsh, who was 45 years old and lived at 6027 Navarre avenue, died on the 30th anniversary of his employment by the company.

His wife, Mrs. Lottie Marsh, who was in another part of the church collapsed when she learned of her husband's death. The tragedy threw the congregation into confusion which was quieted by the Rev. John C. O'Hair.

After the services the Rev. O'Hair delivered a eulogy. Mr. Marsh had been a member of the church for nine years and one of its directors for four years. Besides his widow he is survived by two adopted daughters.

41 ARE KILLED AS REBELS FIGHT MEXICAN TROOPS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, April 16.—Thirty-eight rebels were killed, several were wounded and twenty prisoners were taken by federal troops after a clash last night, according to an official report from Gen. Juan José Mendez, chief of military operations in the state of Yucatan. Three federal soldiers were killed and six wounded.

The clash occurred at the village of Opichen, where a force of fifty federal soldiers, under the command of Col. Rafael Granja, had been sent to quell a reported subservice movement by armed agricultural elements forming part of a body known as "the revolutionary defense." The rebels, who outnumbered the soldiers, received them with a heavy volley. The troops were forced to retire temporarily, but finally defeated the rebels.

For some time rebel elements in Yucatan had refused to obey the orders of the governor of the state. The climax was reached a few days ago when certain political elements arrived in Opichen and incited members of the "revolutionary defense" to openly defy the authorities.

RED PROSECUTOR SUMS UP CASE AGAINST BRITONS

Urges Greater Penalties for Soviet Prisoners.

MOSCOW, April 16.—(AP)—The prosecutor in the trial of six British electrical engineers on charges of sabotage, bribery, and espionage indicated tonight that the prosecution may ask the court to deal more leniently with the Britons than with their Russian co-defendants.

Andrey Vishinsky, the prosecutor, in summing up testimony presented during the four previous days of the hearing, declared "the prosecution considered that the soviet employés deserve more serious penalties than employés of foreign firms."

Attacks Russian Prisoners.

Scathingly attacking the eleven Russian prisoners as traitors, Vishinsky maintained that "abject as is the crime of L. C. Thorton and Allan Monkhouse, I have no words to depict the attitude of the prosecution toward those who betrayed their native land."

Monkhouse, the ranking member of the Metropolitan-Vickers firm in Russia, was depicted by Vishinsky as trying "to represent that we are attacking the Metropolitan-Vickers company."

The prosecutor maintained that there was no claim against the British firm "as a company" and added that "Monkhouse is here as a man accused of a crime and not as a representative of Metropolitan-Vickers."

British Are Assailed.

Reading from a handwritten manuscript, but nevertheless making frequent vigorous gestures, the prosecutor hurled defiance at those in England, who, it was reported here, had sought to prevent the trial.

"Our enemies forget the sovereignty of the soviet union and attempted to exercise moral pressure on us," Vishinsky asserted. "They are hysterical and have lost their self-control. But they must understand that the abject and insolent demand of imperialists has met with resistance from a country of free peasants and workers founded on the supreme October revolution and led by the communist party."

Other Britons on trial are A. W. Gregory, John Cushny, William L. MacDonald, and C. H. Nordwell, all of whom are employés of the British electrical firm which engaged in work at a number of soviet electrical plants.

Calls Thornton a Spy.

Labeling Thornton as a "former and present military spy," the prosecutor said:

"Many of the accused have tried to prove that they did not understand what espionage meant. Thornton, Monkhouse and Cushny said they could not be charged with espionage when they had only collected information dealing with the firm's interests.

"We know what espionage means, and we demand that every foreigner understand the term like it is understood under soviet law.

"We have to thank England for one of our interpretations of espionage—the 1911 state secrets law and also its law of 1920 defining the collection of secret information as directly against the safety of the state."

"Thornton knows English law very well as a former and present military spy," the prosecutor continued. "We know the punishment accorded to spies in England. Thornton knows this also."

Defines Soviet Laws.

He pointed out that soviet law governs the collection of both economic and political information.

Turning to a definition of bribery, the prosecutor drew attention that some of the British defendants had admitted making gifts or loans to soviet employés, but denied they were bribes.

"Our ideas of bribes are different from those in foreign countries, where the theft of bread is a crime and the theft of a whole railroad is rewarded with the title of senator," Vishinsky said.

"From the point of view of English citizens, small gifts and evening parties are not crimes, but [and here he turned to the defendants] you are now in the U. S. S. R., and you violate our principles.

Discusses British Reaction.

"A bribe represents a counter-revolutionary crime, especially when it is given for the committing of wrecking actions."

Discussing English reaction to the trial, the prosecutor said:

"We never will allow any one to interfere with the domestic affairs of our country, despite hysteria and screams in Great Britain."

"This trial is a great class battle between international forces, different worlds and different ideas and principles.

"This is a trial of wreckers trying to deal a blow to our most important industrial branch—electricity. We see here the reflection of a class fight, a systematic attempt to destroy our socialist work with the participation of some circles interested in the failure of the soviet."

"Listen, saboteurs, you have seen your attempts are futile. You are the last abject group of the old, hostile technical intelligentsia wearing the mask of soviet employés.

"You tried to justify yourself by saying you were organized and directed by Englishmen. You wanted to pose as the victims of outside influences. But you abandoned your duties and country and you must know we will not consider whether you were directed by others or not."

RELATIONS BETWEEN ENGLAND AND RUSSIA HINGE ON SPY VERDICT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 16.—Relations between Great Britain hinge on the release or conviction of the six Englishmen on trial in Moscow on charges of espionage and sabotage. The British are threatening a trade embargo. Power to enforce such an economic war is held by the cabinet.

Stanley Baldwin, acting as prime minister in Ramsay MacDonald's absence, is expected to call a cabinet session if the Britons are found guilty. The Anglo-Russian trade treaty expired tonight. Starting tomorrow the head of Arcos, Ltd., Russian trading company, will not have the power to commit the Russian government to any contracts drawn up by Britain. Further, funds which the British government has placed at the disposal of British exporters anxious to do business with Russia will be suspended and none of their transactions will enjoy the governmental guarantee as heretofore.

Meanwhile, the Russian delegation sent to Britain to negotiate a new trade treaty has been forced to wait. Baldwin probably will summon the cabinet on Thursday if, as indicated, the Moscow verdict will be announced on Wednesday. The British government is virtually certain to adopt drastic economic measures if the accused are convicted and given harsh sentences.

CHANDLER CALLS ON TEACHERS TO HELP LOAN DRIVE

Week's Vacation to Give Time for Solicitations.

Chicago school teachers will be asked to take an active part in the "Liberty loan" drive to sell tax warrants for the purpose of clearing up their salary arreras, it was announced yesterday by Attorney Henry P. Chandler, chairman of the drive committee.

H. P. CHANDLER. [Moffett-Russell.]

Mr. Chandler is to confer this afternoon with leaders of various teacher organizations, and will solicit their help toward solution of their own problem at that time. The fact that schools close for the regular spring vacation next Friday will give the 14,000 public school teachers and 4,000 other school employés a week in which to solicit tax warrant subscriptions.

Warrants in Small Units.

The warrants are to be issued in denominations as low as $20, Mr. Chandler pointed out, which will make it possible for any Chicago property owner whose tax bill is $100 or more to apply at least one of the warrants on his 1932 tax payment.

The first effort of his organization, Mr. Chandler said, will be directed toward persuading those subscribers who promised to buy school tax warrants from the committee headed by Charles S. Dewey, to renew those subscriptions. These total $3,187,500. The Dewey committee has dropped out of the school sales campaign, but will continue its efforts to sell city and county tax warrants for pay roll purposes.

Meanwhile, Mr. Chandler has asked the coöperation of James P. Haynes, executive vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, in enrolling the membership of the association in the drive. Service clubs, such as Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions, churches, and American Legion posts will be asked later to promote the sale of warrants in various district drives in the city.

"We are not going to announce the full membership of our executive committee at once," said Mr. Chandler.

Bond Bill Draft Ready.

Attorney Ralph Condee of the school board legal staff announced yesterday that the first draft of the proposed bill, sponsored by the board, authorizing the issue of $50,000,000 in bonds for pay roll purposes will be ready today. It will be presented this afternoon to a committee of school trustees headed by H. Wallace Caldwell, author of the board resolution calling for the bond issue.

Reports came from Washington yesterday that the board will find the same difficulty in obtaining a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation with the bonds as collateral that it did when it sought a loan on tax warrants. This is the legal provision forbidding the R. F. C. to make direct loans to school boards or similar governmental bodies.

Unless the board has a plan to offer the bonds through some bank or other agency which the R. F. C. can recognize as a legal borrower, it was stated at the capital, the bond loan plan will probably meet the same fate as the plan to borrow on tax warrants.

Security Not in Question.

It was understood when the loan was sought on tax warrants that there was no objection by R. F. C. officials to the warrants as security, but merely to the illegality of a loan direct to the school board.

Superintendent of Schools Bogan said yesterday, after he had received information from student leaders, that the high school students' strike proposed for today in sympathy with the teachers had been postponed until Wednesday.

"These students, who are very much in earnest in wanting to help their teachers, are afraid the schools will be closed," said Mr. Bogan. "I tried to show them that the danger of the schools being closed was about past, and that a walkout of pupils would revive this danger."

The present strike agitation is greatest, Mr. Bogan said, among students at Crane junior college. He pointed out to them the danger that their strike plans would revive suggestions that the college be abolished.

PARENTS IN SECRET HIDING WITH CHILD FACING OPERATION

Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., April 16.—(AP)—Neither police, relatives, nor friends had been able tonight to find a trace of John Vasco and his family, who vanished from their home yesterday morning while a court pondered the strange case of 2 year old Helen Vasco.

The child is doomed to an early death, physicians have said, unless a malignant tumor is removed from her eye.

A Westchester county children's court ordered the operation performed, the case was appealed, the order was stayed, and the Appellate division of the Supreme court is preparing a decision.

JUDGES TO GIVE TESTIMONY IN RECEIVER QUIZ

Judges of the Circuit and Superior courts will be called upon to recite their experiences in handling foreclosures before the committee of the state house of representatives inquiring into all phases of receiverships and foreclosures. This was announced yesterday by Assistant Attorneys General James G. Skinner, George S. Lavin, and John W. Brabner-Smith.

The committee may resume hearings in the County building Thursday night if its members can leave the legislature Thursday afternoon to return to Chicago. If they are unable to get away then, the hearings will be held Friday and Saturday in room 1121 of the County building.

TRIBUNE FLEET DOCKS HERE WITH CARGO OF PAPER

First Ships to Pass the Straits.

Three ships of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE fleet, bringing a combined load of 5,737 tons of newsprint paper from Thorold, Ont., arrived at the Tribune dock, east of the Michigan avenue bridge, yesterday after a fast run from the Straits of Mackinac, where the vessels were caught in an ice jam three days ago.

In the lead was the steamer New York News, under command of Capt. Fred McIntyre. His ship docked here at noon, twenty-nine hours and fifteen minutes from the time the fleet cleared the ice in the Straits of Mackinac Saturday morning. The steamer Thorold arrived at 1 p. m. and the slower motorship Chicago Tribune docked at 5 p. m.

Congratulates Three Captains.

H. E. Laird, traffic manager of THE TRIBUNE, was at the dock and congratulated the three captains, McIntyre, R. J. Brown of the Thorold, and George Ferguson of The Chicago Tribune. Unloading of the paper cargo was begun immediately and the Thorold and New York News left early today for Thorold to get another load.

Capt. McIntyre told a vivid story of the battle in the ice jam. His ship the New York News, had left Thorold ahead of the other two ships and was the first cargo vessel to open the 1933 lake transportation season.

14 Miles of Ice.

"We broke through drift ice all the way to Port Colborne," said Capt. McIntyre, "and it was there that we ran into 14 miles of thick ice. It was slow going but we didn't strike a real ice jam until Wednesday in the straits.

"There was a heavy snow on the ice, making it impossible for us to see soft spots. The Thorold and the Tribune caught up to us there and the three ships worked together for three days breaking through the jam. If it hadn't rained we would be there yet. The rain melted the snow and softened the ice some and we were able to see places that could be broken through."

CLUB LISTS ROOMS FOR CHURCH VISITORS TO CHICAGO'S FAIR

Inquiries are being received from persons outside Chicago concerning housing during A Century of Progress exposition, according to officials of the World's Fair Tourist club, an organization sponsored by the Visitors' Tourist service, a not for profit organization.

The club was formed to offer "congenial and economical housing" to church members throughout the country, according to the Rev. Daniel L. Eckert, secretary of the Baptist church housing commission connected with the club.

Rooms of persons recommended by a pastor are registered by the World's Fair Tourist club, whose offices are at 608 South Dearborn street. There is no fee for registration. Persons applying for rooms are given addresses near a church of their denomination and in homes of members of that denomination.

The plan has been indorsed by A Century of Progress, by the city council, and by representative clergymen, according to the Rev. Mr. Eckert.

MAYOR KELLY'S INAUGURAL WILL BE HELD TONIGHT

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, who was elected by the city council on Thursday to complete the unexpired term of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak, will be formally inaugurated as mayor tonight.

The ceremonies will be held in the council chambers. They are scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock. Hundreds of political, civic and business leaders have been invited to attend.

Among those who are expected to be present is Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, N. J. Mayor Hague, a Democratic leader, was a close friend of Mayor Cermak, and is also a friend of Mr. Kelly. He came to Chicago Saturday on a visit, and was asked by the new city executive to attend the inaugural.

U. S. Dry Agent Is Slain in Raid on Farm Home

Jonesboro, Ark., April 16.—(AP)—Leroy Woods, 33, federal prohibition agent, died today from bullet wounds received yesterday in a fight at a farm home near here after he and another officer had arrested three members of a family for violation of the prohibition law. The other officer, R. W. Keck, was beaten severely on the head, but he was reported improved today.

LEVY DECLARES BACK TAXES CAN BE COLLECTED

Asserts Need of Making Assessment Changes.

Mark Levy, chairman of the committee on back taxes of the Chicago Real Estate board, said yesterday that between $50,000,000 and $80,000,000 in delinquent real estate taxes can be collected in Cook county under two conditions. These conditions, he said, are the passage by the legislature of the Keehn bill for the review of tax objections and the use of this measure in conjunction with County Judge Jarecki's plan for installment collections of delinquent 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes over a period of six years.

The Keehn bill would give every delinquent taxpayer who ever filed an objection, the right to file a new objection in the County court, asking reduction of his tax bill on the plea that his property was overassessed. Mr. Levy does not believe, however, that this would clog the court with tax litigation.

Plans for Large and Small.

"The Keehn bill would be largely taken advantage of by large taxpayers," he said. "The small taxpayer, I believe, would feel that he could not afford the expense of the red tape and employment of counsel. The little taxpayer, of course, could arrange to pay his bill in installments under the Jarecki plan without employing counsel.

"Back taxes cannot be collected without review and adjudication of overvaluations in the assessments of 1928, 1929, and 1930. In cases where these overvaluations were due to physical errors in the appraisal, they may be corrected, of course, under the present statutes.

"There were in addition, however, numerous cases of overvaluation due to errors in judgment, and the assessor has told us that he will refuse to recommend corrections to the County court in such cases. The Keehn bill would give the court jurisdiction to correct these errors.

"Would Revive Confidence."

"Enactment of the bill, I believe, would reëstablish confidence in the tax machinery even before the adjudication of the cases. County Judge Jarecki will be able to refer the complaints of overassessment for investigation to the board of tax appeals, as successor to the old board of review which failed to hear the original complaints. The board's findings, of course, would be subject to approval by the judge.

"I believe that a large proportion—a majority—of the taxpayers who have not paid their bills have failed to do so because they believed their property was overvalued. The people who have paid did so because they thought their bills were fair, because they felt it a civic duty to pay, because mortgage holders on their property demanded that they pay, or because they feared publicity or damage to their credit if they failed to pay.

Believe Payers Will Pay.

"I don't believe the operation of this proposed law will cause those people who did pay their taxes in the past to withhold payment on their present bills in the hope of getting some reduction in the future. People realize that they must contribute to the cost of government."

State Senator Arthur Huebsch [Rep., Brookfield], who introduced the Keehn bill in the legislature, is of the opinion now that the bill should be amended to provide that any one seeking a review of his assessment in the County court should first make a down payment of part of the contested bill, Mr. Levy said. He agreed with that, suggesting that the down payment be 10 per cent of the bill, plus accrued penalties, as required under the Jarecki installment plan.

He Agrees With Sargent.

Mr. Levy said that he agrees with Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, that the Keehn bill should have been introduced as one measure in a general program for legislative relief of taxpayers—a program that would have included limitation of tax rates on real estate, a budgetary control commission, and installment payment of back taxes. Mr. Sargent was originally listed as one of those who had approved the Keehn bill.

"I approved the bill," Mr. Sargent said recently, "upon the understanding that it was to be part of a general tax relief program. I was informed that there were numerous cases of overassessment in the 1928, 1929, and 1930 assessment rolls, which because they were not based upon errors of fact but on errors of judgment, could not be corrected at present, and that the bill was designed to relieve those cases.

"I'm not in favor of any measure, however, which will make it possible to clog the County court with 100,000 or more tax objection cases."

DR. GUTHRIE HOPES TO RECOVER CONTROL OF CHURCH VESTRY

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—Dr. William N. Guthrie will attempt to recover control of the vestry of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie at the annual parish meeting to be held Tuesday, it was learned today.

Dr. Guthrie revealed that the most recent action taken by the vestry, after it had ousted last summer by a voted of 8 to 2 the body and soul clinic which he had established in the church, was to start removal proceedings against the rector himself on charges that are pending with Bishop Manning and the standing committee of the diocese.

Dr. Guthrie said he regarded the removal proceedings as a last minute effort of his long standing opponents in the vestry to get rid of him, and that they would "undoubtedly fall to the ground after the parish meeting."

Stabbed 10 Times by Three Men in Front of Home

Michael Deituro, 32 years old, was stabbed ten times by three men while in front of his home at 1237 Ohio street last night. Despite his wounds, physicians at the county hospital predicted he would survive. Deituro refused to identify his assailants. "I'll take care of them myself," he told Sergt. Walter O. Bailey.

DAWN SERVICES ARE ATTENDED BY MRS. ROOSEVELT

Joins President Later at Cathedral.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—(AP)—Braving weather that drenched the splendor of the national capital's Easter day, the Roosevelts were represented with throngs today at a sunless sunrise ceremony in legend filled Arlington cemetery and at solemn services in the Washington cathedral.

Mrs. Roosevelt arose early to sit with a rain soaked audience at the break of day services conducted by the Knights Templar in the marble Arlington Memorial amphitheater overlooking the Potomac river and the city of Washington.

President Goes to Cathedral.

Later she joined the President and a party of guests in motoring to the Washington cathedral ceremonies. So great was the throng inside the church that they moved into it through a sea of umbrellas hoisted by hundreds who waited outside.

Seated in the front pew of the cathedral, the chief executive joined in the congregation in Holy Communion. He heard Bishop James E. Freeman deliver the sermon, saying that with the first Easter dawn the disciples found "a new power which changed them from impotent men to leaders of triumphant strength."

"Power in one form or another," Bishop Freeman said, "is the logical and legitimate quest of life."

Mrs. Roosevelt was joined at the early services by Mrs. Louis M. Howe and Mrs. Malvina Thompson Scheider, her secretary. They were accorded sheltered seats near the platform.

Son Also Attends.

Masses of Easter lilies made fragrant the decorations both at the White House and the cathedral. Accompanying the President to church were his son, James; Louis M. Howe, his secretary, and Mrs. Howe; and Mr. and Mrs. Angus Ames of Boston, house guests. Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President, occupied a pew near the Presidential party.

Morgan Passes Collection Plate.

New York, April 16.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan passed the collection plate at the 11 a. m. service today in the Episcopal Church of St. John's of Lattingtown, which is known as the "millionaires' church of Long Island."

The vestry of the little church, with its maximum seating capacity of 150, resembles a Wall street directors' roster. Morgan is senior warden.

The senior Morgan went alone. His son, Junius, was in the congregation with his wife. John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic presidential candidate, was also there.

Every pew was filled, many of the wealthy men and their families going to Long Island from their town houses especially to be present at the Easter service.

Dancer's Leg Is Crushed as He Helps Motorist

Kansas City, Kas., April 16.—(AP)—Manville Whitaker, 22 year old dancer known on the stage as Grant Murray, lost his right leg as a result of an attempt to aid a motorist whose car was disabled today. Crushed between bumpers of two stationary machines when one of them was struck by a third car, his leg was amputated in a hospital here. Whitaker said he was adjusting a tow chain from his car to that of a motorist in a ditch when the crash occurred.

ROME, April 16.—Resuming a custom abandoned by pontiffs for the last 63 years, Pope Pius XI. in a memorable Easter ceremony today blessed the Catholic world—urbis et orbis—symbolized by 200,000 devout persons serried in St. Peter's square.

An imposing spectacle was presented when the pope, wearing a tiara and seated on a sedia gestatoria surrounded by cardinals, appeared in the central loggia on the façade of St. Peter's and imparted the benediction by making the Sign of the Cross three times in the air.

Acclamations went up from the crowd and the entire square was aflutter with waving white handkerchiefs. A noonday sun sparkling from three fountains in the square added to the brilliance and color of the spectacle.

4,000 Troops in Square.

Four thousand troops kept order in the square. Tributes had been arranged also on the roof of the circular Bernini colonnade and a host of pigeons soared over the heads of the crowd.

Pope Pius has blessed crowds from the balcony three times before but never at Easter time. A predecessor, Pius IX., imparted the last Easter benediction from the balcony in 1870 at a time when the ecumenical council of bishops laid down the dogmas of the immaculate conception and papal infallibility.

It has been many times reported that this ecumenical council would be reconvened during the pontificate of the present pope.

Fifty bands of pilgrims from the United States and various countries of Europe were in the crowds that jammed St. Peter's square and in the throng attending Easter mass which the pope himself said in the great cathedral. The mass was celebrated first.

Holy year and the 1900th anniversary of Christ's resurrection made the revival of one of the church's most solemn rituals an occasion of extraordinary importance for the Roman Catholic world.

Notables Are Blessed.

Among the notables who attended the mass and received the papal benediction after the mass were Crown Prince Frederik of Denmark, Prince George of Saxony, Princess Maria Immacolata of Austria, former Queen Amelia of Portugal, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria, Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany, Minister of Justice James Geoghegan of the Irish Free State, former President Giuseppe Motta of Switzerland, and Gen. Huang of China.

Preceded by a cortége of 19 cardinals, 30 bishops, and all the dignitaries of his court, the pope entered the cathedral at 9:30 o'clock borne on a sedia gestatoria with 16 carriers. Pontifical gendarmes, the Noble guard, and the Swiss guard, marshaled in long rows inside the church, presented arms. Uniformed guardsmen blew on long, slender silver trumpets. The crowd murmured its applause and waved handkerchiefs.

The pontiff in spotless white, said mass at the papal altar in the center of the cathedral just beneath the dome. His holiness appeared in the best of health despite his nearly 76 years. At the end of the mass sacred relics of the crucifixion were exposed and silver trumpets again were blown. St. Peter's square was not cleared of the crowds until late in the afternoon.

Simple Rites in Holy City.

JERUSALEM, April 16.—(AP)—Simplicity and the unassuming character of the rites at Easter Sunday services here today afforded a vivid contrast with the ornate ceremonies on Saturday, when the Greek Orthodox community celebrated the ceremony of Holy fire, the most spectacular of Easter observances.

The weather was sunny and beautiful. The pealing of church bells throughout Jerusalem called streams of people to church and marked the anniversary of Christ's arising.

All churches of every denomination were crowded with residents of Jerusalem, devout pilgrims, and American tourists who arrived during the week end.

Field Marshal Lord Allenby and Lady Allenby, who came to dedicate the new Y. M. C. A. center, were present at the morning service in St George's cathedral which Anglican Bishop Wells conducted.

Assemble at Garden Tomb.

Shortly after sun-up, many Anglican Christians attended an impressive service at the garden tomb which is believed by many to be the real sepulchre and which was discovered by Gen. Gordon, later the hero of Khartum.

The austere interior of the simple tomb readily provides a picture of what happened on that Easter morning 1,900 years ago when Mary discovered that the stone had been rolled away and saw only Christ's garments.

This event was made the subject of a picturesque and plaintive midnight Abyssinian service called, "searching for the body of Christ." The service was accompanied by weird music played on two great tom-toms and silver noted sistra, Egyptian musical rattles.

Of particular interest to Americans was the Easter address of Dr. John R. Mott, chairman of the world alliance of Young Men's Christian associations, at today's jubilee of the international committee of North American Young Men's Christian associations.

Observance of Eastertide began on Palm Saturday afternoon when the Latins conducted services in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Roman Catholics during Holy week have participated in various pilgrimages following as closely as possible Christ's itinerary as told in the New Testament.

20,000 WATCH PASSION PLAYS IN OKLAHOMA

Lawton, Okla., April 16.—(AP)—More than 20,000 persons witnessed impressive mountainside Easter ceremonies at Medicine park, near Lawton, and at Sulphur, in the Platt National park, at sunrise today. Ideal weather prevailed.

At Medicine park, where the Passion Play was depicted for the seventh time on a cliff in the granite ribbed Wichita mountains, and at Sulphur, where the pageant was staged for the first time on Bromide mountain, crowds from all over the southwest began to gather late Saturday.

May camped in woods near the mountainside settings.

The crowd at Medicine park was estimated by highway patrolmen at more than 15,000, while around 7,000 saw the Bromide mountain scenes. Various church groups were in charge of both pageants.

For the pageant at Sulphur, seven choirs stationed along the mountain trail sang appropriate hymns.

Fire Wrecks Home; Two Children Die; Others Hurt

Detroit, Mich., April 16.—(AP)—Burns suffered when their home was destroyed by fire caused the death of George Day, 7, and his sister, Irene, 5, today. Their father, Fraser Day, 32, and a sister, Marion, 9, are in a serious condition. The mother, Mrs. Olive Day, had carried a 1 year old child to safety when firemen arrived early today to find the two story flat building a mass of flames.

PLAN TO CONTROL AIR TRAFFIC AT RACES COMPLETE

Maj. Schroeder Explains Elaborate System.

The most complete air traffic control system in the world will be placed in operation at Chicago airport during the four days of the American air races, July 1, 2, 3, and 4, it was announced yesterday by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, director of events of the races, which are sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

MAJ. SCHROEDER.

All air traffic in the vicinity of the airport will be directed from a central control station by radiophone and visual signals in conformity with special air traffic rules and regulations that are to be issued to all airplane pilots in the country before the dates of the races, Maj. Schroeder explained. The special air traffic rules are to be drafted by the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce.

Coördinate Schedules and Program.

All air line operations at the airport will be conducted without interruption during the races through the coördination of the race program with the air line schedules. This coördination will be effected by the grounding of all race planes during specified periods when air liners are scheduled to arrive, or depart, and by an additional flexible method of control.

The central control station will be operated by John A. Casey, manager of the airport, and Maj. Schroeder. Representatives of the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce and the Illinois aeronautics commission will be located in the station to give authority for any changes in the program that become necessary.

Mr. Casey will direct all scheduled air line operations. He will be in communication with the radio dispatchers of all the air lines at the airport, who in turn are in constant communication by radio with the pilots of the air liners. Through this sequence Mr Casey will be able to keep informed of the location of all planes flying toward the Chicago airport. If any plane approaches the airport ahead of or behind schedule, Mr. Casey will be informed and will tell Maj. Schroeder when to halt the race program to allow the air liner to land.

Still Another Safeguard.

An additional and more direct method of communication will be available if planes are operating off of schedule in the airport's own radio station, over which Mr. Casey will be able to talk directly to any pilot bringing a transport plane into the airport and give him instructions.

Maj. Schroeder will direct the air race program by two large visual signals. One is to be a large cloth panel, bearing "open" on one side and "closed" on the other. When the open side is shown, the air race program is halted. When the closed side is shown, the next event takes off. The other visual signal will be a large red neon sign, which is to be turned on while races are under way. Three field operations officials will receive orders from the central control station by radio, to keep the program running smoothly.

"This flexible operations plan has been devised to allow the air race program to be carried out without interfering with scheduled operations on the airport," Maj. Schroeder said. "It has been approved by officials of the large air lines, by the city, state and federal aviation officials, and by a committee of racing and acrobatic pilots."

Appointments Are Announced.

Capt. M. M. Corpening, president of the Chicago Air Race corporation, which is staging the American air races, yesterday announced the appointment of several department heads.

"William B. Wolken, who has been in the concession business for the past fifteen years, has been placed in charge of concessions," he said. "Myron E. Stauffer and William J. Greene, who have handled trophies and awards at other large air meets, will have charge of that department. Earl H. Harvey, an experienced air racing executive, has been placed in charge of ticket sales.

"Frank A. McKay, long associated with air racing meets and national air tours, has been made assistant to the director of events. Charles Lee, an experienced advertising man, is in charge of the program. Maj. Herman H. Woeltjen, president of the Illinois Air Pilots' association, is to be in charge of preparations at Chicago airport."

CHAPLIN MAY PLAY HAMLET ON COLORADO STAGE THIS SUMMER

Denver, Colo., April 16.—[Special.]—Charles Chaplin may play Hamlet in the historic Central City opera house this summer it was reported here tonight after word was received that Robert Edmond Jones had signed a five year contract to direct plays of the organization.

Last year the old opera house was opened for the first time since Central City was a boom gold mining camp and famous stars of past years trod its stage.

Lillian Gish was the star of the first play—"Camille"—which was given for one week. This year the play festival will continue two weeks.

Besides Chaplin, Jane Cowl is being considered for the lead in another production.

Miss Anne Evans, director of the Central City Opera House association, tonight refused to say what plans have been made regarding the play and leads, but it is known that negotiations have been carried on with both Chaplin and Miss Cowl.

CAPT. LANCASTER, BRITISH FLYER, LOST IN SAHARA

ALGIERS, Algeria, April 16.—(AP)—Posts in the southern Sahara desert reported tonight that no trace had been found of Capt. William Lancaster, British pilot who set out last week on a flight from England to Cape Town, South Africa. He has not been heard of since he took off from Reggan, Morocco, Wednesday night.

RANGOON, Burma, April 16.—(AP)—Fears were felt here tonight for the safety of the Italian aviator, L. Robiano, who is flying from Lympne, England, to Australia, and has been unreported since leaving Calcutta at 10:30 p. m. Friday for Victoria, Burma. Rain, wind, and severe thunderstorms herald the approach of a dreaded monsoon.

TOKIO, April 16—(AP)—Maryse Hilz, French aviatrix who left Paris April 1 with the avowed purpose of seeing Japan at cherry blossom time, succeeded when she landed at Haneda airdrome, a suburb of Tokio, this afternoon. The aviatrix made the hop from Seoul, Corea, in 8 hours and 52 minutes.

MINIMUM WAGE BILL DRAWN BY OHIO LAWMAKER

Cleveland, O., April 16.—(AP)—The draft of a bill to permit the establishment of minimum wages for women and children in Ohio was sent to Gov. George White today by State Representative William R. Pringle, who plans to introduce it in the legislature May 15.

In a letter accompanying, Pringle referred the governor to the request made by President Roosevelt that such legislation be adopted in industrial states, including Ohio.

The proposed bill provides that on petition of 50 citizens the state director or superintendent of industrial relations shall convene a wage board of nine, appointed by himself, to inquire into what may constitute a fair minimum wage in the industry in question and to set such a minimum. Three of the board members are to be employers, three employés, and three disinterested citizens.

Fines and imprisonment are provided for failure on the part of an employer to pay the wage rates set by the board.

BRITAIN SUPPLIES AUSTRALIA WITH ENTIRE NEW NAVY

Dominion to Strengthen Defense on Coast.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, April 16. — Australia's inadequate navy of less than a dozen warships will be replaced by four modern cruisers and one flotilla leader from England as a result of negotiations now under way between the Australian and British governments.

Australia may receive the five vessels as a virtual gift from England, although technically they will be a loan. This move follows Australia's policy under Britain's direction to concentrate more adequately on fortification of northern Australia. Within the last few months Australia's department of defense has been strengthening fortifications at Darwin and elsewhere along the northern coastline.

Spy Mysterious Ships.

This activity followed repeated reports to Canberra of the mysterious visits to these waters of ships believed to be Japanese vessels. The capture by an Australian customs vessel of the Japanese "exploration" ship, Daikoku Maru, near Thursday Island last February partially confirmed these reports.

Residents of Thursday Island, Australia's far northern outpost, reported to Canberra in February the appearances of a mysterious seaplane and submarine. Reports that Japanese fishing craft are dotting the nortnern coast are numerous and the department of defense is moving fast to add a wide patrol service to those waters.

Reports that the Japanese have established a secret airplane base somewhere on Australia's northern coast are generally rejected as "silly," though it is pointed out that the 3,000-mile undefended and unpatrolled coast line leaves many uncharted locations open to such a scheme.

Abandon Plane Carrier.

Explaining the Australian government's action in seeking replacement of obsolete Australian vessels by British ships, Sir George Pearce, minister for defense, said that the five Australian vessels were inadequate for fast cruising work. He also pointed out that the Australian navy had to abandon the use of the practically new Australian-built airplane carrier, the Albatross. The crew will be transferred to the British vessels coming to Australia.

An interesting feature of the replacement is that the scrapping of the obsolete Australian ships was necessary if the full strength of the British navy was to be retained. Under the limitations of naval armaments, the war vessels of the British dominions were included with those of Britain as one fleet. The retention of obsolete destroyers in Australia meant that if Britain continued to observe her obligations under naval disarmament treaties she would have to suffer a diminution to that extent in her full naval strength.

The replacement of the old Australian vessels, therefore, will not only strengthen Australia's naval defenses but will make it possible for Britain to retain her full naval strength, it was pointed out by Sir George Pearce.

AUTOIST BURNED TO DEATH.

Monroe, Mich., April 16.—(AP)—Maurice L. Austin, 32 of Monroe, was burned to death today when his automobile caught fire following a collision with the automobile of Lester Powell, Toledo.

Manager of Bus Lines and Woman Bandit Victims

Two gunmen forced the car of E. O. Weimer and Miss Geraldine Bellack, 4343 West 15th street, to the curb in the outer drive at 20th street this morning. One boarded their automobile and made Weimer drive to the Rock Island viaduct in Harrison street, where he robbed him of $74 and Miss Bellack of $3 and an $18 check. Weimer, who lives at the Grant hotel, 6 North Dearborn street, is general manager for the U. S. Limousine and Bus lines.

RUSH EXTENSION OF OUTER DRIVE ON NORTH SIDE

Hope for Completion Before Fair Opening.

BY HAL FOUST.

Construction of the outer drive extension from Montrose avenue north to Foster avenue will be expedited this week on orders of Robert Kingery, acting state director of public works, who declared that every effort must be made by the contractors to finish the project in time to accommodate World's Fair traffic.

A normal traffic of 35,000 cars a day will escape the delays and annoyances of a mile's drive through the Wilson and Lawrence avenue business district when the new pavement is opened. The bottle neck will become worse if it is not broken before the fair starts on June 1.

In connection with the construction work, the new Montrose yacht harbor, an improvement of the Lincoln park development program, was used for the first time yesterday by a ship laden with gravel for the outer drive. The gravel was shipped here from Lockport.

Hope to Gain a Month.

Without special effort by the contractors the new section of the outer drive will not be in service before July. The guaranteed completion date on the Wilson avenue grade separation contract is July 1. The Lawrence avenue grade separation and the Argyle avenue pedestrian underpass contracts call for completion by June 1.

The C. E. Carson company, which holds the paving contract, is ready to start laying slab as soon as these structures have developed far enough for him to proceed. The paving equipment is in place. This week the company's excavators will start smoothing the roadway for the concrete.

"As soon as the grade separations are ready to support the through traffic roadways the paving can proceed," said Mr. Kingery. "Building the ramps can wait.

"Other preliminary work includes laying electrical conduits, sewers and water mains. Unless the contractors increase their crews and add to their equipment the outer drive won't be open until two or three weeks after World's Fair visitors begin to arrive.

Object to Extra Charges.

"The contractors want to add $8,000 or $10,000 to their bills to the state for hurrying the job. The state administration is anxious to finish the jobs before the due dates of the contracts, but $8,000 is lots of tax money in these days of public economy."

A two weeks' advance in the opening date of the outer drive would save 490,000 car trips through the mile of congestion, delays and hazards in the Wilson avenue district.

The work is being done by the state highway department as one of the improvements in the general road construction program. The outer drive is an extension of state Route 41. When it is completed the Lincoln park board will assume the maintenance of that part of the drive in park territory and the park board, in addition, has its own engineer working with the state highway engineer in supervising construction.

Aldrich, New Chief Postal Inspector, Goes to Capital

K. P. Aldrich, newly appointed chief of postal inspectors, who has been head of the office in Chicago since 1927, left with his family yesterday for Washington to assume his new duties. He said that no successor to the Chicago post, made vacant by his promotion, will be made for some time.

SOCIETY SEEKS FREE HOMES FOR ORPHANS OVER 6

The care of orphans six years old and older has become an acute problem because of economic conditions, officials of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society revealed yesterday.

In normal times kindly disposed families have taken these homeless children to live with them, not necessarily for adoption but to provide them with room, board, and clothing during their school years. Most of these families now find it impossible to continue this aid to orphans of more than six years of age because of shrinking incomes. There have been scores of these orphans left homeless in recent weeks. Under six years of age the children have too great an appeal in their helplessness for the families to give them up.

Mrs. E. H. Brewer, chairman of the society's case committee, said the organization is appealing to any family able to care for a child, even temporarily, to communicate with the society at 203 North Wabash avenue. These families, it is emphasized, are not obligated to adopt the children.

Two Children Beaten by Father Recovering

William Theomke Jr., 11 years old, and his sister, Wilma, 7, of 2831 North Mansfield avenue, were recovering yesterday in the county hospital from injuries inflicted by their father, who beat them with a chair Saturday night when he came home intoxicated. The boy's condition was reported fair and the girl was improving. William received a skull fracture and his sister's right leg was broken.

LESS DISORDER AFTER WEEK OF LAWFUL BEER

Public Treasuries Are Feeling Benefits.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—Large increases in government revenues and a decrease in drunkenness and disorder marked the first full week in which the sale of 3.2 beer was legal, according to reports from key cities in various sections of the country.

While definite tax totals were not available, the dispatches stated that federal, state and municipal treasuries have been helped at least to the extent of several million dollars from the new brew.

Less Disorder Reported.

In many communities arrests for intoxication and disorderly conduct fell to a small fraction of the usual number for a similar period in recent years, the survey showed; in other places, the new brew apparently had had no effect one way or the other. In none of the cities was there an increase in the arrests for drunkenness since beer became legal.

The popularity of the new beverage has been immediate and widespread, despite a few complaints from veteran beer drinkers that it was "green" and lacked strength. In some cities covered by the survey, the legalization of beer was believed to have reduced sharply the amount of hard liquor sold by bootleggers.

In New York beer production and consumption since the beer again became legal has exceeded all estimates. The figures run into hundreds of thousands of barrels, with resultant huge revenue collections and a reported substantial upturn in retail trade. The vast bulk of consumption and money turned over took place in New York City, one of the country's brewing centers.

More Beer, Less Drunkenness

To the chagrin of the drys and elation of the wets, there has been a noticeable decrease in drunkenness, and speakeasies are said to be hard pressed to keep open in the face of the people's concerted swing from hard liquor to the enjoyment of the mild 3.2 brew.

Condensed reports from other centers follow:

Boston—The drinking of almost 6 million bottles of beer resulted in a decrease of 76 arrests for intoxication, compared with the week preceding legal beer. Police Chief Michael M. Crowley hailed beer's return as heralding the end of the speakeasy and a decrease in racketeering.

Philadelphia—With about $500,000 collected by the federal ond state beer tax in eastern Pennsylvania, there were only 12 persons arrested here for intoxication in five central city police districts, compared with 96 the week-end before.

Baltimore—With more than 20,000 barrels of beer produced and sold here or shipped to Maryland counties in ten days, there were about $100,000 in federal revenue and $85,000 in city beer license fees. The city fee is $50 and Baltimore has licensed so far about 3,100 places to sell beer.

Cincinnati—On the morning after the return of beer only nine cases of drunkenness were before the Municipal court. Eight of these were habitual hair tonic or "canned heat" drinkers, the police said. About 60,000 barrels of beer were consumed in the first beer week.

Louisville—Legal beer's return to Kentucky has been accompanied by a sharp decrease in the number of arrests for drunkenness—25 fewer in Louisville the first Monday of legal beer than for the preceding Monday.

Milwaukee—Sales of government beer stamps, at $5 for a 31 gallon barrel, totaled $794,000, and in addition the state realized nearly $160,000 for its treasury from a levy of $1 a barrel. For the week ending Friday Milwaukee led 117 cities in business upturn.

St. Louis—Beer drinking has become a matter of routine in St. Louis, traditionally a favorite spot for lovers of the beverage. However, there is a serious shortage of beer.

San Francisco—The beer drinkers of San Francisco are doing their bit toward the balancing of government budgets. Federal revenue was increased $182,000 since April 7. Collector John L. McLaughlin said during the first five days about 30,200 barrels had been sold.

Merna Kennedy was Chaplin's leading woman in "The Circus" and played the lead in the film version of "Broadway" and other rôles.

BOOKIE FREED; DENIES PAYING HIS KIDNAPERS

Peter McKeone 33 years old, 5520 South Union avenue, a handbook operator who was held for ransom by kidnapers from Thursday until late Saturday night told police yesterday that he paid no money for his release.

Questioned by Lieut. Michael Lehart of the Englewood station, McKeone said his abductors had demanded $2,000 and that they freed him when he convinced them he did not possess that much money.

He was held a prisoner in a basement, McKeone said, and did not talk to the kidnapers, who treated him well. "I would not be able to identify them," McKeone said.

Two Airmen Are Killed as Stunting Plane Falls

Eastland, Tex., April 16.—(AP)—Two men were killed today when their monoplane fell in the yard of Evon Brunett, caretaker for the Eastland airport. The dead are Bill Hussey, 26, of Eastland, the pilot, and J. W. Penn of Cisco, Tex. Witnesses said the flyers had been stunting.

ROBBERS POSE AS POLICEMEN.

Two bandits, who posed as policemen looking for robbers, entered the grocery of Harvey Diehl, 625 North Latrobe avenue, yesterday and robbed him of $13 and two watches.

OBSERVE BEER'S RETURN TONIGHT IN MILWAUKEE

15,000 Plan to Celebrate in City Auditorium.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., April 16.—[Special.]—Milwaukee is ready for tomorrow night's official civic celebration of the legalization of beer. It will be a jubilee and a revival of the practice of assembling of the citizens of a generation ago for joyous merrymaking.

Preparations have been made for the entertainment of 15,000 persons in the Municipal auditorium, where a volksfest sponsored by the city will be held. Tickets sales show that large delegations are coming here from nearby cities. If there is an overflow, Kilbourn avenue in front of the auditorium will be roped off, orchestra music furnished, and the roadway turned over to the dancers.

Whistles to Blow Welcome.

Hotels, clubs and taverns are coöperating in making it a big night. The auditorium will be the gravitating point for all of the celebrants, but those who do not want to confine their exuberance to one place will find dancing at the Eagles club rooms; a volksfest night in the fern room on the seventh floor of the Pfister hotel, and special attractions in practically every downtown business place.

The opening of the big night will be heralded at 5 p. m. with the blowing of fireboat, tugboat and factory whistles. The doors of the auditorium will be thrown open at 5:30 p. m., with a large corps of ticket takers and ushers on hand. Shortly afterwards will start the serving of a German dinner at 500 tables in Market and Mechanics halls in the basement, with 70 waiters and 25 waitresses on hand to take care of the diners.

The real excitement will start at 7:30 p. m. A 21 bomb salute will be fired, and simultaneously red fire flares will be lighted on West Kilbourn avenue, from North 4th to North 6th streets, and on the side streets near the auditorium. The eerie lighting effect and the firing of bombs will continue until 9 p. m.

A Varied Program.

Inside the big auditorium, with its main arena and several halls, there will be a varied program, which will continue into the next morning. Mayor Daniel Hoan and Chauncey Yockey will give brief addresses. There will be folk dances and songs by performers of Bavarian, Polish, Swedish, Czechoslovakian, Italian, Hungarian, and Jugo-Slavian descent.

Beer will flow from the spigots of twelve bars, and will be delivered to the tables by a corps of 95 waiters and waitresses in 5 cent and 10 cent glasses. The brew of each of Milwaukee's seven large breweries is to be on tap.

For Old Time Dances.

Dancing in the main arena, with two bands furnishing the music, will open at 9 p. m. Kilbourn hall will be turned over to those who favor the old time dances.

German bands, Swiss yodelers, accordion players and women musicians will stroll through the various halls where people are seated drinking beer and eating sandwiches, and will entertain them.

The auditorium affair is scheduled to continue until 1 a. m. Tuesday morning.

EVANSTON COUNCIL TO TAKE UP BEER QUESTION TONIGHT

The Evanston city council and the governments of other north shore suburbs are expected to consider the beer question at meetings tonight. The Evanston aldermen may enact a regulatory measure, possibly prohibiting the sale of 3.2 brew in the suburb. Most of the other villages are expected to postpone action until a state law covering regulation of the beverage sales has been enacted.

A petition signed by hundreds of residents in the eastern section of Evanston, demanding that the city council uphold the provisions of the Northwestern university charter which prohibits the sale of liquor within a four mile zone, is to be presented at the council meeting. Signers include Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal church, and William A Dyche, business manager of Northwestern university.

Mr. Dyche said yesterday that he had written a letter to Mayor Bartlett urging that an ordinance be passed which would prevent the establishment of saloons or taverns in Evanston.

FACULTY VOTES TO SHARE SALARY FUND AT GOUCHER

Baltimore, Md., April 16.—(AP)—A statement issued by Goucher college today said the members of the faculty have voluntarily voted to contribute 10 per cent of their salaries to create a reserve fund to assist in balancing the budget for 1933-34.

"Goucher college has an unusually successful record in the investment of its endowment," the statement said. "During the depression there has been a slight increase in the actual amount of the endowment fund and an increase in the rate of return on this fund.

"The increase in rate of return is from 4.75 per cent in 1927-28 to 4.91 per cent in 1931-32.

"On the other hand there has been a decrease in income from student fees owing to a reduction in enrollment. This has created the situation against which the trustees and faculty in coöperation are taking precautions."

THIRD ELECTION IN 2 WEEKS TO BE HELD TOMORROW

80 Cook County Towns to Choose Officials.

Cook county will have its third election within a period of two weeks tomorrow, when voters in 80 cities, towns, and villages choose officials. Many of these same voters were at the polls on April 8 to elect members of 17 high school and 194 elementary boards. On April 4 other voters were marking ballots in Evanston, Oak Park, Berwyn, Cicero, Winnetka, and Glencoe. The same day aldermanic run offs were held in Chicago.

The county already has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars needlessly in elections this spring, officials said yesterday. They pointed to the elections of Tuesday as further evidence of the need of consolidation of elections. A bill for such consolidation is still pending at Springfield. It was sponsored over a year ago by the late Mayor Cermak.

Urge Pressure on Assembly.

"If the bill had been passed Chicago and Cook county would have effected a saving of $1,000,000," said President Emmett Whealan of the county board. "It is too late now to save on 1933 elections, but taxpayers can effect savings for future years if they exert pressure on their legislators to pass the bill."

Polls will be open tomorrow from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. A large vote is expected in several districts where candidates have made vigorous campaigns.

In Wilmette the "perpetual harmony" convention, a system modeled after the nonpolitical caucus method employed with success in Winnetka, will be given its first test. The convention indorses the candidacy of Village President Carbon P. Dubbs and Treasurer Harry W. Miller, who are running on the Village Party ticket, but has nominated three men to oppose the village party's candidates for village trustees.

Six Parties in Calumet City.

Mayor John W. Jaranowski of Calumet City, former Republican county commissioner, is opposed by Paul M. Kamradt, who was mayor for 10 years before Jaranowski's election in 1925. Kamradt has opposed Jaranowski, who heads the Municipal ticket, three times without success. Six parties are now in the field.

Morton Grove will hold its first election under the Chicago board of election commissioners. Herbert A. Dilg is seeking reëlection as president, against Charles Suhr. The town voted to come under the jurisdiction of the election commissioners last November.

Local option on 3.2 beer will be voted upon in Barrington, along with the selection of officers. Voters will be asked to decide whether to permit sale of draft and bottle beer, bottle beer only, or sales for home consumption only.

Woman Is Candidate.

A woman is seeking the presidency of Schiller Park. She is Mrs. Julia M. Kolze, trustee, running on the People's Party ticket against Richard L. Mentzel of the Good Will party, and Herman W. Werth of the Taxpayers' party.

A close race is expected in Homewood. President Joseph Schwarz is opposed by Police Magistrate Edward L. Clark. Clark formerly was a village policeman and was discharged by Schwarz. At the last election he ran for police magistrate and was elected.

John Patton, known for the last quarter of a century as "the boy mayor," and three trustees are running for reëlection in Burnham as usual without opposition.

Student Speeder Must Prepare for Quiz in Jail

Berkeley, Cal., April 16.—(AP)—Arrested for speeding, Lloyd Winter, university senior, pleaded for stay of judgment until after examinations. The court decided, however, jail would be an ideal place for five days of concentrated study in preparation for the tests.

M'DONALD BEGINS 'BRUSHING UP' FOR ROOSEVELT TALK

Starts Ship Parleys with Experts Today.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. BERENGARIA, April 16—Prime Minister MacDonald spent a quiet Easter Sunday. Tomorrow, however, he will begin a series of conferences with Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent undersecretary of the British foreign office, and other experts, in preparation for his meeting with President Roosevelt on various economic problems this week-end.

The prime minister attended the divine service conducted by Capt. Britain, skipper of the Berengaria, but his daughter, Ishbel, who is a strict Presbyterian, passed up the Anglican Easter service and spent the morning knitting on the deck in the sun. Later in the day MacDonald took a walk about the ship and played shuffleboard for a while.

The British statesman, who was tired after the strenuous parliamentary session, already shows the benefit of a couple of days' rest at sea and is sure to arrive in Washington full of vigor.

Arrives Friday.

The Berengaria is due to arrive at quarantine Friday morning. The prime minister and his party will be taken off in a tug and carried to Jersey City where a special train to Washington will await them.

The party hopes to arrive in Washington about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. MacDonald and Miss Ishbel will go straight to the White House as guests of the President and the rest of the party will go to the British embassy.

MacDonald's full list of appointments was completed tonight on receipt of a message from Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador at Washington. They include meetings with former Premier Herriot of France and Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada. After arriving in Washington Friday afternoon the prime minister will receive the press as soon as possible at the White House, after which he will dine with the President.

Luncheon at Press Club.

On Saturday there will be a luncheon at the National Press club, a garden party at the British embassy and a formal dinner at the White House. On Sunday the premier will make an excursion into the country with the President, their destination being undisclosed. On Monday there will be a luncheon at the Canadian legation and dinner at the British embassy. Tuesday will be spent at the White House.

The British party leaves Washington about noon Wednesday, April 26, for the Pilgrims' dinner in New York and from there will go directly to the boat for the return trip.

Imperialists Eye Meeting.

LONDON, April 16.—(AP)—Advocates of empire development will watch closely the meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald at the White House the coming weekend for possible effects on the Ottawa trade agreements, the new economic anchor of British imperialism.

There is no likelihood that Britain's spokesman will pledge this country to return to its forsaken historic position of a free trade nation. MacDonald, however, has his government's authority to declare in favor of low tariffs.

How much such a declaration would affect the Ottawa agreements will not be determined so much by MacDonald as by the forthcoming negotiations between Premier Richard B. Bennett of Canada and the President.

Herriot Lauds Roosevelt.

HAVRE, France, April 16.—(AP)—A tribute to President Roosevelt as a chief of state "evidently animated by the highest solicitude for human happiness" featured a speech tonight by former Premier Edouard Herriot at a farewell banquet on the eve of his sailing for Washington. He will represent France there in international conferences with President Roosevelt.

Roosevelt, Herriot said, "has impressed not only the people of whom he is the head, but the whole world, by the splendid courage with which he squarely attacks the most redoubtable difficulties." Two hundred notables gathered at the banquet and toasted the special ambassador.

Herriot said he is going "to Washington to do my best to defend with all my force the interests of France. I am also going there to collaborate with all my means towards the world's economic restoration and the development of Franco-American friendship, which I consider an essential element of peace."

Argentina Ready to Negotiate.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 16.—Argentina probably will appoint a member of its embassy staff at Washington to attend the preliminary economic conference talks there, according to Foreign Minister Saavedra Lamas. Lamas said that "Argentina is quite ready to negotiate a reciprocity trade treaty with the United States."

Two Women Killed in Auto Wreck

Mrs. Hattie Satterlee (left) and her companion, Dorothy Parker, killed when their auto plunged into a ditch at Ridgeland avenue and the Southwest highway.

Auto Kills Woman

Miss Elizabeth Dunning, 55 years old, of 3114 Jackson boulevard, was killed by an automobile last night while she was on her way to Easter night services in Our Lady of Sorrows church, Jackson boulevard and Albany avenue. She was crossing the boulevard at Troy street when struck by a car driven by Leonard Lewis, 29 years old, of 506 South Austin boulevard, Oak Park. Miss Dunning's sister, Mary, who was in church at the time, identified the body.

County highway police were investigating the cause of the automobile accident early yesterday in which Mrs. Hattie Satterlee, 47 years old, 7804 Lowe avenue, a widow, and Mrs. Dorothy Parker, 25, 7926 Lafayette avenue, were killed. The bodies were found crushed beneath Mrs. Satterlee's overturned car in a ditch at Ridgeland and the Southwest highway, near Chicago Ridge.

These deaths and two others yesterday raised the Cook county 1933 motor toll to 249. The other victims:

Elmer Tomm, 26 years old, 1804 Lake street, Melrose Park, a commercial artist. Died in Westlake hospital of injuries received in a collision Saturday night.

Unidentified Negro, 55 years old. Killed by an automobile at Michigan avenue and 39th street. The driver was Christopher Burke, 30 years old, 8547 Aberdeen street.

PERU ORDERS ONE CHIEF FOR LAND, AIR, SEA FORCES

LIMA, Peru, April 16.—(AP)—A governmental decree today ordered that Peruvian land, air, and sea forces be placed under the command of a single general.

While the name of the future commander was not given, it was assumed that Gen. Oscar Benavides, former provisional president of Peru who once was charged with participating in a subversive plot, will be Peru's generalissimo.

Meanwhile, following on the resignation Friday night of the cabinet headed by Dr. Jose Matias Manzanilla, the formation of a new government was expected momentarily. It appears likely that Dr. Manzanilla would head a new cabinet, leaving out the resigned minister of war, marine, and finance.

Legislators to Tell Park Consolidation Plans Today

State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Michael F. Hennebry, and M. F. Browner, sponsors of legislation to merge park boards, will explain their program before representatives of parks and 27 civic groups in the Union League club today. The program contemplates forming the Lincoln, south and west park systems into one governing unit. Under this plan smaller park districts could join the merger when they desired to do so.

JAPANESE DRIVE CHINESE TROOPS TOWARD CHANGLI

Town Center of Methodist Missionary Work.

BULLETIN.

PEIPING, April 17 (Monday).—(AP) — Chinese troops evacuated Changli and the entire Chinese army was withdrawing today to the south bank of the Lwan river, its retreat harried by constant bombing of Japanese flyers.

PEIPING, April 17.—[Monday]—(AP)—Heavy fighting was reported in progress today in the region between Pehtaiho, famous Chinese summer resort, southwestward to Changli, Methodist missionary center, following the occupation by Japanese-Manchukuoan forces of Chinwangtao, important seaport, late Sunday.

Chinese troops were retreating toward the Lwan river and Japanese bombers and artillery were reported to be levelling buildings throughout the era. Two brigades of infantry, pushing from Taitowying, occupied Funing, a few miles southward, after a four hour battle at noon. A cavalry detachment under Gen. Kojiro occupied Yungping, to the west of Funing, after several hours of fighting.

The Japanese entered Chinwangtao at 6 o'clock last night, after Chinese had evacuated hurriedly, and raised flags of Japan and Manchukuo this morning. From Shanhaikwan, which the Japanese occupied Jan. 3, runs the main line of the railroad leading southwestward to Tientsin. Along the line are Chinwangtao, Pehtaiho, Changli, Anshan, and Lwanchow.

U. S. Transport Base.

American troops stationed at Peiping have a transport base where supplies are landed and a summer camp at Chinwangtao and the marines have a summer camp at Pehtaiho. Both the British and Americans have extensive commercial interests in the triangle bounded by the seacoast, the Great Wall, and the Lwan river. A British marine detachment was landed at Chinwangtao ten days ago to protect their nation's property.

A Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatch said that the 36th infantry brigade, under Maj. Gen. Yoshiaki Takata, and the 38d brigade, commanded by Maj. Gen. Kaoru Nakamura, had put to rout the Chinese defenders of Funing, who retreated southwestward toward Changli.

The attack apparently was planned as a means of hastening the Chinese evacuation of the district east of the Lwan river, a new center of Japanese operations south of the Great Wall and in North China proper.

Retreating Chinese Board Trains.

Several trains from Pehtaiho, Liushowying, Changli, and Lwanchow were said by the Rengo correspondent to have taken retreating Chinese troops aboard.

Earlier Japanese reports from south of the wall said that 500 Chinese were killed in a battle 12 miles southwest of Taitowying, with about 1,500 others fleeing toward Yungping. The reported engagements occurred about 20 miles south of the wall, into which area Japanese troops advanced from Chiehling pass, about 25 miles inland from the Yellow sea.

Expulsion of the Chinese, with the purpose of making the district a sort of buffer area for Jehol province, was said to be the Japanese motive in the triangle formed by the Great Wall and the Lwan river.

Foreigners who had gone to Pehtaiho to spend the Easter holidays hurriedly returned to Tientsin, although conditions in the Tientsin area were reported quiet.

Meanwhile, unidentified groups were distributing pamphlets in Tientsin urging public support for Manchukuo, the Japanese sponsored government in Manchuria.

THROWN BY HORSE.

Taylorville, Ill., April 16.—[Special.]—Alpha McWard was perhaps fatally injured when he was thrown from his race horse while exercising her. He suffered a fractured skull.

IGNORE WARNING, SO BOMB STOPS 2 DANCES IN CUBA

CARDENAS, Cuba, April 16.—(AP)—A skilfully placed bomb last midnight put an effective end to two dances being held near here.

Anonymous letters last week had given warning that the dances, one at the Varadero Beach Nautical club and the other at the Dos Rosas sugar mill [the property of Charles Hires of the Hires Root Beer company], must not be held. The warnings were ignored.

A loud explosion sounded at the height of the festivities and all lights went out. It was discovered the bomb had destroyed three transformers which fed current to the mill and the Nautical club.

DENIES THEORY THAT INFLATION AFFECTS TRADE

Cites Competition with U. S. Goods.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—[Special.]—Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the United States tariff commission, today disputed Garet Garrett's statements in a Saturday Evening Post article that Great Britain and other countries off the gold standard have been enabled by their depreciated currencies to flood the American market with cheap goods to the destruction of American industry. He said that increases in imports from such countries have been no greater than from gold standard countries.

Mr. O'Brien was asked if he had read the article. He said he had.

"I realize," he said, "that this depreciated currency propaganda has a certain plausibility just as the belief that the winters are growing warmer, in which the great Thomas Jefferson shared, and the view that the weather is sure to be cold when the moon is full, because on a cold clear night we see the moon as we would not on a foggy, misty night. There are many things that seem to be true in this world that will not bear investigation.

All the World Competing.

"Half the world, let us say, is off the gold standard. It is very severely competing for our markets. Half the world is on the gold standard. It, too, is very severely competing for our markets. The articles in which our importation increased in the last year were quite evenly divided between the two types of countries.

"Only last week we had a hearing on gloves in which the attorney for the higher duties pointed out a sensational increase in the imports from Germany—a country on the gold standard. If it had been a depreciated currency country, he would have told his story on that basis, and it would have looked convincing.

"The importation of wool felt hats from Italy is extremely disturbing at the present time and yet Italy is on the gold standard. The refined sugar from Cuba, against which the refiners are moving so vigorously for an increase in duty, comes from a country that is on the gold standard. The steel business professes itself greatly imperiled by the low price made by the imports from France, Germany, Belgium, and Luxembourg, all on the gold standard.

Follows Gold Standard.

"We have had several cases where the importations have changed. One in particular that I remember. England was the chief competing country when on the gold standard. About the time when she went off the thing shifted and a gold standard country is now the chief importer.

"The congressman who led the fight on the floor of the house for the depreciated currency legislation, Mr. Martin of Massachusetts, came to see me a few days ago with a bag sold at one of the department stores for 19 cents, brought in from Germany, which his Attleboro manufacturers said ought to sell for a dollar. If, perchance, this article had come from Japan, it would have been a corking example of what we suffer by countries being off the gold standard.

"Here are some important questions to ask yourself. First, would we have produced commodities at half the price had Bryan been elected in 1896 and given us a 50 cent dollar? If not why not?

"If so, should we not have elected him and enjoyed that advantage in the competition with the world?

Cites John Sherman.

"When John Sherman, of the Republican administration in the '70s took us back to the gold standard from a period in which it took from $2.60 to $1.14 [in my boyhood] to buy a gold dollar, did Secretary Sherman lessen our ability to compete in the trade rivalries of the world? Did he deprive us of an advantage, or a benefit? If so, what was he doing it for? And why should he be held up to praise as a great financier?

"If the state of Massachusetts should decide to make 24 inches a yard in all its trade and commercial transactions, would the other states which adhered to the 36 inch yard have a grievance against us? Would it be true that we would be producing cloth so much cheaper? Would you buy your overcoat made of this Massachusetts cloth; cheaper because we called 24 inches a yard?

"The great evil of this propaganda lies in the encouragement it gives to those who wish to take this country off the gold standard. Of course, if the short stick dollar is an advantage or benefit we ought to have it."

EFFICIENT G. O. P. POSTMASTERS TO KEEP THEIR JOBS

Farley Says He'll Observe Civil Service.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—(AP)—Notice was given job hungry Democrats today by Postmaster General Farley that efficient Republican postmasters will not be supplanted.

Turning his back on the policy of "to the victors belong the spoils," Farley said the party long had nurtured the civil service system of competitive examinations and declared "this administration will not abandon that high ground."

To several thousand Republican postmasters still in office and to many times that number of Democrats who want the jobs, Farley gave this message:

"No incumbent whose term has not yet expired and who has been rendering loyal and efficient service to the government need have the slightest fear of removal. It will be the policy of the postoffice department to allow every efficient postmaster to fill out his term."

Offices Not Mentioned.

Farley, who also is the administration's patronage dispenser, has not announced the party's policy as to other federal offices such as district attorneys, marshals, and collectors. They are not under civil service.

In the next few days the machinery for naming postmasters nevertheless is expected to be thrown into high gear. There are approximately 2,500 vacancies to be filled immediately out of a total of 15,032 positions. Postmasters are appointed for four years and some Republicans thus will remain in office until almost the close of the Roosevelt administration. No postmasters were confirmed, however, at the lame duck session beginning last December.

Tightening Examinations.

A study is now being made in the postoffice department under the direction of Joseph C. O'Mahoney, first assistant postmaster general, of the manner in which postmaster examinations have been conducted.

"As soon as this study has been completed," Farley said, "its result will be submitted to the civil service commission with the request that the regulations for the examinations be promulgated at the earliest opportunity."

Farley added that the department "has no intention of abandoning the historic custom of inviting the advice of members of congress with respect to qualifications of eligible applicants in the various congressional districts."

MICHIGAN YOUTH DIES FOLLOWING A SCHOOL FIGHT

Muskegon, Mich., April 16.—(AP)—A fight between two 17 year old boys in Fruitport last Thursday had a tragic culmination early today in the unexpected death of Myron Morgan, high school athlete, and Frank Smith, accused of inflicting the blow that caused his death, was held in jail here tonight.

Sheriff Adolph Charron, who was not notified of young Morgan's injury until after the boy's death, said he would ask for a warrant tomorrow charging Smith with manslaughter.

Two versions of the cause of the fight were given by witnesses. One was that Smith had teased Morgan over a tear in his trousers while a group of girls were passing the baseball park, where the trouble started. The other version was that the boys had quarreled over a baseball game.

Officers quoted witnesses as saying Smith struck Morgan on the head with a blackjack that his father once had carried as village marshal.

6 MEN INDICTED AS NIGHT RIDERS IN KENTUCKY

Smithland, Ky., April 16.—(AP)—A grand jury investigation of alleged night-riding in the vicinity of Tiline, in Livingston county, has resulted in indictments against six men. The indictments were returned here late yesterday. Names of the men indicted were not made public.

The men are accused of "banding and confederating together for the purpose of alarming and intimidating other persons."

"Night riders" are alleged to have whipped five persons and burned an automobile during the last few weeks. The grand jury was told the "riders" decided to "take the law into their own hands" to fight a wave of petty crime. From 75 to 100 masked "riders" composed the group.

Michigan Ave. Bridge Has Mishap; Traffic Held Up

Motor traffic on Michigan avenue was held up for nearly ten minutes last night when the bridge went out of order while allowing the outbound freighter, "Pan Schneider," through. The trouble was located in the locks, which lift the spans, and was repaired in six minutes.

JEWS DRAFT 3 REPRISAL PLANS AGAINST HITLER

New York, April 16.—(AP)—The Jewish court of arbitration made public today a message it sent all Jewish synagogues and societies in the city recommending that three "reprisals" be taken "if our battle against the uncivilized hordes of the Hitler régime is to be victorious." They are:

"1. Every Jewish traveler going for his summer vacation to Europe shall evade Germany and deprive the Hitlerites from receiving a few hundred million dollars . . . .

"2. Every Jew in the United States . . . shall ask the United States government not to recognize the German ambassador to Washington until there will be a statement from the Hitler government that the Jews of Germany will be given equal suffrage with the other natives or that they be permitted to leave that unfortunate country forthwith.

"3. Every Jewish businessman shall consider it his strongest weapon against the outrages in Germany to boycott German goods, and to refuse to accept shipments of German wares of all description."

Child, 4, Tries to Pet Colt, Kicked to Death by Mare

Billings, Mont, April 16.—(AP)—Four year old Donald Eugene Weber was kicked to death by an infuriated mare when he attempted to pet the animal's colt in the corral of his father's farm yard near here today.

SOCIALISTS CALL ON AUSTRIANS TO BACK REPUBLIC

VIENNA, April 16.—(AP)—The Social Democratic party closed a two-day conference here tonight with the adoption of a resolution appealing to all conscientious citizens to coöperate with the working class in defense of the democratic constitution.

The resolution described the political situation as "exceedingly serious" and called on workers to "prepare for all eventualities."

Party members also decided to organize May day demonstrations under the slogan "back to the constitution."

Arrest 20 Extremists in Spain for Blowing Up Poles

OVIEDO, Spain, April 16.—(AP)—Twenty alleged extremists were arrested today on charges of blowing up electric light poles at La Felguera.

FRENCH BISHOP FIGHTS FOR BAN ON CO-ED SCHOOL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COUTANCES, Normandy, France, April 16.—"Male school teachers cannot teach girls their future rôle of wife and mother. . . . Children in France are disconcertingly precocious," and to mix the two sexes in the public grade schools exposes them to grave moral perils.

With these arguments the bishop of Coutances and Avranches has started a crusade against what the French call "mixed schools." There are only 3,520 such schools in the land, but the good bishop says that is 3,520 too many.

La Semaine Religieuse—the Religious Weekly—of Coutances declares that the United States has tried coeducation, has found it a failure, and has abandoned its error.

Deputy's Faith in Parole System Goes with His $8

Helena, Mont., April 16.—(AP)—Garney Bryant, deputy clerk for the state board of examiners, says he has lost a bit of faith in the parole system. He told sheriff's officers that shortly after an ex-convict reported on his behavior to the board Bryant's topcoat and the $8 in it were missing. Authorities are looking for the paroled man.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

TAX INJUSTICES COMPARED.

There is no doubt that some, if not all, of the gentlemen supporting the Huebsch bill are sincere in their insistence that their 1928, 1929, and 1930 tax bills were grossly excessive. They say, and the record will bear most of them out, that they sought a review of their assessments but were denied it. Therefore, they argue with much plausibility, they should be given an opportunity now to contest their assessments before the county judge. Without some such review they are the victims of an arbitrary assessor from whose judgments of value there has been no appeal.

What these gentlemen overlook is the plain fact that not only their assessments but nearly every one's was oppressive and unjust. Tens of thousands of taxpayers who were also denied an opportunity to dispute the assessor's figures have paid their bills. At the last tabulation 85 per cent of the 1928 taxes had been collected. Of the 1929 taxes 73 per cent were paid; and of the 1930 taxes 60 per cent. Assuming, as these gentlemen do, that their bills of those years were excessive and would be reduced by the county judge if the facts were presented to him, they cannot escape the conclusion that the benefits they received would only add to the injustice already done to those who have paid. The payers constitute the majority in numbers and amounts involved, and there is no slightest evidence that they were treated more considerately by the assessor than those who are still resisting.

There is no doubt that the tax gouging in this community has been outrageous and that protests are merited, but to attempt to correct the evil by doing an even greater injustice to the citizens who have shown the greatest loyalty to the community would be even more outrageous. To correct one wrong by doing a greater one is indefensible.

There is also a practical difficulty to be considered. If the county judge is now to constitute himself a board of review to hear tens of thousands of complaints, many of them involving intricate calculations of value, the work will occupy him for months, if not, indeed, for years. Meanwhile every encouragement will have been given to property owners to refuse to pay their current bills. Taxpayers will not be slow to learn that refusal to pay is profitable. Forty-four per cent of the current taxes are now delinquent; inevitably that proportion will rise if the tax strikers and other delinquents under previous levies are given any encouragement.

The real remedy lies in the future rather than in the past. The assessing officials and the tax spending officials must be forced to accept the view that taxes cannot exceed the capacity and willingness of property owners to pay. The tendency in the past has been to give the tax eaters' imaginations free rein in their budget making and extort the sums appropriated by a process of legalized burglary. As long as the fanciful values of the boom era lasted the process could work. Since the depression set in the machinery has broken down. It will not be restored to usefulness until spending and assessing officials both accept the fact that property cannot bear the burdens which have been thrust upon it.

SENATOR LONG STOPS A BRICK.

Senator Huey Long, finding his own ox gored, tells the Conscript Fathers that it is profoundly unjust to grant privilege to any attacks upon a senator in a petition laid before that respectable body. Mr. Long's opponents in Louisiana have asked the senate to fire him and have set forth the causes. The charges affect the senator's political and personal honor and he admits that they are privileged because they have been submitted to the senate. Any newspaper may print them and there is nothing Mr. Long can do about it except make his answer.

The senator for Louisiana exercises his own privileges of immunity to call his opponents rogues and rascals. He has no natural restraints and as a senator he is checked by no legal ones when he talks from his place in that body. Recently he invoked these immunities to protect himself from the legal consequences of slanders with which he sought to injure another man. The injustice, if any, done Mr. Long in the petition asking that he be expelled must be recognized as of the class known as glorious. The loud-mouthed little boy has found that he must take it as well as give it.

The immunities enjoyed by members of congress have an origin not directly related to their present effects. They were protections against the king. When the English revolution against the Stuarts was getting headway in parliament the king sought to arrest members who spoke plainly, and the members sought to establish their right to speak their minds and escape the Tower. Even the censorship which prohibited the publication of parliamentary debates was intended to keep evidence from reaching Whitehall which might cause trouble at Westminster.

Eventually parliament made good its immunities, but not until one of its most distinguished revolutionaries had died in the Tower for what he said in the hall, and not until others had been glad Westminster was on the water. They escaped by boat as Charles and his swordsmen came breaking in. It was a good thing to have the seat of authority, in days when roads were bad, on a water highway. The king could get out of Whitehall by barge and boatmen could make an escape possible from Westminster. Incidentally, the White House was once closer to the banks of the Potomac, but the only time an American President had to take to the hills he went in the saddle.

The immunities which were once intended to protect the representatives of the people from the tyranny of a monarch are now used to protect those representatives from responsibility to persons they injure by their privileged remarks in their official place. They do not gain much sympathy when a similar privilege comes through the window in the form of a brick. Mr. Long might as well grin and bear it. His fellow citizens can.

LIBERTIES LOANED, NOT LOST.

Former Chief Justice Thompson took advantage of a Jefferson birthday celebration to deliver some very timely admonition upon recent legislation and government activities. Recognizing the imperative duty of dealing with the abnormal conditions of the day, he reminds his fellow countrymen that the principles suspended in crises retain their validity nevertheless. "In emergencies such as we are now experiencing," he said, "we are always endangering the liberties of the people and frequently have advocated doctrines of government dangerous to the freedom of this country." But when the pressure of necessity has passed the American people have returned to their allegiance to principles and methods of Americanism, if it may be said they ever really departed from them.

The American people are a practical people, with a genius developed from their pioneer life for adjustment to what Kipling in his memorable poem, "The American," called "the instant need of things." Yet we have never lacked loyalty to the underlying principles of our American conception of a free government and a free society. This loyalty has survived the temporary diversions which critical necessity has forced upon us. Were it not for that historic fact and for our faith that American principles are stronger than disaster we might very well be alarmed and disheartened by the course of recent legislation and the adoption of proposals of immediate relief which seem to take us far from the American anchorage. Certainly it would be astounding that the leadership of a party founded by Thomas Jefferson and presumably devoted to his ideas should seem to be engaged in destroying the structure of democratic freedom of which he was one of the chief architects. If the projects of the present government are to be taken as permanent the American government of Jefferson has gone like a whiff of smoke. The absence of criticism and challenge does not mean that Americanism has suddenly given way to socialism, although never in our history has the intervention of the state been more masterful or the expansion of government power so vast as at this moment. The American is silent because he recognizes the instant need of things and is willing to experiment with measures which his government is trying out in a crisis. That men like Judge Thompson, indoctrinated Democrats, are acquiescing in and even supporting these emergency measures, that all Americans anxiously hope they will be effectual for the relief of critical and abnormal conditions, is possible only on the assumption that they are temporary, are for a special emergency, are a departure to deal with a departure.

The American people do not forget, even at this time, that for nearly a century and a half American principles and institutions have inspired and effected progress and prosperity beyond that ever attained by any other people, and in this consciousness, determined as they are to conquer their present difficulties by any means required, they look confidently to the survival and restoration of the American scheme of government and social order. The excesses and perversion which brought us widespread suffering are not in the American scheme, but a betrayal of it. The American people, as Judge Thompson reminds them, have always loaned their liberties for the preservation of the nation, but it has not been a gift to any overruling power. The liberties surrendered are a trust to government and the people will see to it that they are restored to them.

Editorial of the Day

PROHIBITION IN VIRGINIA.

[Richmond News-Leader.]

Very clearly and very positively Senator Byrd sets forth his views on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. In a letter to a Winchester constituent he states that he intends to vote for repeal when the issue is put before the people of Virginia. He says further that he thinks the referendum should be on a state-wide basis and not by legislative districts.

We cannot find in Mr. Byrd's letter, however, anything that commits him to revision of the state dry law. He refers, to be sure, to plans of liquor control, but he does not say that he favors trying any one of them in Virginia. In all probability he has not yet made up his mind whether Virginia should abandon state prohibition. If he has not, he is by no means alone. Thousands in Virginia are of that state of mind. They want to see the end of national prohibition because they regard it as a scandalous failure. Beyond that they are undecided.

Manifestly it means a great deal to the cause of repeal in Virginia to have Mr. Byrd in favor of it. His advocacy of a referendum on a state-wide basis rather than by districts will simplify the fight on that issue. But while the opponents of the eighteenth amendment will be satisfied and gratified on this point, it seems to us of the greatest importance that they recognize where Mr. Byrd's support begins and where it ends. The point most to be stressed is his tactful suggestion that repeal be not involved in other issues. Doubtless Mr. Byrd shares the feeling that this is necessary to assure Virginia's vote for repeal. In a close contest his supporters probably will insist that a referendum on state prohibition be not tied up with the referendum on repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Of course, the situation may be changed somewhat if thirty-six states have acted for repeal before the general assembly of Virginia meets next January; but if the question is still in doubt then, those who favor the revision of the state dry laws are not justified in taking Mr. Byrd's support for granted on the strength of anything he has thus far said. A careful reading of his letter will show that he does not commit himself on state liquor policy in any way.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

GOOD MR. FARLEY has given his approval to the return to two cent postage, but only for mail within the city limits. That won't help us much, Mr. Farley; it only helps the tax people, the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, to say nothing of the tailor and the grocery man, who are the only ones inside the city limits who write to us. Other people call us up on the telephone, while the only people who write us letters, Uncle Arthur, Aunt Laura, Jennifer Jean, and Cousin Margie, all live far away from the busy town and will still have to cough up three cents whenever they write us. If it's all the same to you, Mr. Farley, we would rather you reduced the price of stamps on letters from out of town and kept the three cent rates for city postage. We would still get as many duns and circulars, probably, but it would be such a joy to know they had to pay more postage than Aunt Laura or Uncle Arthur.

AND NOW that the Easter parade is over there doesn't seem much chance of wearing the lovely shining silk high hat very soon again except at a comical costume ball or a funeral.

THE IMMORTAL HOPE.

Say not that death is king, that night is lord,
That loveliness is passing, beauty dies;
Nor tell me hope's a vain, deceptive dream
Fate lends to life, a pleasing, luring gleam
To light awhile the earth's despondent skies,
Till death brings swift and sure its dread reward.
Say not that youth deceives, but age is true,
That roses quickly pass, while cypress bides,
That happiness is foolish, grief is wise,
That stubborn dust shall choke our human cries.
Death tells new worlds, and life immortal hides
Beyond the veil, which shall all wrongs undo.
This was the tale God breathed to me at dawn,
When flooding sunrise told that night was gone.

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

WE'RE GLAD we've such a good man as Ed Kelly for mayor, but, heck, what's the use? Look what happens to Democratic mayors. It won't be a week before Franklin Delano appoints Mayor Kelly as ambassador or minister to some country or other. All right, let the city council get busy and elect new mayors as fast as Franklin Delano grabs 'em off.

"WHY NOT THE FRENCH RIVIERA for Your Vacation This Summer?" why nots a steamship circular in our mail yesterday. Well, there are many reasons, but one is that while we have examined many transfer slips given us by the Chicago Street Railroad company we find none good for travel to the French Riviera. But the first time we get a slip saying we can transfer to the French Riviera, by heck! that's where we'll go for our vacation.

IT WAS WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN called another noble experiment—speaking of the plan of the minister's wife in Missouri to retain the affections of her adored husband. He was in love with a young thing in the village and the minister's wife decided the way to end the affair would be to invite the young thing to come to her house and live there for a month. She said she thought the daily sight of her two young children and her deep devotion ar wife and mother would make the young thing see the error of her ways and give the minister up.

She also probably thought if her husband saw the bewitching young thing around the house day after day in mussed up wrapper and cold cream on her face and chewing gum busily and reading detective stories the bloom would be knocked off the peach and he would finally tell the young thing to get thell outten there.

But not at all. The two became even more deeply enamored of each other and finally announced they would leave the dear old home and go forth into the great wide world together. So friend wife drove them in her own automobile when they got ready to elope and probably fixed up a nice cold lunch for them and waved good-by with a happy smile in spite of the blinding tears.

Which all goes to prove that the gentle method is of no use in trying to deal with this old problem. Perhaps the old and well tested method of tearing out a couple of handfuls of the young thing's hair and lamming the recreant husband over the bean with a frying pan is the best after all.

All noble experiments seem to come to the same end. We return eventually to the path which mankind has always trod.

WALTZ TIME.

Oh, play once again that music sublime,
The tune which they played on the night you were mine;
Oh, say once again that nothing can change,
That no one on Earth could our love estrange.

That through all the days, and down all the years,
Because I have you I'll know no more tears;
That we will build dreams, make plans just for two,
And ever and always I will have you.

Oh, say that it matters; that life without me
Would be just as empty as my life would be
If I should lose you from the fabric of days,
To walk all alone down life's difficult ways;

Oh, say that you're glad that our love came to pass,
That this is a love which will linger and last;
But don't spoil the glamour of things that we do
By asking again that I marry you.

BLOOD PRESSURE AND EMOTIONS.

In certain cases of high blood pressure the emotions seem to be of minor importance. In these cases the blood vessel walls are thick, rigid, and inelastic and the heart is under considerable strain in keeping the blood flow up to requirements. The principal trouble is organic rather than emotional.

However, even in this kind, one group of emotions must be guarded against. It is in just this type of trouble that apoplexy is most likely to occur, and violent anger, excitement, and other violent emotion is one of the chief reasons for the blood vessel breaks that result in apoplexy.

Emotion of various kinds plays an important part in the regular day's work of the ordinary case of high blood pressure. A simple, rough standard by which to determine whether a given case belongs to the organic or the emotional group is the amount of fluctuation in the systolic pressure. If the systolic pressure in a given case runs rather uniform, never varying greatly, the probability is that the case belongs to the organic class. If, on the other hand, the readings vary much, both with or without treatment, the probability is the case belongs in the emotional group.

Osler once recommended that the man with high blood pressure should shift his performance from the Lusitania type to that of a ten knot tramp schooner. White recommended that every person with high blood pressure should quit the strenuous life and thereafter lead what he termed the placid, rural life. All of which is well enough to talk about, but getting the prescription filled is another matter. At that, there is no question but that worry, anxiety, fear, and tension are important in causing high blood pressure and in maintaining it. It follows that much the best treatment for persons with high pressure of this type is training in the placid life.

There is a close relationship between blood pressure and the emotional disturbances that go under the names of several insanities. If it were the custom in insane asylums to take the pressure of every patient daily or at stated intervals, the results would give much light on blood pressure, on the one hand, and insanities on the other. Incidentally it would supply valuable pointers as to the improvement or lack of improvement of the individual case.

In the excitable patients and those with violent emotions doubtless a large proportion would be found with high blood pressure. Quieting them emotionally would lower their blood pressures and lowering their systolic pressures would quiet them.

PARAMNESIA.

W. A. C. writes: Your recent articles on paramnesia have attracted me. As a slight contribution I wonder how many of such impressions come through the nose. Some years ago I visited New York for the first time. I was quite interested in seeing the Brooklyn bridge and, while along the water front, was struck with the overwhelming impression I had of having been there before. I was eventually able to account for this. For years it has been my custom to swim from a raft at the foot of a bridge along the Allegheny river. I found when near the water at New York that the docks gave forth a similar rafty smell such as I had been used to get at home. The effect was such as to convey the impression of having been to the Brooklyn bridge before.

MAKING A WILL.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would you be so kind as to publish some form of making out a will? I possess a small estate and would like to draw up a will. Please give details as to the filing of same.

Y. R.

We ordinarily advise the employment of an attorney in the drafting and execution of a will, since even where the inquirer's letter states that the only provision is to give the entire estate to his surviving spouse, it is possible that alternative plans ought to be discussed. For example, the inquirer may not know that the inheritance tax would be much lower if he included his children instead of letting the estate go to his wife and then be given by her to his children. If you are sure that there are no such factors in your case and that you can comply with the wording of the attestation clause, it might be safe for you to use one of the printed forms which you can secure from a stationer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ALLEY NOW CLEAN.

Chicago, April 12.—[Friend of the People.]—I wish to register a complaint against the very insanitary and unhealthy condition of our alley. It has not been cleaned since before the snowstorm and is now in a condition that should not be allowed to continue. The garbage cans are filled and overflowing. There are a great many storekeepers and landlords who have no receptacles of any kind for their garbage and they simply "dump" it in the alley. F. G.

Report is made that service was given in alley referred to last week and again this week; that a survey was made of the entire block and, where necessary, notices served to provide proper receptacles for the accommodation of refuse output and householders were warned to stop further dumping. Location will be kept under observation to see that notices are complied with.

CHICAGO.—By no means the least important feature of the World's Columbian exposition will be the world's congresses to be held each week during its existence. The intention of these congresses is to bring together at Chicago the leaders of human progress from the various countries of the world during the season of the exposition, for the purpose of mutual acquaintance and to review the achievements which have already been made by the various bodies forming these congresses.

Three brawny Turks in salmon colored skirts drawn to ruffles at the waist kept the loitering Yankee crowd away from the gate that led into the Streets of Cairo yesterday [Sunday]. The good Moslems had baseball bats in their hands and were perfumed liberally with attar of roses. Persons with too ardent an interest in old Cairo to heed the frowns of the Moslems were quietly lifted by the trio of Turks and tossed back over the gates.

The whole of yesterday afternoon people were massed against the ropes and bamboo slatting which bounded the Esquimaux village. Down the way to the east the Esquimaux town was buried in a deep quiet, although curious multitudes hung around the walls and grumbled at the notices which warned off all visitors. Sunday was the Esquimaux's day off and the fat old fellows feasted on a choice brand of whale oil in as utter seclusion as if they were hidden away on a glacial point in Hudson's bay.

England will show at the Fair the largest lump of coal ever mined. It is a monster specimen of the Lancashire diamond. It is what the English call a cob of cannel coal and weighs 11 English tons and 14 hundredweight. It contains 350 cubic feet and would yield 182,344 cubic feet of gas, equal to 25,469 pounds of sperm. A large force of men worked nine months in hewing out the big block and removing it to the surface. When the cob was taken from the mine it weighed over sixteen tons, and because of difficulty in handling was clipped down to its present size.

LONDON.—The "big push" of the allies in France flared into a continuous battle covering nearly every mile of the long line from the North sea to the Swiss border. Between Soissons and Reims the French are engaged in a terrific struggle, driving forward in a solid mass against the German lines on a front of 25 miles. Their way paved by ten days of "drum fire," the troops of Gen. Nivelle swept forward, carrying all of the first line of German positions between Soissons and Craonne. They also took the second line positions south of Juvincourt, east of Craonne, reached the outskirts of Bermericourt, and advanced up the Aisne canal at Loivre and Courcy. During these operations, the official report issued in Paris says, the French captured 10,000 Germans and a vast amount of war material. The British are continuing their pressure on both Lens and St. Quentin, but they were held up yesterday by a great storm. During the fighting last night Gen. Haig's men captured the village of Villeret and made further progress to the northwest of Lens.

U. S. WAR ACTIVITIES—Secretary Houston will seek power to fix maximum and minimum prices on food and for food distributing agencies to curb middlemen. President Wilson stands firm behind the army conscription plan as the house military committee balks; urges senate to act quickly. Chicago packers practically place plants at disposal of government. President Wilson in proclamation warns against acts of treason against United States, pointing out that the extreme penalty is death. Senate finance committee reports $7,000,000,000 war revenue bill substantially as it passed the house April 14. One hundred million dollar "war chest" now open to President.

NEW YORK.—The unostentatious, oftentimes unknown, charities that "Diamond Jim" Brady, who was buried today, maintained in his life will be completed publicly tomorrow when his will is opened. It will be found that his estate runs around $4,000,000 or $5,000,000, the greater part of which is left for charitable purposes. The magnificent jewel collection that gave Mr. Brady his sobriquet, and which was valued at about $1,800,000, is to be sold.

HOGS AND LOGARITHMS.

Chicago, April 12.—Schools of agriculture for years have been trying to help the farmer with science. Biology, geology, chemistry and all the subsciences have been set at the service of him who would get more bushels out of acres or more fat out of corn. But it remained for a fellow with a double barreled Bible name—Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel—to introduce trigonometry and calculus into the hog yard. As it is the same gentleman who has concocted the present official plan to end the depression in farming, his earlier accomplishments in mathematical mysticism are worth considering.

As an employé of the United States department of agriculture Dr. Ezekiel worked out a formula to enable any farmer to find out for himself whether the future price to be realized from a fatted hog would pay for the corn to fatten him. The formula was as follows:

Log X11 — 0.09443 log X1 +0.15883 log X2 —0.21986 log X3 —0.28675 log X4 —0.07250 log X5 +2.23777 log X6 —0.04759 log X7 +0.22659 log X8 —0.03036 X9 +1.83099 log X10 —K.

By substituting the appropriate figures in the formula, any farmer could tell at once whether it was more profitable to eat roast suckling pig today or to send a porker to Armour's five months hence. The book of logarithms became as indispensable in successful hog raising as the sty.

One philosophical speculation led to another, and before long the group of which Dr. Ezekiel was a member was making forecasts of crop prices for the farmer. This was all right while the forecast was of rising prices. When the soothsayers said lower prices were coming the practice was stopped.

However, the modern prophet Ezekiel was not finished. When the great experiment in price stabilization came to be undertaken by the United States government the federal farm board selected as one of its chief advisers the same Mordecai Ezekiel.

There is no record to show that the farm board followed implicitly the policies laid out by Dr. Ezekiel and his staff. But it is established that while employing Dr. Ezekiel as a leading adviser the farm board pursued a program which resulted in a loss of $350,000,000 to the government and the ruin of the farming industry of this country. THE LAW OF DIVORCE.

Chicago, April 2.—In commenting on the New York divorce law situation, your New York correspondent says: "Up to a year or two ago Mexico got a share of the divorce business that might ordinarily have fallen to the New York courts had the laws here been a bit more up to date." Is that to mean that the New York courts are in a competitive business and that in order to keep the trade at home the grounds should be broadened so that the customers should seek their divorces on a "Buy American" plan?

Isn't it a bit blasphemous, too, to say that since the New York divorce law dates back to the Bible, steps should be taken to correct the evils to which the law is therefore subjected? As a matter of fact the New York law is not as strict as the Bible, which absolutely prohibits divorce "a vinculo" for any cause.

When your New York correspondent laments that under the New York law, which allows divorce only for adultery, people who "agree to disagree and passionately desire their freedom" have to resort to perjury and collusion in order to get a divorce, he fails to give any thought whatever to the social and moral consequences of making the divorce laws any easier than they are at present. Would he have us sanction what would ultimately result only in free marriage? If we are to grant divorces whenever a person can show as tenuous a ground as "cruel and inhuman treatment" [a most elastic formula which really defines nothing], we will no longer have any such thing as an institution of marriage, but in substitution a filthy business of divorce.

If there is anything that this country needs, especially in the field of domestic relations, it is a return to the Bible rather than a retreat from it. The Bible, in this respect, simply restates a fundamental principle of ethics, as found in the moral or natural law, dictated by conscience and the nature of man, and promulgated by his reason.

AGE AND YOUTH FIGHT FOR RULE OF TINY ANDORRA

24 Notables Prepare for Counter Revolution.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BARCELONA, April 16.—A counter revolution is brewing in the tiny feudal state of Andorra, where youthful Andorrans last week successfully conducted a sixty minute revolution changing the order of things several centuries old. Led by Dr. Picart they stormed the capitol building and forced the parliament of 24 notables to grant them a vote and open parliamentary sessions to the public—two things unheard of in Andorran history.

The notables, however, having mounted their mules and betaken themselves once more to their mountain villages beyond reach of the impetuous youth, have been thinking things over. Now word has gone out they intend to repudiate their action on the plea they were impelled to it by force.

Notables Are the Militia.

In one sense the notables have the advantage because they constitute the country's militia, each man being an officer. This militia is supposed to meet every two years in parade, but the captain general, who is also judge and chief of police and a few other things, has complained frequently that whenever he has attempted to mobilize the militia its personnel could not be found or were too busy to answer the summons.

The youthful Andorrans who have their revolutionary headquarters in Barcelona, where there is a whole colony of their expatriated fellows, upon hearing of the counter revolution, resolved to send a revolutionary committee into the country, kidnap the notables and give them the choice of seeing reason or being tossed into the river.

It would seem the next move toward legalizing the universal suffrage decree would be its presentation to the co-princes by a committee of notables headed by the Andorran president. One of the princes is the Spanish bishop of Urgel and the other the president of France.

Demand Action Now.

The plan of the notables is to refuse to present the decree to the princes. The young Andorrans, however, demand immediate action and immediate general elections. They are threatening if the notables don't hasten the elections they will invade the country and call elections themselves. This is not an idle threat, for while only sixty young Andorrans started the revolution there are about 5,000 who might be enlisted to join the movement.

Andoora is in the peculiar situation of having more citizens living outside the country than within it for the internal population is not more than 3,000, which is about all the land will support. It is estimated that in Barcelona alone there are more than 1,000 male Andorrans now disfranchised while there are 2,000 living in France in a single colony on the other side of the mountains.

If things come to a clash two revolutionary armies could be mobilized attacking the country from both sides. Should the conflict be peaceably settled expatriated Andorrans would have another problem to solve in the question of casting their votes. There are not enough houses in Andorra to shelter all the citizens should they move there in a body to vote.

HUNTERS AMAZED AT SEAL TOTAL FOR THIS YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, April 16.—Veteran seal hunters assert that never have they seen such a large number of seals as there are in this vicinity this year. They explain that in the last five years sealing voyages have had such small takes that many breeding seals escaped and swelled the herd.

It is reported that the steamer Ungava is about to set out for port loaded with about 60,000 pelts. This would exceed the cargo of the Imogene, which put into St. John's yesterday with a record load of 56,000 pelts.

Thousands of seals are being killed and hauled ashore by landsmen who walk out on ice that extends ten miles to sea. Favorable winds and the south flowing arctic current have combined to swing ice floes close to shore from Conception bay south to Cape Spear.

They were driving from Boston to Chicago to keep a stage engagement.

FASCISTI FORMED IN ZEALAND; AIM IS DICTATORSHIP

Leaders Plan to Destroy Parliamentary Rule.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUCKLAND, N. Z., April 16.—New Zealand, which has been drifting steadily towards the right in the last two years, has taken a long stride towards fascism with the organization of the Legion, a South Seas equivalent of the Italian Black Shirts.

The Legion, secret, competent, organized by outstanding citizens, still maintains silence about its aims save one. It confesses openly that it means to alter the whole machinery of government.

The new body grows from a widespread feeling that the present governmental methods have failed, that all political parties must be swept out and that men must be put in their place who will act along a plan for the restoration of this country to stability. The Legion's goal, a membership of 400,000, will enable it to carry out the detailed plan which is now being drawn up by its leaders, it is declared.

Led by a Surgeon.

These leaders are nationally known. The principal spokesman is Dr. R. Campbell Begg, one time president of the New Zealand Medical association and a leading surgeon. Another prominent name is that of George W. Shirtcliffs, business man, chairman of the council of scientific and industrial research and head of the economy commission appointed by the government last year to pare budgetary expenditure. The others are being kept secret until after a definite policy is framed.

The headquarters of the Legion are also unknown. From these headquarters, however, issue confidential bulletins for legionnaires. These bulletins frankly admit that the organization means to end the present parliamentary methods, that it intends to root out all members who are swayed by regional or sectional methods, that it will swamp the house of representatives with its own candidates and that it means to "advise and coöperate with" these new members responsive to its will.

No New Political Party.

It is not the intention to form a new political party. The Legion has no use for parties. It means to capture the machinery of government and use it in a manner to establish absolute dictatorship. One of the bulletins said there is no intention to allow members of parliament to delay legislation which is considered necessary. In other words, the Legion means not only to take control of the parliamentary machine but to wipe out all opposition.

The movement springs from the very depths of the national spirit. Everywhere in the past year has been heard the cry that "parliament has failed." Everywhere people are signing the enrollment cards of the Legion, paying a small entrance fee and taking the oath to uphold the country's constitution and remain loyal to the objects of the body, as yet undisclosed. The oath to uphold the constitution of the country is rather curious, since the Legion seeks to smash that constitution to pieces.

In its inception the Legion is a move by the more wealthy members of the community, but its support comes from all ranks. Allied with the feeling that parliament has failed is a genuine desire to abandon the track of socialism, which is held to have been responsible for the precarious position in which this country finds itself today, and return to the older ideas of government.

City Rejects Self-Government.

Symptomatic of the national spirit is the case of Napier, the Hawke's Bay city which was wrecked by an earthquake two years ago. Since the disaster Napier has been controlled by a government appointed commission, and what is surely the first case of an Anglo-Saxon community refusing self-government has just been recorded here. Leading citizens of Napier promoted a widely signed petition to the government not to end the commission, which was due for termination. The citizens do not desire to return to government by locally elected bodies, for the commission has proved so efficient and economical, they say, that they have had their minds relieved of all troubles of government.

Along with its plans for taking the government out of the hands of the present interests, the Legion has mapped an elaborate scheme of propaganda aimed at winning and holding public support for its scheme of rehabilitating New Zealand. Confident that 400,000 votes will be enough to sway the result of any election, and certain that its adherents will accept the decisions of the national council of the movement, it will, nevertheless, labor unceasingly to convince doubters that everything is being done for the best, its leaders say.

IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY CALLS ON YOUTH TO REVOLT

1916 Easter Rebellion Is Celebrated.

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 16.—The anniversary of the Easter rebellion of 1916 was celebrated today by the Irish Republican army throughout the Free State. No government leaders associated themselves with the celebrations. All speakers were Republican army leaders or Sinn Fein officials.

A statement from the Republican army council was read at all rallies. It pointed out that the advent of President Eamon de Valera's government had not advanced the republican cause.

"The English connection remains and representatives of the Free State government take part in empire conferences," the statement said. "The republic still fails to function and there is danger of a revised treaty taking the place of the treaty of surrender signed in 1921.

Youth Urged to Unite.

"Nothing can be done until the young men of the country unite in determination to assert Irish sovereignty by force. They must insist on the right to arm and denial must be given the lie that the Republican army is against religion or is an anti-God organization. The army stands definitely for making the nation's resources and wealth available for the whole people and to make possible public ownership of means of production and distribution."

Demands were renewed for a boycott of British goods and attacks upon internal enemies of Irish freedom were urged. Members of the Republican army marched in military formation in several celebrations, but there was no disorder. Five thousand paraded in Dublin and decorated the graves of those Republicans killed in the Easter uprising.

Parade in Ulster; Defy Ban.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, April 16.—(AP)—The Ulster government's prohibition of exercises to commemorate previous Easter uprising was effective today except in County Tyrone.

There, despite extraordinary precautions, a parade of 200 members of the Irish republican army was conducted to the Mount Joy-Coal island cemetery where prayers were recited in Irish.

Joseph McGurk of Belfast started to deliver an oration, but police arrived in time to interrupt him. McGurk was taken to the police station.

SMUGGLER FALLS 8 STORIES, DIES FLEEING ARREST

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—Edward [Big Ed] Horstman, 35 years old, a South Carolina rum smuggler, dropped eight floors to his death today trying to escape from his eighth floor room in a hotel when detectives with a warrant for his arrest started pounding at the door.

Horstman, little known in these parts, was something of an underworld figure in the south Atlantic states, according to the police. He was indicted in South Carolina as one of the principals in a rum smuggling plot and had been traced to New York by Samuel Gershon, an agent for the department of justice.

40 OF EVERY 100 1933 CRIMINALS IN U. S. UNDER 25

One Out of Every Five Is Less than 21.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—[Special.] — American youth was held chiefly responsible for the nation's crime in statistics released by the department of justice today.

Forty per cent of the crime records examined by the bureau of investigation of the department pertained to persons less than 25 years of age.

"Persons 19 years of age still lead the nation's crime procession as revealed by statistics compiled from finger print cards received in the United States bureau of investigation from Jan. 31, 1933, to March 31, 1933," the department announced.

Many in Their Teens.

"Treading hard on the heels of those delinquents in the last year of their teens are persons under 21 years of age who count for one of each five whose arrest records were examined."

During the first three months of 1933 the bureau of investigation examined 80,785 arrest records as evidenced by the finger print cards received by its identification division.

"In the past," the summary asserted, "the number of persons arrested who were 19 years of age has exceeded the number arrested for any other age group, and the same is true for the first quarter of 1932."

Crimes Are Classified.

The following table shows the percentage of the total number of persons arrested who were under 21 years of age in those instances where the proportion of youthful offenders was high:

Automobile theft	45.8
Burglary	38.8
Robbery	27.9
Rape	26.7
Larceny	26.4

These figures indicate that automobile theft is an offense which is particularly characteristic of youth, and so also is the offense of burglary, although in somewhat less pronounced degree.

The survey showed that persons under 25 years of age constituted 40 per cent of those whose arrest records were examined, and persons between 25 and 29 accounted for approximately 19 per cent of the total number arrested.

Persons in this group, however, were not predominant among the arrests for any particular offense.

Many Robbery Charges.

Other details of the report follow:

"Almost one-third of the total arrests were for disorderly conduct, drunkenness, and vagrancy, or for suspicion and investigation. The arrests on these charges total 24,842. Of the remaining arrests over one-half were for the offense of larceny-theft, burglary, robbery, and assault. The number of arrests for each of these offenses is as follows:

"Most of the persons arrested were males, females numbering only 5,221 [6.5 per cent]. For the offenses of larceny and homicide and violations of the liquor laws, the percentage of females arrested to the total number of females arrested exceeded the corresponding per centages for males.

SOUND PICTURES OF THE POPE ARE SHOWN IN N. Y.

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—Hundreds of Catholic clergymen and prominent laymen of the New York archdiocese were in the audience of more than 3,000 persons that witnessed the world première at Carnegie hall tonight of "The Pope Speaks," a sound motion picture depicting intimate glimpses of Pius XI. since he became pope in 1922, as well as other scenes of Vatican City, Rome, and the Eucharistic congress in Dublin last summer.

The film was made with the pope's permission. It shows many extraordinary views of St. Peter's cathedral, the Vatican gardens and library, and some of the famous art works and other treasures in those places. The showing took more than two hours.

The highlights of the picture were scenes of Pope Pius XI. opening the holy door at St. Peter's in 1925 and of various other occasions in which he addressed and extended his blessing to huge crowds of pilgrims in Vatican City. His addresses were translated into English, but his words of blessing were recorded originally.

The picture will be featured at the Chicago World's Fair.

FRANCE TO MARK CENTENNIAL OF POTATO DELICACY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. GERMAIN EN LAYE, France, April 16.—This erstwhile royal city in 1937 will celebrate the centenary of "pommes soufflées," and the fact that the date is four years away indicates how much importance the French attach to the potato delicacy. The anniversary coincides with that of France's first railroad.

Parliament, fearing accidents, refused Louis Philippe, the "citizen king," permisison to ride the first train and he came here by coach to welcome the distinguished passengers and attend the banquet prepared by Collinet, the great chef.

The king was a lover of French fried potatoes and the chef planned to serve them. But the train was late. Collinet feared his potatoes would dry up, so he took them off the fire. When his majesty was announced the chef put his potatoes back into butter on the fire. Presto! A miracle. The upper crush dilated then turned golden, and Collinet became the inventor of pommes soufflées.

CHILE PIQUED BY U. S. NAVY TESTS CLOSE TO COAST

Lack of Courtesy and Tact Is Charged.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 16.—The trial dash to south Pacific waters of the latest constructed United States cruiser Indianapolis, accompanied by the destroyer Babbitt, caused a furore in Chilean government quarters.

It was alleged that the warships anchored in territorial waters and for two days raced up and down the coast, in full view of Valparaiso, Coquimbo, and other ports, firing big guns and catapulting seaplanes, without officially intimating their presence to the Chilean authorities. Only a doubt regarding international law requirements prevented a formal Chilean protest.

Tell of War Trials.

The Indianapolis and Babbitt were first seen off Point Lengua Vaca, four miles from Tongoy naval harbor. John Collyer, a Chile-American telephone engineer, who visited them in a sailboat, declared that they were anchored three miles from shore. This was later confirmed by the maritime governor, who added that the ships were apparently engaged in war trials.

The next day seaplanes which were catapulted from the cruiser droned down the coast, while fishermen claimed that torpedo practice was engaged in "not far from land." The firing was audible ashore. The planes, it was stated, circled over and around the guano islands near Coquimbo several times.

In view of the pique displayed by the newspapers in reporting the incidents the director general of naval intelligence sent a radio message to the American ships asking if they were in difficulties. If so, Chilean assistance was available, they were told. This admittedly was nothing but a sarcastic reminder that the Chilean naval authorities were aware that the Americans were off the coast. The Indianapolis replied that they were merely exercising in south Pacific waters and thanked the Chileans for their offer.

Allege Lack of Courtesy.

The newspapers, notably La Union, commented adversely on the visit, alleging "lack of tact and courtesy." La Union suggested that the maneuvers meant that the United States is studying possible naval bases in the south Pacific or considering raid possibilities in case of war with Japan.

El Diario Ilustrado stated:

"However one looks on the incident, and whatever the foreign warships were doing in our waters, elementary courtesy demanded that Chile should have been warned in advance of the visit."

El Imparcial, in an editorial entitled "An Error of Procedure," stated:

"The visit of the Indianapolis and Babbitt was mysterious, ambiguous, and inopportune. Foreign warships have no right to fire guns and torpedoes and launch battle planes along a friendly coast line. In any case, it puts American companies who have been in conflict with the Chilean government in an uncomfortable situation."

AGUINALDO HITS FREEDOM LAW FOR PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., April 17.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, former insurrecto leader, now an opponent of the Hawes-Cutting independence act, spoke in Bulacan province today, attacking the measure which was passed by congress over the veto of former President Hoover.

Declaring changes in the Hawes-Cutting act are imperative to make it acceptable to Filipinos, he said provisions reserving naval bases in the islands, which he termed useless for defensive purposes, would inhibit plans for neutralization of the islands.

Gen. Aguinaldo said he believed the proper solution would be to apply a short term interim of possibly four years, during which no restrictions, political or economic, would be imposed, with a grant of complete independence immediately after. Meanwhile, he added, the Jones law, the organic act of the islands, which at least promises independence, would be preferable.

Children of Circus Folk Guests at Easter Party

Children of performers and employés of the Hagenbeck Wallace circus at the Coliseum were the guests of honor yesterday at an Easter party given by the circus. There was an egg hunt and each child was given a basket of candy eggs by Miss Ruth Dennen, a Chicago girl who sings the prima donna rôle in the musical extravaganza of the circus program. Miss Dennen won honors in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE music festivals of 1931 and 1932. Among the children who enjoyed the party was Gracie Hannaford, daughter of "Poodles" Hannaford, famous riding clown of the show.

Portrait of Mrs. J. G. Coleman Will Be Unveiled at Tea Today

Friends Will See Painting at Passavant Hospital; Work of Mrs. McCormick.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TO THE accompaniment of a cup of tea and hearty congratulations, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman will receive several dozen of their intimate friends this afternoon in the woman's board room of the Passavant Memorial hospital. Mrs. McCormick's portrait of Mrs. Coleman, the long time president of the Passavant Woman's board, is to be unveiled.

Several weeks ago the painting was hung above the marble fireplace at the west end of the board room. There was no party, however, in celebration of its presentation to the hospital because of Mrs. Coleman's illness at the time and Mrs. McCormick's absence from the city.

The portrait was admired in Mrs. McCormick's exhibition early last summer at the Chester Johnson galleries, but art critics who have seen it the last fortnight in its new setting say that it is lovelier than ever. The delicate tones of rose and gold and ivory blend beautifully with the gold hangings and the lighter walls of the board room. It would seem that Mrs. McCormick had chosen her colors with the setting in mind, yet she did not know until it was finished where it was to be hung.

Mrs. Coleman Loyal Worker.

The painting of Mrs. Coleman well deserves to dominate the board room, for since the death of Mrs. John S. Runnells many years ago Mrs. Coleman has served the board as president. It was in 1865 that the hospital was founded at Dearborn and Ontario streets. Swept away by the Chicago fire it was lost until 1885 when a new building was erected and named the Emergency hospital. After Dr. Passavant's death it took his name. And then in 1896 Mrs. Runnells founded the Woman's society that has since become the Woman's board under Mrs. Coleman's direction.

The greatest contribution of the board these many years has without doubt been the decoration of the handsome new edifice dedicated in 1929 on East Superior street. A setting has been created for patients that robs the body maladies of half their terrors.

The board room itself testifies to the artistic genius of the members. It is striking in its simplicity . . . a black ceiling that decorators from all parts of the country have admired, crystal chandeliers in contrast, and green Morocco chairs around a handsome board table. Four of these chairs were antiques found by Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, who as vice president of the board has given unstintingly of her time and effort to the hospital. The other fourteen chairs were made to match the originals.

Assisting at the tea table for the party this afternoon will be Mrs. Rudolph W. Holmes, Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Mrs. Gardiner B. Van Ness, Mrs. J. Murray Washburn, and Mrs. William A. Yager.

Spring Sale of Rummage Shop.

With the cheering news that "good times are coming very soon and we can now afford to give away things we used to hoard," the White Elephant Rummage shop operated for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital announces its annual spring sale Friday at the shop.

The members of the committee headed by Mrs. William B. Gray are scouring every north shore household for everything from white ties to family portraits. On the committee are Mrs. Ralph Isham, Mrs. Woodbury S. Agar Jr., Miss Eleanor Litsinger, Miss Betty Brawley, Miss Geraldine Swift, Miss Nancy Traylor, Mrs. Horace O. Wetmore, and Miss Helen Marie Castle.

On the afternoon of April 25 the executive committee of the shop is to have a tea party at the Casino with a program of music and dancing during the afternoon. Mrs. John A. Spoor is the honorary chairman of the executive committee, with Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. Charles K. Foster, and Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell as the co-chairmen.

From Evanston comes news of another white elephant sale to be held for the benefit of Grove House the afternoon of April 27 at 1506 Sherman street. Mrs. Frederick S. Colburn heads the board of this interesting and necessary home for convalescent women and children and Mrs. Morris K. Wilson is chairman of the sale.

Benefit Sale for Lake Forest Y. W. C. A.

And still a third rummage sale! The board of the Lake Forest Y. W. C. A. is to hold a sale of "used dresses, clothing, and other choice articles" next Saturday evening in the Y. W. C. A. headquarters in Market square. Mrs. Stuart Prosser is handling all of the arrangements with a corps of prominent assistants, including Mrs. Scott Bromwell, president of the Lake Forest branch; Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., Mrs. Woodbury S. Ober, Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith, Mrs. Calvin D. Trowbridge, Mrs. Waldo M. Allen, Mrs. Dwight Ingram, Mrs. Philip L. Speidel, Mrs. W. Fred Stevens, Mrs. Maurice H. Bent, Mrs. H. Foster Straw Jr., Mrs. Stanley Morrill, Mrs. John W. Richards, Mrs. Robert Pugh, Miss Frances Hughes, Miss Virginia Frost, and Miss Catherine Trowbridge.

Those interested in the dinner dance to be given this spring for the benefit of the Madonna center will have tea this afternoon at the center, 712 South Loomis street, with Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr. and others of the dance committee. The dance is to be given on April 29 in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman.

Fashion Revue at Evanston.

There's to be a gala hailing of the end of Lent tomorrow afternoon at the Evanston Country club. The board of directors of the Northwestern University settlement is presenting a group of the most attractive members of the Evanston Junior league in a spring fashion revue. By the venture the board expects to raise $1,000 of the $10,000 it contributes annually to the settlement.

The models are to be Miss Mary Dawes, Mrs. Arthur W. Rogers, Mrs. Harold Barnes, Mrs. J. Horton Fall III., Mrs. Charles M. Price, Miss Camilla Folds, Mrs. William M. Parkes, Mrs. Frederick Hawley, Miss Ruth Seanor, Miss Mary Cook, Miss Ruth Harvey, Mrs. Hugh McCullough, Miss Margaret Harper, Mrs. John Whitman, and Mrs. K. V. R. Nicol.

Mrs. Chester D. Tripp, president of the Evanston board, will have one of the largest parties. Another will be that of Mrs. Edwin Sherman, who is to entertain a number of the young matrons and Junior league members for Miss Margaret Dawes who is soon to become the bride of Beverly Jefferson.

Strains of Easter music will be emanating this week from the Diana Court building on Michigan avenue. The Vassar House restaurant is presenting a program of organ and orchestral music from 4 to 6 every afternoon. Tables are to be moved down into the center of the court and tea will be served around the fountain.

Preceding the concert tomorrow, there will be a meeting of the social activities committee for A Century of Progress presided over by Mrs. Elmer T. Stevens. Members of this committee include Miss Helen Dawes, Mrs. Hallett W. Thorne, Mrs. Calvin D. Trowbridge Jr., Mrs. Gordon McKeldin, Mrs. Arthur Wakely, Mrs. Ferdinand Kramer, and Mrs. Ronald J. Chinnock.

Wells Alumnae to Meet Today.

Chicago and Evanston alumnae of Wells college are to hold their annual Easter luncheon today at the Casino. In order to hear a special broadcast from the college at Aurora [N. Y.] the time of the meeting has been advanced to 11:30. There will be a concert by the college choir [by radio] and an interview with Mrs. Cleveland E. Dodge, living in New York City. Simultaneously there are to be meetings of Wells alumnae throughout the country.

Miss Pauline Jones, the alumnae secretary, is to be in Chicago today for the luncheon. Miss Honor Merrell is president of the local alumnae association, and Miss Alice Barler, Mrs. Sidney Y. Ball, and Mrs. Charles A. Bunnell are all assisting with the arrangements for the luncheon.

The president and the officers of the Renaissance society are having a dinner at 7 o'clock this evening for Dr. Melville J. Herskovits of Northwestern university at the International House of the University of Chicago. At 8:30 Dr. Herskovits is to give an illustrated lecture on the ritual and art in West African life. The pictures he will show were made on his recent visit to Africa's "gold coast." In addition to this there will be an exhibition of the ancestral dance of the Swasidei ceremony by Kwesi Kuntu and his tribe of Ashantis.

Women End Their Season of Orchestra

Hope to Have a Share in Music at Fair.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

With a business record that does not quite classify as prosperity, but still is something to arouse hopes for the future, the Woman's Symphony orchestra gave its final concert at the Drake hotel yesterday under the direction of Ebba Sundstrom.

Donna Parker, business manager of the orchestra, made a speech during the intermission, stating that the organization hoped to have an important share of the music during the coming Century of Progress exposition and inviting patrons present to subscribe for next season. Her remarks were much to the point, for the orchestra has deserved better artistically than it has always been able to realize financially.

Miss Sundstrom had just demonstrated that she has a woodwind section under her baton quite able to rank alongside of the string section. This was done through the medium of Richard Strauss' Serenade for woodwinds and horns. It was played excellently, if a shade earnestly.

Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony displayed the complete orchestra in all its phases and powers. Miss Sundstrom conducted it from memory and without score. Assistance to the program was rendered by the Chicago Bach chorus directed by Edwin Stanley Seder, who took the stage at the beginning of the concert and presented an excerpt from a cantata and three chorales, four, counting an encore, all from the works of Bach.

Eleanore Block appeared in a dance program at the Goodman theater yesterday afternoon and in the course thereof displayed both talent and technic. With a graceful body, an expressive face, and a definite understanding of what to do on the stage, she presented dances of many types and styles, excelling particularly in character portrayals.

Music much better than the average in selection and performance helped to make the program enjoyable. An orchestra directed by Daniel Saidenberg occupied the pit. In several cases transcriptions from piano music had been made with much skill by Lawrence Beste. It was not stated whether Miss Block had been her own choreographer, but whoever had been responsible was as expert as Miss Block herself as a dancer.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Today We Live" is a strange picture—and hard to rate.

It has a wealth of excellent acting, a gloomy story, and, until the last several reels moves so slowly as to give you the fidgets. BUT—the final episodes are intensely exciting. SO, while for a time you've been bored by the movie—it is too long—you leave the theater feeling that, after all, you've seen a satisfactory show.

[Do you see now why the film is difficult to review?]

The story harks back to war days and the opening scenes are in England.

Here you find the heorine, whose adored father has just been killed in the war, compelled to let her home to a young American. She and her chaperon maid move to the gardener's cottage on the grounds.

Diana has a brother, Ronny, and a childhood playmate, Claude—with whom she and her brother have grown up—who are with the royal navy. It has always been tacitly understood that she will say "Yes" to Claude—if he asks her.

Ronny and Claude come home. The question is asked and answered as per expectations . . .

At that time the girl is fancy free. Soon she is to fall in love with her quiet, rangy tenant, Richard Bogard.

Richard goes to war and joins the flying corps. Diana unites with the ambulance forces. The trails of the four converge again at a French seaport.

And now you go up in the air with the aces and down to the sea in ships with navy men whose duty it is to propel at devil-may-care speed, torpedo boats through surrounding waters, in search of enemy craft.

Diana, told that the man she loves has been killed, gives herself to the boy who cares for her . . .

A "ghost" walks—and what follows is tragic indeed. But, cheerup, there's a quietly happy ending for Diana and, well, perhaps you'd like to guess whom?

Miss Crawford gives a sincere, restrained and artistic performance. She has stayed away from the jam jar and there are no wet, black lips in this picture. The men's rôles are all ably portrayed with my laurels going to Franchot Tone—so unhandsome, so quiet and with the nicest smile!—and Roscoe Karns. The latter furnishes much needed comedy interest as a happy go lucky airplane mechanic. Louise Closser Hale contributes a nice bit as the old chaperon.

The picture is effectively staged and photographed and has some of the wettest rains that ever gave one a synthetic chill.

See you tomorrow!

Ziegfeld Life Will Be Told in Big Movie

Billie Burke Is Writing Story for Universal.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 16.—[Special.]—Universal's bid for a smash movie hit of 1933 will be "The Great Ziegfeld," written by Billie Burke and William Anthony McGuire.

Carl Laemmle Jr. got so enthused about the picturesque and romantic account of Ziegfeld's life that his widow is committing to paper that he bought up the screen rights when Miss Burke and McGuire presented their first typewritten chapter. The story is not completed yet. Miss Burke and McGuire, who helped write some of Ziegfeld's greatest Broadway successes, including "Rosalie," "Three Musketeers," "Whoopee," and "Kid Boots," are bringing out their colorful biography as a book as well as a screen play.

"My one desire," Miss Burke said today, "in writing Mr. Ziegfeld's life myself, is to prevent other stories and screen plays based on his attainments, without giving proper consideration to the man and to the theater going public. Mr. Ziegfeld had a great heart, a great mind, a great love for people and for art, and I want to keep his spirit alive in anything that is brought out about him."

It was intimated at Universal studio that Miss Burke may play herself in the production when it goes before the camera with several of the most interesting decades in American metropolitan history revolving around the great showman as the central figure.

Miss Burke, who refers to her late husband as "Mr. Ziegfeld," says "His theatrical advancement came during the most vivid years of the American theater. We intend to show the influence he exerted. It is unquestionable that he made the American girl the world's standard for beauty. Through his genius musical comedy reached unprecedented heights in artistic and commercial success."

A search for the proper actor to appear as Flo Ziegfeld is being quietly conducted by the bosses at the studio.

The innovation of a "service bureau," announced by Will Hays and the movie magnates to be their future system for hiring actors, scenarists, and directors, will not be fastened onto the film industry without some trouble.

The Screen Writers' guild took a shot at the idea as soon as Hays announced it. The writers' guild dubbed it a device to put the creators of film plots under the thumb of the commercial interests, to eliminate competitive bidding for a writer's work, and lower the compensation for film writing.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The first sign of a spring revival on the Chicago stage in anticipation of the exposition period came last night when the Princess theater reopened after two and a half years of inactivity. In case the Princess has become a forgotten playhouse during its protracted slumber, I wish to announce that it is a comfortable shrine of the drama, standing on Clark street not far south of Jackson boulevard; that it has an honorable history, and that it has been neatly brushed up for its current tenant, which is "Riddle Me This," a decidedly interesting specimen of the kind of playmaking that deals in "perfect crimes."

Here is an illustration of the fact that all plays containing murders, brisk detectives, and cynical newspaper reporters are not written according to the same formula. "Riddle Me This" is not a "mystery" play—note that, and give thanks for something new in the theater.

In its first scene it reveals the guilty man polishing up a few postmortem details of his grisly deed, which was the throttling of his unfaithful wife. Then it proceeds to show that this black-hearted fellow—a physician of high standing in the field of neurology—is a master mind who has planned his killing for a double revenge, has cunningly arranged evidence that will accuse and convict his wife's lover and is able to lead the town's best detective and star police reporter around by the nose. He is almost as able in criminology as Sherlock Holmes' worst enemy, the famous Dr. Moriarity.

In the last act the diabolical doctor's second revenge is within one hour of consummation. An innocent man is to die in the electric chair at break of day and the doctor has a ticket to the execution in his pocket. Then strokes of inspiration come to the newspaper reporter, and also to the detective.

"Riddle Me This," which is still listed among the New York hits, comes to Chicago in a duplicate production, with Roger Pryor leading the company in the rôle of the detective—a businesslike sleuth who is always ready to admit that he may be wrong, and refuses to pattern either his methods or his manners after Philo Vance. Mr. Pryor is an alert and pungent comedian [witness "The Front Page," "Up Pops the Devil," and "A Modern Virgin"] and gives a crisp, plausible performance.

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters, Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father, have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior, after losing their fortune in Chicago. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girl's school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past. Flint and his friend, Ned Bremner, hope to build up a great export business. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. When Blake returns to Agate Bay he takes Meryl with him to be his bride. Meryl learns, after the wedding ceremony, through Lucia, a snobbish cousin of the Lawrences, that Blake married her as an escape from Christine, the wife of Julius Greer, with whom he had been in love. Meryl prepares to return home. Theresa, Blake's sister, persuades her to stay for six months, for Blake's sake, whom she still loves, and not to hurt her people. Theresa promises to teach her social service work. Greer at one time saved the Lawrence fortune and Blake feels honor bound not to interfere with the crooked schemes he knows Greer is engaged in. Meryl believes Blake won't fight Greer because of Christine. Blake tells Meryl of the death of Ola Palka, an old friend and neighbor of the Hendersons.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

RUTHLESS METHODS.

It was late that night when Theresa stepped quietly into the library, where Blake had gone after their game of bridge, and closed the door behind her. The room was darkly reddish from the slumbering log fire.

Blake looked up inquiringly and took his pipe from his mouth. He turned on the reading lamp beside him. "What now?" he asked.

"I have been wondering—ever since—just what prompted you to spring your bad news on Meryl this evening in your usual gentle manner," Theresa said with a touch of sarcasm.

"Damn it all, I didn't know it was going to mean so much to her!" he broke out hotly.

"You don't seem to know what anything means to Meryl," Theresa countered.

Blake hitched his shoulders in a gesture of despair. "I don't want to be a boor, Tess—and I'm doing my best to be as pleasant as I know how. She doesn't want me—she has made up her mind about that. I'm doing the only thing any man with self-respect would do under the circumstances. I'm giving her every chance possible to meet some one she can really care for."

"Have you heard from Christine?" Theresa asked bluntly.

"Certainly—twice, to be exact. But that has nothing to do with it. Incidentally, Julius is on his way to Florida now. He got back yesterday from his inspection trip up north and left on the train last night for Chicago."

"Perhaps you think I haven't been seething about Greer's scheme."

"Was it Julius who brought back the news about this Ola Something-or-Other?"

"Not exactly," Blake replied evasively. "I got the news from Fred Inglis."

Theresa eyed him shrewdly. "What's eating you, Blake?" she demanded. "Is there more of it than you have told us?"

He hesitated for a moment and then ran his fingers through his hair in an agitated way. "There's a lot more to it," he said in a low voice. "There's a story going around up there to the effect that Palka was at work in the storehouse and Julius came through the door just as the young fellow was in the act of swinging around with a heavy box in his hands. The box struck Julius on the knee and Julius smacked Palka without thinking. The boy dropped—and died a few hours later. It's a mess!"

"Good heavens!" Theresa exclaimed, "but where does Julius come out of it?"

Blake seated himself again and took up his pipe. "There isn't a thing in it that involves Julius seriously," he said. "The boy wasn't really hurt, it seems. He had a weak heart—and it just stopped."

"You know what this will mean to Meryl, of course," Theresa observed.

Blake tapped his pipe broodingly against his palm. "She'll have just one more reason for hating the life I brought her into. And one more reason for getting out of it when she thinks the polite time has arrived!"

"Blake, you are in love with her," Theresa breathed, and then waited in suspense, not daring to look at him. Theresa had her own sensibilities, much as she hated sentimentality.

But Blake got up abruptly and went to a mahogany cabinet, from which he removed a bottle of Scotch and a siphon of soda. He rang for ice. Then he returned to his chair and grinned across at Theresa.

"You need a drink, old girl," he remarked.

Over the tall glass he said, "Perhaps you think I haven't been seething inwardly about Greer's scheme, Tess."

"No—I think you have been," she replied sturdily.

"I've been thinking about nothing else for weeks. And now—this new outrage of his. It's just one more example of the kind of thing Julius has been doing for years in the north woods. He's absolutely ruthless—and he'll smack the whole country in the same way and find some one to swear it was nothing but heart failure when the crash comes."

He got up again and with his glass in his hand went to the heavily draped windows and stood looking out into the white darkness.

"Even if I chucked my—my scruples—what good would come of it?" he protested suddenly. "Julius Greer is too strong for any of us. Anything I could do would be simply a quixotic gesture—and it would probably lead to our complete undoing. He would squash me up there—in a year—and then invite us to dinner!"

"I'd go a long way to see a good fight," she encouraged him. "And you'd have Meryl rooting."

He swung savagely toward her, his frown darkening. "No," he said flatly, "I'm not going to stage a circus free for all—to win the smiles of a woman who doesn't care enough about me to understand what——" He flung out one arm in a gesture of frustration.

"You forgot the circumstances under which she came here," Theresa pointed out.

He strode over to the library table and poured himself another drink. "I wish to God you'd take her away somewhere for a while. Sooner or later she'll hear the whole truth about this Palka fellow—and nothing will hold her. She'll clear out!"

"You don't want her—to clear out?"

He looked at her steadily. "It would be a damned shame for the kid to go trailing back home after a few weeks of—a 'grand marriage!'"

His grating laugh appalled Theresa.

"I see," Theresa said with a quaint smile, "you're thinking of—the kid, aren't you?"

"O, cut it!" Blake rasped, and flung himself into a chair. "All I'm asking of you is to take her away somewhere—anywhere—just so that she'll be relieved of my odious presence at mealtime!"

"Well," Theresa said briskly, "there's the conference of the Charity Organization society in New York immediately after New Year's. New York might be good for her."

Blake turned on her with an eagerness which, to Theresa, was a trifle pathetic. "Get yourselves packed and get out, then, as soon as you can!"

It was a mandate. Theresa went and put her arms about his neck. "You've been such a damned fool for the last few weeks that you don't deserve it," she declared, "but I'm going to kiss you."

Blake's acceptance was a grunt. "You might look up Cy Granville when you're down there," he suggested. "He ought to be pretty much to Meryl's liking."

"You're in a rotten mood, aren't you, darling?" Theresa smiled.

It's Fashionable Way to Serve Them Now.

BY MARY MEADE.

Even the best regulated families invariably seem to have leftovers in the bean line. And these beans run all the way from two tablespoon dabs to all that was left when some one didn't come home to lunch. They sit sulking in their tomato sauce, wondering why some one doesn't have a brain throb and give them a chance to show how good they can really be at adding zest to commonplace dishes.

Which, after all, is a much better way of using bean leftovers than serving them up as is. And one of the smartest culinary stunts on the ticket today is to serve baked beans—either a leftover or a new edition from the cupboard supply—with their prize complement, pickles!

Tart or dilled cucumbers, gherkins, relish, or what-you-will are enthusiastically turning up in or with bean dishes in many fashionable hotels and clubs. They punctuate dishes with tang and new zip. For instance, here's a delectable luncheon dish, a sort of "picklized" bean croquette.

BAKED BEAN AND PICKLE CROQUETTES.

2 cups baked beans
1 tablespoon catsup
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1-3 cup chopped sweet pickles
Salt and pepper to taste
1 egg, well beaten
Bread crumbs
Fat for frying

If the baked beans have been canned in tomato sauce, the catsup will not be necessary, though it may be added for additional tanginess if you wish. First drain off any sauce from the beans and force them through a sieve. Add the parsley, chopped pickles, and seasoning to taste. If necessary add soft bread crumbs until the mixture will hold its shape. Mold into croquettes, dip in dried crumbs, egg, and again in the crumbs. Fry in a wire basket in deep fat [380 degrees F.] until rich brown. Drain the croquettes on unglazed paper and sprinkle them with minced parsley. Serve with catsup and tomato sauce with a garnish of little round pickle slices.

Or make yours a lunch or supper get-together of beans and pickles, serving

OPEN BEAN AND DRIED BEEF SANDWICH.

To serve 6 with open sandwiches you will need 6 slices of hot buttered toast, a No. 2 can of baked beans, 2 tablespoons tomato catsup, 2-3 cup minced up dried beef, and 1 teaspoon of sugar. Fry the dried beef in 1 tablespoon of butter until crisp and curly. Then add the beans, catsup, and sugar. Add a bit of minced parsley if you wish. When the mixture is very hot, serve over the browned toast and garnish with sliced dill pickles.

BEANS, PICKLE, AND CORNED BEEF SNACKS.

These make a grand buffet supper special.

1 small can corned beef [about 1½ cups]
1 small can baked beans
1 tablespoon minced onion
¼ cup sweet relish or chow-chow
2 teaspoons prepared mustard

Chill the corned beef in the can, preferably over night, then cut it in thin slices. Drain off any free sauce from the beans and mash them, adding the pickle, onion, and mustard. If they have not been packed in tomato sauce, add 1 tablespoon of tomato catsup. Now spread a spoonful of the mixture between slices of the sliced beef, sandwich fashion, and arrange the "snacks" on a platter with a garnish of parsley.

Museum Installs New Exhibition of Songbirds

A new exhibit of North American songbirds has been installed among the systematic zoological collections at the Field Museum of Natural History. About 100 species of flycatchers, wrens, thrashers, jays, swallows, and other birds are in the exhibit. Those which are to be seen in Illinois are marked with a red star to enable bird enthusiasts here to identify birds through the collection.

Society Defies the Rain, Wears Easter Styles

There's No Parade, but Plenty of Fashion.

the tweeds, black was by far the favorite yesterday. There was some blue; not much, however, and some beige and gray, but mostly black with dramatic touches of white.

Raincoats come in every color of the rainbow, and no longer are they the drab rainy day coverings that they once were. Rainsticks to match the coats are the latest. A few smart women were decked out in plaid coats and umbrellas.

It is noticeable how many more young men attend Easter services now than in former years. In their high silk hats, morning coats, and white boutonnieres, they add to the picture immensely.

If the day had been fine, after the services there would have been a grand parade of fashion on Lake Shore drive from the Fourth Presbyterian church north to Lincoln park. But as it was, every one scurried into cars or taxicabs and hurried home, making it a little hard for society reporters and photographers to get pictures illustrating what society wore on Easter.

There was the usual crowd of Easter worshipers at the Fourth Presbyterian church on North Michigan avenue, but not the usual crowd of spectators waiting to see the churchgoers after the services. The policemen, a dozen or more of them, were there, in case the rain did not deter spectators from assembling as they did last year, literally in hundreds, but there was none of the confusion and crowding that occurred last Easter when the weather was good.

Mrs. F. T. Haskell Is an Early Arrival.

An early arrival at the Fourth church was Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, who had come in from Lake Forest where she had spent the night with her grandchildren, the children of the Robert S. Hotzes. Black with touches of white at her neck, gardenias, and silver foxes were chosen as her Easter ensemble.

Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed, another worshiper at the Fourth church, also wore black and silver fox, but a note of color was added to her costume by a scarf of brilliant plaid, red predominating.

Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick in a black fur coat and black close fitting hat, and her daughter, Miss Patty McCormick, in a green velveteen suit, were others who attended the Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter are not at the Fourth church, which her church, nor at St. James', which his, but we photographed them as they were leaving their home on the drive at Bellevue place for 1 o'clock luncheon. Black, white gardenias, and brilliant green scarf had been chosen by Mrs. Carpenter, the former Mrs. Waller Borden, as her Easter outfit.

The Graham Aldises' twins, Ruth and Peggy, were the snappiest young things on the avenue, in dark blue rain hats, rain coats to match, and even leggings of the same waterproof material.

Crowds at St. James' and St. Chrysostom's.

The showers were no deterrent to the hundreds who worship weekly at St. Chrysostom's and St. James' Episcopal churches. Mrs. Solomon B. Smith [the former Barbara Neff] was one of the earliest arrivals and one of the smartest dressed young matrons at the St. Chrysostom's service. Her ensemble was of brown accented in white. A shoulder bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley matched her brown straw turban capped with small white flowers. She attended the service with Mr. Smith.

Preceding the Smiths to their pews were Miss Edna Doering, wearing a light weight gray coat heavily furred in fox; her mother, Mrs. Edmund J. Doering, and Miss Eleanor Jerrems. Miss Jerrems was smartly dressed in black.

Barrett Wendell and Frank R. Laughlin Jr. wore two of the dozen silk hats that appeared at the St. Chrysostom's services. Young Mr. Laughlin attended with Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Hoffman Jr. Mrs. Hoffman, chic in a tailored black coat and matching sailor, chose a tiny Persian lamb muff as the most effective location for her three gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey hustled from their limousine just in time to take their places before the processional. Mrs. Dewey wore a wrap of cinnamon brown, caped with sable, and a sable brown hat covered with a finely meshed veil. Her bouquet was a lovely old fashioned combination of lilies of the valley, sweet peas and roses.

Two of the smartest spring suits in the St. Chrysostom's congregation were worn by Mrs. J. Beach Clow and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins. A black and white checked skirt contrasted with Mrs. Clow's tailored black jacket. She carried a silver fox scarf. Mrs. Hodgkins, who was with her mother-in-law, Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, had blue checked woolen for her skirt and Ascot scarf, and plain blue cheviot for her trim jacket and sailor hat. In her lapel were two gardenias.

They're Fashionable Under an Umbrella.

A happy pair squeezed under one blue umbrella were Mrs. John J. Finlay and her sister, Miss Betty Scriven. Interesting shoulder plaits that gave that necessary breadth were the fashion note in Miss Scriven's dark blue ensemble. A flower turban was Mrs. Finlay's claim to smart distinction. Orchids were their shoulder bouquets.

Miss Martha Fitts expressed her individuality in the one lavender lilac that introduced a color note in her smart brown ensemble. She wore a fez similar to that of Mrs. Nathaniel A. Owings, who was wrapped in mink. Mrs. Owings attended church with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis.

Mrs. Franklin M. Miller with her daughter and son-in-law, the Bruce Willis Strongs, was one of the few grownups not in black. Both Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Strong wore gray.

In black there were Mrs. Malcolm L. Harris, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. George R. Nichols, Mrs. Louis S. Taylor, and Mrs. James R. Offield with her daughter, Miss Betty Offield, and the young George R. Getzes. Miss Offield wore a stunning black coat luxuriously trimmed in silver fox, and gardenias. Mrs. Offield's corsage was of orchids.

Miss Alice May Dickinson attended St. Chrysostom's with Walter Egan Trevett. And then there were George A. Ranney, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson with her sister, Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., and Mrs. John Skelton Williams of Richmond, Va.; Miss Marguerite Foster with her parents, the George B. Fosters; Gerhardt Meyne, Mrs. George W. Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. King, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Y. Freeman, Mrs. William V. Kelley with the young Gordon Kelleys, and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ezra J. Warner Jr.

Mrs. P. A. Valentine Attends St. James'.

Before the lily banked altar of St. James' church, at Cass and Huron streets, there worshiped another distinguished congregation. Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, one of the most beloved dowagers in Chicago society, was there with her son and daughter-in-law, the junior Patrick Valentines. And so were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson with their small daughter, Mary.

Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. was one of the smartest dressed matrons at St. James'. She wore a costume of black accented with white. A corsage of white orchids was fastened to her shoulder. She attended the service with Mr. Faurot and their two children.

Mrs. Orville J. Taylor was wrapped in mink and wore lavender orchids, and Mrs. Clement Studebaker III. wore black caracul and gardenias. Both Mr. Taylor and Mr. Studebaker were ushers.

Eames MacVeagh, one of the few men to appear in a high silk hat at St. James', escorted Mrs. MacVeagh. Others present included Mr. and Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Henry Hooper, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris; the British consul general, Lewis Bernays, and Mrs. Bernays; Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Mulford, Mrs. Edward Blake Blair, with her son, Blake Blair; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Mrs. Randolph Payson, Mr. and Mrs. Loring W. Coleman, Miss Susan Follansbee, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Gale Taylor III., Mr. and Mrs. Alan C. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Peck.

Many Worshipers at St. Luke's, Evanston.

Despite the rain, members of St. Luke's church, Evanston, turned out in full force to attend the Easter services. With Bishop George Craig Stewart officiating, these services are so well attended that tickets have to be issued in advance and the complete service gone through at 9:30 and again at 11:30. There was no visiting before the services. Instead, members stayed in their cars until they could see their way clear to make a dash for the church doors.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Barnhart and their daughter, Barbara, were among the few who braved the elements in spring clothes. Mrs. Barnhart wore a black and white plaid skirt and a chic black short jacket with the popular puff sleeves. Her small black fez hat and shoulder bouquet of gardenias finished off her costume. Miss Barbara was attractively dressed in shades of dark and light blue. Her light blue coat had as its only trimming a band of blue gray fox.

Mrs. Joseph Hubbel wore a blue ensemble with a dark blue straw hat and a simple string of pearls for a touch of lightness. Mrs. Eleanor Stewart and Miss Jane Renschaw also chose dark clothes as their Easter costume.

Mrs. Stewart was gowned in black and white with a black fur coat and smart black straw sailor with a band of white organdie attractively tied. She wore as a corsage a large bouquet of violets. Miss Renschaw was also in black and white with a corsage of gardenias tied with a gold ribbon. Her small black hat was covered with a tiny black veil.

Rain Drenches Garb of Winnetka Folk.

Members of Christ church, Winnetka, were as drenched by the pouring rain as were members of all the other north shore communities. Their quaint church is high on a hill overlooking Sheridan road and the lake, and the members have to climb many stairs before reaching the doors.

Mrs. George B. Calkins covered her smart black dress with a short coat of gray fur which was held together at the neck by a bouquet of violets. Her small black hat was of the latest style. Mrs. Robert Biddle wore a black coat, black hat, and a corsage of lilies of the valley and orchids. Mrs. Robert Hammond was dressed in a gray suit with gray fur and a shoulder bouquet of violets and roses.

Mrs. Ralph Hobart was seen hurrying into the church dressed in a blue ensemble. The short cape on her coat was edged all around with white pique. The Misses Adelaide and Margot Atkin were attractively attired in light spring clothes. Miss Adelaide covered her tan print dress with a coat in a harmonizing shade of tan. Miss Margot wore a light blue dress and a lighter tan coat than her sister.

What Movie Actresses Wore

Hollywood, Cal., April 16. — (AP) — What Miss Hollywood donned to attend the Easter sunrise services or for playing over the week-end in Caliente, Catalina, or Palm Springs—that may be what Miss America will be wearing the whole summer.

So let's review the Easter promenade and see what your favorite actress wore today:

Joan Crawford's Sunday supper frock was of organza [that new fabric much like organdie only silkier and starchier]. It was printed with a small design against a black background and might be called the 1933 version of her "Letty Lynton" dress which made fashion history. Her "ballet girl" sleeves were centered with a ruffle of flaming red.

Lillian Harvey, entertaining 10 friends at breakfast, wore a sleeveless sports dress of blue and white cotton. Guests wore sports clothes also.

Jean Harlow complemented her platinum hair with a fluffy gown of gray mousseline de soie cut along simple lines with plenty of shoulder interest. Her wide brimmed hat was of gray straw.

Gray, too, was the choice of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, who wore a strictly tailored frock of flat crêpe topped by a shoulder cape of silver fox.

Claudette Colbert went to church in a suit striped in deep blue and gray with sprightly accents of red in belt, buttons, and in the huge initials which adorned her white ascot scarf.

Carole Lombard, beneath a long and voluminous white woolen coat lined with boldly striped silk, wore a frock of rough chalk crepe. A knitted tube-like hat completed the costume.

Janet Gaynor's dinner frock was of navy blue organza, fitted about the body, billowing about the feet and topped by a white pique mess jacket with high gathered shoulders and white revers.

"Eleanor blue," that new shade adopted in honor of the first lady, was worn by Irene Dunne, in a light woolen ensemble cut military fashion with broad, mannish shoulders. Soft contrast was furnished by her gray accessories.

Constance Bennett's church-going outfit was of dawn blue wool with blouse, gloves, and shoes in natural linen and a beret of the suit's soft fabric. Ann Dvorak had a youthful white linen suit with a black organdie blouse and a huge bow at the throat.

An afternoon frock of white taffeta with corded puff sleeves and a ruff of starched chiffon was Adrienne Ames' choice. To a dinner dance, Elissa Landi wore a formal gown of rough white pebble crêpe, made with a deep V in front and back.

It's Motor Parade in Lake Forest.

Corsages of sweet peas and yellow roses and suits of bright, cheery blue—Miss Louise Dewey an excellent exponent of the latter—predominated at both the Church of the Holy Spirit and the First Presbyterian church in Lake Forest. The traditional Easter parade was one of motor cars.

Fashionables seemed to have claimed shiny straw for their own in all the different colors and styles, sailors, berets, and "Talbots." Three-quarter length coats of either matching or contrasting materials were much in evidence, and their brave wearers shivered while waiting for their chauffeurs after the services.

The altar in the Church of the Holy Spirit was decorated simply but beautifully with sprays of white flowers, lilies, ferns and plants. Among those worshiping there were Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Welles, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Priebe, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Strawn, Mr. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift, Miss Jean Schweppe, Philip S. Dalton Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Kenyon, Bruce Kenyon, Miss Rosamond Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Bunting, Miss Elizabeth Bunting, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Peck, Mrs. Stanley Keith, Miss Betty Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Scott S. Durand, and Mrs. Woolsey Pollock.

Furs and Galoshes on the South Side.

New bonnets and bright corsages appeared above the fur coats and galoshes of worshipers at the Kenwood church, 46th street and Kenwood avenue.

Miss Nancy Palmer in a brown straw hat and green dress worn with beige fur jacket and matching orchids was among the handful to appear in a complete spring outfit. Miss Malcolm Carr had on a black ensemble trimmed with broad white revers. Miss Barbara James wore a wool suit in a brown tweed weave with brown fabric hat and corsage of four carnations. With her was Mrs. C. C. Sampson in black with a corsage of carnations.

Mrs. Raymond E. Daniels came with her daughter, Helen, and her son, Bud. Mrs. Daniels wore a black straw hat trimmed with a white quill and a black coat with a short beige fox trimmed scarf.

Among the others in attendance at the morning service were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson, Edward Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McNair, Miss Helen McNair, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Farr, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Chinnock, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Lockhard, Mrs. Milton H. Mack, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Henkel, Mrs. S. O. Fairclough, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Lapham, Julius Steele, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Giddings, Miss Harriet Giddings, Mrs. W. W. Dudley, Miss Grace M. Dudley, Mrs. J. H. Moore, Mrs. F. W. Mehlhop, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Morris, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Boenicke.

The downpour kept away many of the oldest members of the Second Presbyterian church, 20th street and Michigan avenue, but Capt. and Mrs. James Lawrence and Miss Alice Lawrence were among those who braved the storm. Capt. Lawrence has been a member of the church for more than 60 years.

Sprinkling of Fashions at Oak Park Services.

Even though fur coats were hugged about most of the women entering the First Presbyterian church at 931 Lake street, Oak Park, there was a scattering of light and bright in the form of gray suits and capes—springlike corsages of violets, lilies of the valley, sweet peas and gardenias.

There were two services at the church—the first at 9 a. m. Attending this service were Mrs. Frank C. Caldwell and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hill, daughter and son-in-law of the Nathan G. Moores. Mrs. Caldwell wore a black seal coat with a corsage of gardenias and one of the new tall fez hats.

Among those emerging from the 10:30 services were Mrs. C. S. Castle and her daughter, Ruth. Mrs. Robert W. Rosene also attended this latter service, wearing a leopard and beaver coat and corsage. The Misses Jeanne Hanson and Georgia Stange wore light spring suits and hats. Among those from River Forest were Mrs. J. W. Ullmann and Miss Virginia Koehler.

This qualifies him particularly for his subject."

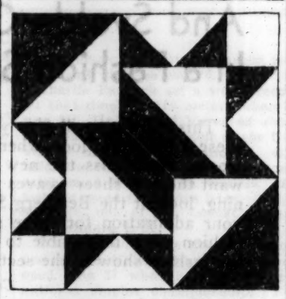
At a tea for seventy-five yesterday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Henning of Glencoe announced the engagement of their daughter, Jane Jacqueline, to Percival Hunter Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Percival Hunter of Winnetka. Miss Henning attended the Knox School for Girls in Cooperstown, N. Y., and Northwestern university. Mr. Hunter is an Annapolis graduate. The wedding is to take place in the early fall.

Another engagement of interest this morning is that of Miss Margaret Lovett Sandke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Sandke of 3240 Lake Shore drive, to Cyrus A. Potts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus M. Potts of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Queen of England Honored by U. S. Design for Quilt



Queen Charlotte's Crown.

BY NANCY CABOT.

In Virginia is a city named Charlottesville in honor of Queen Charlotte of England, wife of George III. Another American tribute was paid to this queen by an old quilt pattern which originated in that city, "Queen Charlotte's Crown." It will take no particular scrutiny on your part to discover the pair of crowns in the design. In the migration of this pattern to Kentucky the name was changed to Indian Meadow. In that state it is almost as popular as in its home city.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

Half Dozen Best Exercises of the Series

Not Necessary to Learn More than Six.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

For the last five weeks I have been giving you exercises based on West Point training rules. Each day of the week an exercise has appeared for your benefit.

Altogether, as you see, there have appeared some thirty exercise movements. You, like a number of others, probably have wondered if you should do each and every one of the exercises presented in order to subscribe t the benefits promised, namely an upstanding, fine, graceful carriage; a feeling of general fitness, and the correction of faulty posture habits and such silhouette destroyers as fat or underweight.

Let me answer your query by stating right here that it is not necessary for yo uto do every exercise presented. It would be a little too much to ask of you to do, in fact. Some may have found it unnecessary to do all of the leg work, let's say, or all of the shoulder or neck exercises. Unnecessary, at least, to do six exercises for the leg, shoulder, and so on. One from each group repeated time and again would be more to your inclination.

At any rate I believe that a set of six exercises done daily and repeated often is what the average person needs. At the idea of thirty to be done daily most of us would rebel. Six we would rise to without much urging. Isn't it true? Especially, with six exercise movements that are designed to take in every part of the body?

With this in mind, then, Maj. Harold M. Rayner in charge of physical training at West Point has built for you out of the exercise program already presented here a Six-a-Day set guaranteed to keep you in as fine mettle as you can possibly ask. Six exercises, one picked from each group, that is: the best stretching exercise for limbering up and straightening up; the best neck exercise, the best shoulder exercise, the best abdomen and back and the best leg; finally, one be t breathing exercise.

Today, you have the first—the stretching.

Don't miss this Six-a-Day set, please. Cut this out and save it.

Youth of Chicago Unite for Easter Sunrise Services

More than 20,000 younger people of various creeds and races celebrated Easter early yesterday morning in a huge open air service in the court of honor of the Hall of Science at the Century of Progress grounds. This was the first united sunrise Easter service to be held in Chicago.

Stories of the resurrection told in the gospels were read to the throng through large amplifiers. The worshipers responded to the reading by singing the triumphant hymns of Eastertide. The service was centered in a large white cross on which was written in purple letters, "Christ Is Risen."

The Rev. A. H. Leaman of the Century of Progress religion council, was in charge. He was assisted by the Rev. H. J. Hagar, pastor of the Bethany Reformed church, and a choir of 100 voices. More than 100 buses carried a portion of the crowd from north and west side points, while the Illinois Central ran a special train from the south side. The rain which marred the day for later worshipers at the city churches did not begin until after the lakeside open air service was ended.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BALLISTICIAN MULVANEY'S REPORT.

Hurriedly entering his laboratory, Alfred Mulvaney, police ballistician, selected a helixometer, inserted it into the barrel of the revolver he took from his case, and frowned. A few minutes later he had the gun apart.

After removing several small pieces of tobacco from the barrel he turned his attention to the cylinder. It contained five cartridges and an empty shell. It had, he thought, been fired recently—within the past 48 hours. There was a thin "gas ring" around the chamber containing the empty shell while the rest of the gun was clean—very clean!

"Looks as if whoever fired this wanted to be sure the police would know it," he mused, continuing his examination.

Wesser, a "small fry" labor rebel had been killed at three o'clock that afternoon by Jim Ryan, the "big shot" of the union. The only other alleged witness, one Jake Withers, told the police he was in Ryan's office when Wesser entered, started cursing the "chief," suddenly whipped out a gun (the one Mulvaney was examining) and fired at Ryan—the bullet going wild and entering the wall. Then in self-defense Ryan pulled his own gun, shot Wesser twice, and called the police. Ryan corroborated Withers' statements.

Mulvaney found Wesser's gun by his side, and as Ryan handed him his revolver he assured him nothing in the office had been disturbed.

Although finding that the bullet extracted from the wall had been fired by Wesser's gun, Mulvaney reported to Prof. Fordney that Jake and Ryan should be held—they both were lying.

HOW DID BALLISTICIAN MULVANEY KNOW THEY WERE LYING ABOUT THE SHOOTING?

[See solution on page 29.]

Elizabeth Manning, Daughter of Bishop, Engaged to Artist

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—The engagement of Griffith Daily Coale, 43 year old, mural painter and ship model collector, to Miss Elizabeth Van Antwerp Manning was announced today by Miss Manning's parents, Bishop and Mrs. William T. Manning.

Coale, formerly of Baltimore, is a widower. His first wife, Mrs. Margaret McCullough Coale, was found drowned a year ago in Sylvia pond, near the Coale estate at Stonington, Conn.

Coale has a 10 year old son, Robert Duncan Bordon Coale, at West Town school, in Chester county, Pennsylvania. Besides his Connecticut farm Coale maintains a studio in New York's Greenwich Village, where he and Miss Manning will reside after their marriage.

Miss Manning, a graduate of Miss Chapin's school and a Junior league member, went in for a business career in a travel bureau at the Hotel Plaza in 1925 and is still employed there. Her father is head of the Episcopal diocese of New York.

Wise Parent Is Calm in Face of Rebellion

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"You can't make me do it!"

Does that horrify you? Perhaps if you belong to the old school, it does. If you are a believer in the supremacy of parental authority, if you believe in contests of will between child and parent, if you believe in proving who is master, and so on, probably such a remark coming from a child would shock you unspeakably. And perhaps give rise to the feeling, "If he were mine, I'd make him, all right."

"Several times in the course of the year," said his mother, "Pete has said that to me." [Pete is eleven.] "Once it was when I'd been telling him repeatedly that he had to put on an extra sweater. 'Suppose I wouldn't—you couldn't make me, could you?' he said.

"And the other time it was when he was getting tired of taking calcium. You know it is awful to take for a long stretch of time. 'Mom, I not going to take that stuff any longer. I'm sick of it. You can't make me take it, can't you?'" he said.

"I decided the time had come to answer. He's always been so obedient and so reasonable that I wasn't going to hop all over him for this bit of wholesome rebellion. Or you might merely call it for his realization of the fact that no human being has absolute power over another.

"So I said, 'No, of course I can't make you. The only person who can make you do anything is you. You're the master of yourself.'

"And then I went on to say that I could explain things to him so that he would be able to see what was the intelligent thing to do, or the fair thing. But that when you got right down to brass tacks HE was the only one who could actually make him do anything. We talked it over amicably.

"Later in the day he came to me and said he'd take his calcium."

RAIN, SCHEDULE GIVE CUBS REST; NO GAME TODAY

Wagner May Make Star of Vaughan.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates had plenty of time to play with their Easter eggs yesterday, but the rain and cold which caused their scheduled baseball contest to be called off was a severe shock to the lads in the counting room, who don't care much about Easter eggs, bunnies, and such anyhow.

HANS WAGNER.

If the Cubs had been able to play according to schedule since opening day last Wednesday, they now would have five games in history instead of three. As things stand the Cubs will leave for St. Louis at 11:25 o'clock Wednesday morning with a record of playing only four games in eight days, this provided they play the final with the Pirates tomorrow. No game is scheduled for today.

While the two postponements to date had elements of immediate disappointment, it is probable that the fans and the counting room will be better off in the long run for both the carryovers have been converted into Sabbath double headers on days when baseball weather should prevail. Yesterday's scheduled game will be played off as part of a double bill on June 6 and, as previously announced, last Friday's scheduled affair with the Cardinals will bud anew as half of a bargain attraction on April 30.

Now, Take Wagner.

The early season double header idea, as an obvious gate stimulant, is new with the Cubs at home, but one they long have encountered on the road, especially in St. Louis and Philadelphia. Dew on the grass has caused the manufacture of Sunday doubleheaders in St. Louis, while banks of innocent clouds have been known to call for switching a game to a Saturday bargain bill in Philly.

Other stimulants will be used as they are discovered, of course. For instance, the Pirates are carrying old Honus Wagner, for many years an idol in Pittsburgh, in whose name he won his reputation as one of the greatest shortstops of all time. Honus is listed as a coach, though the Pirates were fully manned with coaches before he came.

In Pittsburgh he will will make personal appearance and "Wagner days" have already been arranged by various old timer organizations.

Wagner had been out of baseball for many years, engaging in the sporting goods business in Pittsburgh. It is probable that the sporting goods business has fallen off a little in recent months, making the new connection highly acceptable to all parties concerned.

Honus Teaches Vaughan.

Honus is to make appearances on the coaching lines, going through a routine not unlike the trained seal, which undoubtedly will serve to attract many shekels at the gate.

Manager George Gibson's baseball aides, Doc Crandall and Grover Hartley, have been in baseball continuously, but it is said there has been no effort to chill Honus' possible flair for baseball strategems. His main job, in a baseball way, for instance, is the tutelage of Floyd Vaughan, the Pirates' flashy 21 year old shortstop.

The old master and the kid have become great pals and there is no doubt that Honus will be able to teach the promising youngster many tricks. Two Vaughan homers against the Cubs this year, among other things, have indicated that Wagner's sponsorship of the youth has done no harm, at least. If Wagner or any one else can get Floyd to steady down a bit, the Pirates' greatest weakness will have been overcome and the team will become infinitely more important in pennant matters.

Wagner made but brief appearances out of the shelter of the dugout during Saturday's frigid show, but if it is warmer tomorrow he expects to do his full exhibition turn. In the California ball parks Honus had the advantage of public address systems. Announcers invariably introduced him, and the old boy never failed to get a great big hand.

Everything Is O. K.

Pat Malone continued on deck for his first National league start of the year in tomorrow's game. There was no indication that Gibson would switch from his pick of Waite Hoyt, especially since he probably wants to save Swift and French for the first two games of his opening series at home.

Though the Cubs have dropped two of their three games to date, there has been nothing to cause any great alarm. The starting pitching has been good enough to win many games, and the hitting, though streaky, has been considerable.

In the three games English, Jurges and Hartnett have batted .364; Manager Grimm has batted .308, which is one point higher than his last season's average; Bill Herman, by making all four of his hits in a row in one game lifted his mark from zero against the Cardinals to .286 for three games, and Babe Herman, with three doubles in a row in the second game for all his hitting, has a mark of 272. Stephenson is an even .300 and Demaree, with a single on opening day is batting .083.

MUD STOPS SOX, TIGERS; GASTON TO PITCH TODAY

Condition of Durham's Arm Still a Mystery.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 16.—Wet grounds today prevented the scheduled activities between the White Sox and Tigers. J. Louis Comiskey and Frank Navin, the respective owners, who hoped to have a crowd of 20,000 on hand for the first Sunday attraction of the season, waited until half an hour before starting time before announcing that the show was out of the question.

The Sox athletes, while regretting the loss of several thousand dollars by the man who signs their pay checks, didn't complain about their afternoon of leisure. They still were a bit groggy from watching the fast ball pitching of Lynwood Rowe, the 21 year old giant who made his big league début yesterday with a shutout victory. Besides, the postponement simplified the pitching problems for the next few days. It meant that Ed Durham, who suffered an arm injury opening day, can miss the Detroit series if necessary.

Curves Bring Back Pain.

Durham doesn't know whether his mishap is serious or just one of those things that frequently happen to pitchers in the spring. A large knot appeared above the elbow after he had worked seven innings against the Browns last Wednesday. He was relieved by Joe Heving. The swelling subsided in a few hours, but until yesterday Durham refrained from throwing. A slight soreness developed from this experiment, so it is possible that he will have to rest for another week.

Milt Gaston will be the starting pitcher tomorrow. Vic Sorrell will work for the Tigers. For the final on Tuesday the Sox choice may be Vic Frasier, thus keeping Ted Lyons for the opener with St. Louis at Chicago Wednesday.

Lyons, it will be recalled, had all sorts of difficulties in his first start last Thursday, but it wasn't because of arm trouble. He finally confessed why he wasn't able to pitch with his usual skill. Just before the game he suddenly became hungry. He ate a hot dog and piece of pie. The snack, followed by some strenuous work, caused his stomach to revolt.

Gregory, Frasier Cheer Manager.

Although Rowe's pitching made the Sox appear weak at bat yesterday, Manager Fonseca had no trouble consoling himself over the defeat. Paul Gregory showed enough pitching to satisfy him. If the tall Mississippian can pitch that way consistently he is bound to win a good share of his starts. Frasier, who worked one inning after relieving Gregory, also caught the manager's eye with his speed. It is because of this evidence that some of his 1931 form had returned that Frasier may be given a starting assignment Tuesday.

Sam Jones, who is getting along in years will, if conditions permit, be held in reserve until warm weather. If Durham's arm injury is serious enough to make him skip a couple of turns, Jones will have to go to work in the impending home stay regardless of the temperature.

Robert Carey Killed as Car Crashes Into Speedway Rail

Los Angeles, Cal., April 16.—(AP)—Campaigning to recapture the national automobile racing championship he first won in 1932, Robert Carey of Anderson, Ind., rode to his death at the Ascot speedway today.

He was killed in a practice run, his car ramming through a guard rail on a turn around the track in preparation for the 62½ mile feature event of the day's program. The machine hurtled thirty feet into the air. Track officials said the foot throttle jammed. Several changes had been made in the motor recently by the driver.

Carey, who had planned to participate May 30 in the annual 500 mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway, was a co-favorite with Babe Stapp of San Jose, Cal., in the Ascot feature.

Stapp Sets Record.

Stapp won the race, and in doing it set a new track record. He whizzed over the 62½ mile course in 45 minutes 37 seconds, bettering the old record by 4.80 seconds. Bill Cummings of Indianapolis was second, and Rex Mays of Los Angeles, third.

Stapp also won the Italian Helmet dash, a mile and a quarter event open to the two fastest qualifying cars, in 53.73 seconds.

PLANNED RACING CAMPAIGN

Indianapolis, Ind., April 16.—(AP)—Bob Carey, the Anderson, Ind., racer, died today just as he was about to start another campaign to win the American automobile driving championship he first won in 1932.

He was killed while practicing for the 62½ mile feature event at the Ascot speedway, the first event authorized by the American Automobile association as counting points toward the driving championship.

The Anderson daredevil, who held every dirt track record from one to one hundred miles, had planned to participate May 30 in the annual 500 mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway here, and a new four cylinder racer was being completed for him.

Last year, in his first appearance in the speedway classic, Carey finished in fourth position after leading at one stage of the race and surviving a series of mishaps.

Carey's fourth place gave him a number of driving championship points, and he went on to victories on other tracks to win the title.

Carey had been racing on California tracks this winter and had established a number of world's records over the mile dirt ovals.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

At what age does an athlete reach peak form, and how long does he hold it?

An athlete's peak development is attained in some sports earlier than in others. Body contact games, notably boxing and football, make severe demands on the participant's physical energy, and naturally he cannot hold his best form as long as a golfer or billiard player.

BOB FITZSIMMONS.

With one exception, all of our leading fighters were at the top of their game between the ages of 20 and 26. Bob Fitzsimmons, who wrested the world's heavyweight championship from Jim Corbett on March 17, 1897, then was 35. The following table will give you an idea of the age of a professional boxer in his prime and how long he may be expected to remain a champion:

	Won title.	Age.	Lost title.
Jack Dempsey	1919	24	1926
Jim Corbett	1892	26	1897
Bob Fitzsimmons	1897	35	1899
Mickey Walker	1926	25	1931
Benny Leonard	1917	21	1924
Abe Attell	1904	20	1912

Baseball players usually have their best seasons between the ages of 26 and 32.

Honus Wagner, the leading hitter in the National league from 1900 to 1911 had his best year in 1900, when he was 26. His average was .380. Eleven years later he still was the champion batter of the league, but his average had dropped off to .344.

Babe Ruth's best year was 1924, when he led the American league with a mark of .378. He was 30 at the time. Ty Cobb, who led the American league every year except one from 1907 to 1919, inclusive, was at his peak in 1911, when he was 25. His batting average was .420. Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, did not reach the top of his game until 1930, when he was 32. He hit at a .401 clip that season.

Track athletes mature earlier than either boxers or baseball players. Most records are broken by men of college age, 18 to 22. There have been a few exceptions, notably Paavo Nurmi, the great Finnish long distance runner, who ran the fastest mile on record when he was 26.

Charlie Paddock set a world record (at that time) for 100 meters when he was 21. He retained his speed about five years. Frank Wykoff of the University of Southern California, who holds the world's 100 yard dash mark, established it when he was 20. He lost his speed two years later. Ralph Metcalfe, one of the fastest present day sprinters, is 22.

William Tilden, the greatest tennis player the United States has developed, was 27 when he won his first national singles championship. For six years no player in the world was a match for him, but he began to slip in 1926, at the age of 33, when Rene Lacoste of France took the national title away from him. Tilden is still an active player at 40, but he no longer can stand the strain of a five set match. He may play as well as ever for a set or two, but soon tires.

There are practically no age limitations for golf. Bobby Jones was a great player at 14, when he advanced to the third round of the national amateur. Jim Barnes won the British open when he was 39. Jones won the national amateur when he was 21 and until his retirement from competitive golf at 28 was in a class by himself.

Tommy Armour, the new pro at Medinah Country club, won the United States open in 1927, at the age of 32. He took the British open when he was 36. Gene Sarazen was a famous golfer at 21, when he won the national open. He repeated the achievement last year, ten years later, and took the British open with it.

Walter Hagen, like Sarazen, first won the national open when he was 21. He has been touring the world ever since collecting one trophy after another. His last important conquest was the western open championship of 1932, when he was 40.

One of the greatest comebacks in sport was recorded by a golfer when Francis Ouimet won the national amateur title in 1931, at the age of 38. He had won the same crown seventeen years before and the national open at the age of 20.

Football players, if you are to believe partisans of the professional game, are at their peak the first three or four years after graduating from college, or from 22 to 26 years old. Back field men are forced to give up football sooner than line men because of the strain their positions place on the legs. Paddy Driscoll, who was a great player after he had passed 30, is one of the notable exceptions.

CARDINALS GET 2 HITS AS REDS WIN FIRST GAME

Lucas Halts Jinx Team; Derringer Pounded.

Cincinnati, O., April 16.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds today humbled their old jinx, the St. Louis Cardinals, and won their first game of the season, 7 to 0.

Red Lucas held the Cardinals to two hits, and only one man got as far as third. He was Sparky Adams, who reached first on Morrissey's fumble, went to second on a balk and took third on an infield out.

The Reds hammered Paul Derringer, every player except Lucas hitting safely. Two former Cards played a prominent part in the victory. Jim Bottomley scored two runs and drove in another, while Hafey also scored one and drove in another. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16.—(AP)—The Dodgers and the Giants struggled through 14 innings to a 1 to 1 tie today in the first interborough battle of the National league season. Darkness kept them from going on to a decision that was not in sight when the game was called.

Carl Hubbell and Joe Shaute, southpaws, pitched effectively through the first eleven innings, each yielding eight hits and one run. Luque and Bell, who followed Hubbell, and Van Mungo, Shaute's successor, did about as well. Hubbell fanned seven batsmen. Score:

PHILS, 2; BRAVES, 0.

Boston, Mass., April 16.—(AP)—The Boston baseball opening, postponed four times, today provided an opportunity for John Berly to hold the Braves to two hits as the Phillies won, 2 to 0.

Damp, chill weather held the crowd down to 7,500 and limited the ceremonies to simple exercises. Mayor James M. Curley threw out the first ball after Bill McKechnie and Burt Shotton, rival managers, hoisted the national emblem in right field.

Walter Betts held the Phillies to five hits, but they were bunched. Dick Bartell, second man to face Betts, singled and went to second on Shanty Hogan's passed ball. He scored on Chuck Klein's double to left. The Phillies made their second run in the fifth on John Warner's single, Delker's sacrifice and Berly's hit. Score:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FLORIDA.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., April 16.—Florida's winter season of 1932-'33 is nearing its end, extended later than for many years. Of course the peak passed about March 15, but this year more people than ever before have stayed late. That is what Florida wants. Elated by what has happened despite country-wide depression, already efforts are afoot to amend the parimutuel laws so that horse and dog racing, now restricted to close on March 31, may extend next year to April 15, and thus tempt visitors to remain longer.

Florida has entertained more visitors this year than at any time since the boom period of 1925-'27. They did not spend as much money as in the whoopee days, but the money spent was better distributed. Hotels and restaurants catering to other than plethoric purses had the best play. Prices, if you choose your spot, were reasonable, even exceedingly cheap.

While more prosperous days, perhaps, will change this condition somewhat, minds now directing Florida publicity and propaganda have adopted the wider appeal. They realize that playboys and playgirls will go to Palm Beach and Miami Beach and pay fancy prices and like it when they have the money. They wish, therefore, to impress all others they can get their money's worth and have a good time without necessarily spending it all in one day, as popular opinion once held.

The Wake thinks this attitude presages a new growth for this southern Florida section on a saner basis, with a constantly increasing number of winter visitors. In that respect the publicity of this winter may prove epoch making in Florida history.

Strangely enough, sports enterprises are given much of the credit for Florida's comparative prosperity in a lean year. Henry L. Doherty, former utilities magnate who took over the Miami-Biltmore properties at Coral Gables and other enterprises, announced an early season golf tourney with enough added money to attract the best pros.

He sponsored tennis, swimming, and other sports events, all early, and announced an all-the-year round policy. So early in the winter this section received Florida date lines on its sports events.

We do not know how many millions Mr. Doherty invested in his enterprises. We doubt whether his sport promotion alone cost $250,000, certainly not more than $500,000. Yet people here were so appreciative there was a state-wide "Doherty day" as a recognized holiday. In the old boom days a chap with less than a $20,000,000 development in the embryo could hardly get his name in the paper.

The other sportsman was Joseph E. Widener, sponsor of Hialeah race track. Mr. Widener and his associates kept on spending money beautifying the park and conducted as scheduled a meeting for which in advance nothing except financial disaster seemed in store. Admission prices were lowered and crowds swarmed to the track. Attendance doubled over a year ago. Even volume of wagering, despite the bank troubles, was more than 30 per cent greater. Thus sport ranks high in the estimation of those planning for Florida's future as a winter resort.

Among the sporting element there was bitter complaint because open gambling was not allowed in Dade county, in which are located Miami and Miami Beach. The new sheriff was adamant. People with money to spend should be allowed to spend it as they pleased, was the argument for the wheel, craps, chuck-a-luck, hazard, and faro. Business at the night clubs and shows suffered, it was argued.

Therefore we were somewhat surprised at the view of a hotel owner whose prices are not in the higher brackets, but still all his traffic will bear. He said: "Sheriff Hardie is right. That kind of money does not stay in Florida. It goes out with the men operating the games. If play were only by those of wealth, all right. But many people of the type to whom I cater also gamble and of course lose. That leaves less for them to spend with me, and they go home earlier. The medium priced hotels and restaurants benefit by a closed town so far as gambling is concerned. That does not hold true of horse and dog racing, because there must be some amusement."

That this chap is a keen operator may be judged from the fact that he took a practically bankrupt hotel property and in four years has won it out for his own ownership on the profits of a moderate priced clientele.

Smaller communities have been affected as favorably as the larger cities by the same practice of reasonable prices. The Wake looks ahead with keen interest to see whether sanity will still prevail when an increasing patronage makes higher prices possible.

FORMER STAGG AID DENIED NEW APPOINTMENT

Seeks Four Sport Position.

Pat Page will terminate his work with the University of Chicago athletic department at the close of the present school term. It was learned yesterday that his appointment, which expired April 1, has not been renewed and that Page is seeking a coaching post at some other school.

Since his return to the university in April, 1931, Page has been serving as varsity baseball coach and football line coach under a faculty appointment which ranks him as an assistant professor.

"I will continue to coach baseball this spring," Page said yesterday, "but I am on the market for a new job. I'd like to land a four sport assignment at a university or college where there is considerable constructive work to be done in athletics. I'm happiest when I'm working at football, baseball, basketball, and track, because I'm still young and have plenty of ambition."

Personnel Is Altered.

Thus Page, like Amos Alonzo Stagg, is a victim of the new movement at the university which has resulted in a revision of the athletic department's personnel. Clark Shaughnessey recently became head football coach in place of Stagg, who had served for 41 years.

For almost 31 years Page has figured in athletic events, first as a star in four sports and later as a coach.

Starting his career at Lewis institute in 1902, he drew recognition for his performances on the track and on the basketball floor. Later he became a student at the University of Chicago and came under the tutorship of Stagg. He developed into an outstanding athlete as a football, baseball and basketball player. He was a member of the championship Chicago football teams of 1907 and 1908 and championship baseball teams of 1908, 1909 and 1910.

Starts Coaching at Chicago.

After being graduated he entered the athletic department of the University of Chicago, becoming head baseball and basketball coach and assistant football and track coach. He continued in this capacity until 1920.

Then he took a position at Butler, where his basketball teams drew national recognition. Between 1920 and 1925 he turned out quintets which were rated among the best in the country. In 1925 he left Butler and became head football coach at Indiana university, where he remained until th end of the 1930 season.

Upon returning to Chicago the following spring, he received a one year appointment. This was renewed April 1, 1932, but when it expired this spring, Page received a notice from the board of trustees that it had not been extended.

BRADLEY PICKS TWO HORSES FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

Louisville, Ky., April 16.—(AP)—Announcement by Col. E. R. Bradley that he had chosen Boilermaker and Broker's Tip to carry his colors in the Kentucky Derby enabled turf followers to obtain a more definite line today on the prospects of western candidates for the $50,000 added stake at Churchill Downs May 6.

Col. Bradley, the only turfman to win three Derbys, said Boilermaker and Broker's Tip appeared to be the best prospects among his six eligibles, and barring mishap, they would be his entries this year. They probably will make their first starts of the year at Lexington Tuesday.

Charley O., winner of the Florida Derby for the R. M. Eastman estate, probably has the largest following among western nominees training at Churchill Downs, and is considered a certain starter. His workouts have been impressive, over both fast and slow tracks.

FANS DISPUTE UZCUDUN WIN OVER SCHONRATH

SEVILLE, Spain, April 16.—(AP)—Paulino Uzcudun gained a disputed decision over Hans Schonrath of Germany in a 10 round bout tonight. The verdict was protested by some of the 10,000 spectators, who seemed to think the Teuton heavyweight's aggressiveness entitled him to a draw.

Paulino seemed to be taking things easy all the way, apparently regarding the bout as a tune-up for his meeting with Pierre Charles of Belgium at Madrid June 5.

FLANAGAN SETS RECORD IN TWO SWIM EVENTS

Miami, Fla., April 16.—(AP)—Ralph Flanagan, 16 year old school boy, claimed two new world's swimming records today. With five persons clocking his free style strokes he flashed past the 400 yard mark in 4 minutes 22 seconds and then went over the 500 yard line in 5 minutes 31 seconds.

The record for 400 yard free style is 4:26, held by Arne Borg of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago. The 500 yard free style record, also held by Borg, is 5:31.2.

GEHRIG'S THIRD HOMER BEATS ATHLETICS, 5-4

Champs Win 4th in Row on Southpaw's Wildness

New York, April 16.—(AP)—Lou Gehrig's third home run of the season enabled the Yankees to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 4, today, for their fourth consecutive triumph.

Gehrig made his homer with Babe Ruth on base in the first inning. After that the Athletics held the upper hand except when Rube Walberg's wildness put them in trouble. The Yankees were outhit 8 to 7.

Don Brennan, leading pitcher of the International league last season, made his first start for the Yankees and performed impressively until the eighth inning, when he weakened. Wiley Moore relieved him and stopped the Athletics.

The Yanks combined their hits with walks off Walberg for runs and the Philadelphia southpaw let a run score on a wild pitch in the fifth inning.

INDIANS WIN 3D IN ROW.

St. Louis, Mo., April 16.—(AP)—Cleveland won its third straight game of the season today, defeating the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 1. It was the Browns' third consecutive defeat.

The victory may have been expensive for the Indians as Wes Ferrell injured his shoulder in striking out Burns in the seventh inning. C. Brown replaced him.

After an examination Dr. Robert F. Hyland, Browns' club surgeon, said Ferrell had torn loose adhesions which had formed in his right shoulder. Ferrell has experienced difficulty with the shoulder for several years and the injury may actually prove beneficial, Dr. Hyland explained.

Sam West, St. Louis center fielder, made his seventh and eighth consecutive hits, but ended his string when he flied out in his third time at bat. A crowd of 12,000 saw the game.

House Wrens Winging Their Way North

BY BOB BECKER.

Now that the purple martin has come up from the south many of the bird fans in Chicagoland will begin checking off the days until the tuneful little house wrens arrive to take up their residence for the summer. Next to the martins the wrens probably are the most popular summer birds [nesting around suburban homes] because they will take most any kind of a box or house and set up housekeeping, whereas purple martins are the despair of some eager bird fans who have been trying to land a colony for many years. We can look for house wrens the last few days of April or early in May depending on the weather.

Houses Spic 'n Span.

Prof. Edwin B. Frost, former head of the Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Lake Geneva, finds that the average arrival date of wrens around his home at Williams Bay is May 1. The earliest date that he has seen or heard them up there is April 30. The latest arrival date that he has recorded over a period of approximately 25 years is May 7.

Nature lovers who intend to put out wren houses this spring should have them spick and span and in position very soon. As least long enough ahead of the arrival of the birds to permit all fresh paint smells to be disseminated in case the nesting box has received a fresh coat. Old houses which have been occupied should be cleaned out, too. This question of painting nesting boxes early may be a big factor in luring birds.

Clean House if You Want 'Em.

Philetus W. Gates, after many years experience with purple martin colonies, is of the belief that birds do not like fresh paint and oil odors and will refuse to occupy a nesting box which hasn't had a chance to air out well. Mr. Gates, formerly a resident of Wilmette, had 44 martins in two houses.

Romeo Mura practicing their strokes in preparation for one of tomorrow night's games in the national indoor polo tournament, which is in progress at the 124th Field Artillery armory. Brooklyn Polo Team to Play Artillery Trio

The 124th Field Artillery Cardinals and the Brooklyn Riding and Driving club polo trios clash tomorrow night at the 124th artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, in the Class D semi-final of the national indoor polo championship tournament.

The Brooklyn team won the eastern title and the right to represent that section in the national tournament by downing the strongest D class teams of New York, New England, and New Jersey.

Cardinals Are Undefeated.

The 124th Field Artillery Cardinals have met and defeated all comers in the western eliminations. They are undefeated for the season.

For Brooklyn the same trio that captured the eastern title will compete tomorrow night. They are Frank Fox, R. N. Webster, and H. C. Parsons. The Cardinals will oppose them with Lieuts. Lou Levine, Romeo Mura, and Chris Schuh.

Open Contest Scheduled.

Another hot battle on tomorrow's double bill is certain when Maj. C. C. Smith's 6th corps area outfit battles the North Shore Riding club trio led by Herb Lorber, in the open class. Lorber yesterday announced Bill Nicholls, 6-goal star of the Boston Commonwealth club as his teammate, along with Jim Hannah. Maj. Smith will be supported by Capt. C. A. Wilkinson and Capt. C. E. Davis.

Both of these open class high goal contenders are evenly rated, carrying 15-goal team handicaps. The 6th corps are all 5-goal players. North Shore will have in Nicholls the only 6-goal polo[ist in the game, Lorber being rated at 5 and Hannah at 4.

Heavyweight Show Heads National Card.

New York, April 16.—(AP)—A new come back by Tommy Loughran and a battle of middleweight champions, Ben Jeby vs. Gorilla Jones, furnish the high spots of this week's national boxing schedule.

The other half of the double windup will pit Otto Von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight, against Hans Birkie, Oakland, Cal. Both are ten round bouts.

Jeby, recognized as middleweight champion by the New York state athletic commission, and Jones, accorded National Boxing association recognition as the American champion, will fight twelve rounds at Cleveland Wednesday night. Neither's crown will be at stake.

Maxey Rosenbloom and Freddie Miller, the two busiest champions in the game, again are booked for nontitle bouts, Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight titleholder, meets Martin Levandowski of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a ten round match at St. Louis Wednesday. LOUGHRAN DUE TODAY

Tommy Loughran is due this afternoon from Philadelphia to finish preparations for his 10 round bout with Izzy Gastanaga of New York at the Chicago Stadium Friday night. He has been drilling in Philadelphia against sluggers of the Gastanaga type in an effort to improve his chances of victory.

Loughran is much concerned over the result of Friday's match, for a loss would halt plans for an intensive outdoor campaign. Several offers received from Philadelphia and New York promoters depend upon his showing against Gastanaga.

Loughran is scheduled to take his first Chicago workout at Trafton's gymnasium immediately after his arrival.

King Levinsky is drilling at the same gymnasium for a 10 round contest with Charley Retzlaff at the Stadium on May 4. It is possible that Levinsky and Loughran will meet in an exhibition bout before the Philadelphian completes training Thursday.

SCHMELING AND DEMPSEY OPEN TOUR TONIGHT

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling left New York tonight for Pittsburgh, where they will open their exhibition tour tomorrow night.

In the party with the two former heavyweight champions were Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling; his trainer, and two sparring partners.

The program calls for Schmeling to do the fighting and Dempsey to referee. The troupe will move on to Boston Tuesday night, and then visit Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers, Portland, Bangor, and Reading.

It is Jacobs' plan to have Schmeling move into his new training quarters at Lake Swannanoa, N. J., on May 12. He has engaged the services of a half dozen sparring partners who are to report for duty that day.

WHEAT BUYING BASED ON HOPE OF 'NEW DEAL'

U.S. Plans, Low Crop Boost Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculative buying of grains and other commodities is increasing, due to currency inflation talk and efforts of the government to bring about more rapid revival of business and greater employment of labor. Back of this movement is the most unfavorable crop news of wheat in years.

A majority of the large speculators and cash interests is said to be friendly to the buying side with leaders taking advantage of every break in wheat to accumulate fair sized lines. At times some take profits on bulges to keep the market in a liquid form and fluctuations are wide, but the trend of prices is regarded as upwards.

There has been an advance of 17½ to 20 cents on wheat futures from the low point of the season, while corn is up over 10 cents a bushel, and oats more than 5 cents.

Advance for Week Shown.

The closing prices last week showed net gains on wheat of 4¼ to 5⅝ cents, corn was unchanged to ⅝ cents higher, oats were up ⅞ to 1 cent, rye was ⅝ to ⅞ cent higher, and barley was 1¼ to 1⅜ cents higher. The open interest in grain futures other than in May has enlarged.

Prospects for winter wheat are that the crop will be the smallest since 1904, the government estimate being 334,000,000 bushels. Based on indicated acreage in spring wheat, the United States crop may not be over 600,000,000 bushels, which, with a carry-over of 300,000,000 bushels, would make a total of 900,000,000 bushels, or more than ample for home requirements.

Spring wheat seeding in the American and Canadian northwest is about two weeks late, but this is not regarded as a serious factor, as the backwardness might be overcome by favorable weather until harvest time.

Canada Has More Wheat.

Canada has stocks of 313,000,000 bushels, or 66,000,000 bushels more than last year. Australia has passed the peak of its shipments and the movement from there has fallen off. Argentina is shipping fairly, and the prices of its wheat, as well as those of Canadian wheat, are materially lower than American prices.

Trade leaders, however, recognize that the present situation is peculiar. There has been a change for the better in financial and business conditions, and prices of everything are regarded as gradually working back to a better level, all depressing conditions having been discounted.

Cash wheat has led the upward movement in prices and there has been an urgent milling demand, although it was not so sharp at the close. It is estimated 2,000,000 bushels of wheat will be bought here, half of which has already arrived.

U. S. Holdings About Gone.

The open interest in May wheat has been greatly reduced. Farm board holdings are said to be nearly liquidated and its operations are given little attention by the trade. Closing prices were around the best of the week, with May wheat at 61¼ to 61⅝ cents, July 62⅝ to 62¾ cents, and September 64 to 64¼ cents. Kansas City was up 4⅝ to 6 cents on futures for the week, based on poor prospects for the southwestern crop and a good milling demand. Prices for the week follow:

	May.	July.	Sept.
Monday	57¼-58¼	58 -59¼	59 -60¼
Tuesday	59¼-60¼	60 -61¼	61 -62½

Corn Trade Broadens.

An erratic price movement in corn occurred, although the market sympathized with wheat to a considerable extent. There was an increased volume of business at times. Bulges were taken advantage of by a few large holders to secure profits, and at the close futures were unchanged to ⅜ cent higher for the week, with May at 32⅝ to 35½ cents; July, 34¾ cents, and September, 36¾ to 36⅝ cents.

The advance in prices brought larger offerings of corn from the interior in the closing days, suggesting an increased movement in spite of bad country roads, wet weather, and delayed spring plowing. Farm reserves are liberal, being 1,126,616,000 bushels against 907,469,000 bushels last year. Prices for the week follow:

	May.	July.	September.
Monday	32¼-32⅞	34⅜-35¼	36¼-36⅞
Tuesday	31⅝-33¼	34¼-35⅝	36½-37
Wednesday	30⅝-32¼	33¾-34⅝	35 -36¼
Thursday	30⅝-32½	33 -34⅞	35 -36⅝
Saturday	32⅝-33	34⅝-35⅞	36½-37¼
For week	30⅝-33¼	33 -35⅝	35 -37¼
Prev. week	30⅝-34½	32½-36⅜	34 -38½
Last year	32⅛-35⅝	36⅜-38½	38¾-40⅞
2 years ago	59⅞-62⅝	62¼-64	60¾-62⅝
Season	23½-40½	25 -36⅜	26⅝-38½
1931-'32	32⅞-33¼	36⅜-55	38¾-45½

Oat Planting Late.

Wet weather over a large part of the middle west and west, particularly in Illinois and Iowa, has prevented plowing and seeding of oats, which is one to two weeks late. Buying was general and with the advance in other grains, prices of oat futures closed ⅜ to 1 cent net higher for the week, May being 21⅛ cents, July, 21⅝ cents, and September, 21⅝ cents. Oat prices are up about 5 cents from the low point of the season.

Eastern interests continued to buy rye futures during the week, while northwestern cash interests were good sellers. The close was ⅜ cent lower to ⅞ cent higher, with May at 45 cents, July, 46 cents, and September, 46⅝ cents. Farm reserves are liberal and receipts fair.

Barley was bought more extensively by speculators and malsters and futures closed 1¼ to 1¾ cents higher, May being 31¼ cents, July, 34⅝ cents, and September, 35½ cents, the latter price being the highest for the season. It is said that malsters are well stocked, having enough to supply brewers for the next four months.

Peoples Gas 3 Month Net Is $940,838

Earnings of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company declined during the first quarter of 1933, according to a report issued yesterday by James Simpson, chairman of the board. Gross earnings for the quarter totaled $8,232,235 compared with $9,262,387 in the like period of 1932.

Net income for the 1933 quarter was $940,838 compared with $1,565,807 in 1932. Earnings per share on 674,476 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of the 1933 quarter were $1.39 compared with $2.26 on 691,687 shares outstanding in 1932.

Mr. Simpson in his report told the stockholders of the company that one of the most serious problems confronting the nation is that of securing a reduction of the tax burden.

Of Interest to All.

"It is a problem of common interest, affecting not only home owners and investors in industrial enterprises but also consumers of all commodities and users of public utility services," he said.

"As stockholders, you will be interested to know that it has been thought necessary to set aside about 30 per cent of the revenues of your company and its subsidiaries, after deducting ordinary operating expenses, to provide for payment of taxes. In other words it means that the property of your company is operated a little over two days of each week for the tax collecting bodies and a little less than five days for the investors in the company's bonds, notes and capital stock."

Mr. Simpson told of efforts to shift the burden of taxes from one group to another, adding:

"If the taxes of your company are unreasonably increased, such increase must inveitably be paid by the company's customers. Tax relief must come about by the elimination of the extravagant and unnecessary expenditures of government, not by a shifting of the present burden."

What Company Pays.

Mr. Simpson asserted that provision had to be made for 1932 for state and local taxes aggregating $3,063,699—an increase of 14.1 per cent over similar charges for 1931. He said taxes to be paid to city, county, state, and federal governments for 1932 are estimated to amount to $3,604,735—an amount equal to 12.48 per cent of total gross revenues received from general customers.

Mr. Simpson mentioned attacks which are being made on the company which for the most part, he said, are unwarranted and which may result in injury to the credit standing of the company. The company will oppose all unjustified action, he added.

Concluding, Mr. Simpson said:

"In the times through which we are passing it seems to me that it is the part of wisdom to preserve those of our institutions that are still solvent, and that no good purpose will be served by destroying the solvency of those which are yet sound."

DRIVE TO SELL CLEVELAND BANK STOCK CONTINUES

Cleveland, O., April 16.—[Special.]—The campaign to sell $5,000,000 worth of common stock in the projected First National bank, to take over the liquid assets of the Union and Guardian Trust companies, will enter its second week tomorrow with its leaders expecting a sharp increase in sales.

Most of this increase they expect to come from corporate depositors in the two old banks, who have naturally an interest in the formation of the First National as a means of liquidating part of their deposits. Corporations did not subscribe heavily last week, chiefly because of the delays attendant on explaining the stock to directors and getting their approval for subscriptions.

Meanwhile the executive committee of the Depositors' Protective association is preparing to announce tomorrow its plan for reorganizing the Union and Guardian companies rather than creating the new bank. While no details of this plan have been made public, it is reported that it will revolve around some method of separating frozen from liquid assets and attempting to proceed on the old lines in a restricted way.

Conservators in both the Union and Guardian are busy under the orders of the state banking department investigating reported withdrawals of deposits just prior to the bank restrictions by officers, directors and employés. They have been instructed to demand restoration of such funds and, if they do not get what they want, are empowered to sue.

FRENCH FOREIGN TRADE DECLINE REPORTED SMALL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, April 16.—French foreign trade suffered only a small total decline for the first three months of 1933, as compared with 1932, according to statistics.

The trade total on March 31 this year was 12,378,000,000 francs [about $491,400,000 at the current rate], or 271,000,000 [about $10,739,000] less than last year. Imports rose 6.2 per cent, however, and exports fell 14 per cent.

The total of imports from Jan. 1 to March 31 was 7,810,000,000 francs [about $310,000,000]. The figures indicate the increase in imports was due mainly to heavier purchases of raw materials.

Move to Reduce Cost of Atlantic Travel Seen

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York News.]

LONDON, April 16.—The Daily Mail says the Cunard line is moving to cheapen Atlantic travel and has notified members of the north Atlantic conference that it cannot longer adhere to the agreement regarding first class fares. Asserting that some ships are offering accommodation in cabin class approximating first class service at second class rates, the line suggests that a breakaway from the conference is likely, with a subsequent rate cutting war.

DEVALUATION OF MONEY PROVES ANCIENT SCHEME

Theory Debated in Old England.

BY REUBEN CAHN.

Devaluation—that is, reducing the gold content in the dollar—did not originate with its present day advocates. From the time of the ancients, debtors have favored it as a means of catching up with debts. When the heaviest debtors were kings those who would profit from devaluation had the power to bring it about and did so time and again, as the history of France and England abundantly shows.

An interesting controversy over devaluation is described by Macaulay in the "History of England." In the reign of William III. the coins in actual circulation were without exception clipped. The process of milling to make clipping impracticable had been perfected, but what was to be done about money already in circulation? How was it to be called in and who was to stand the loss for portions missing?

Problem of Debased Coins.

If the debased coins were taken in by the treasury as full value and good new milled ones were issued in their stead there would be considerable loss to the government. And the country, engaged in a war with France, was not looking for losses to absorb, even though the Bank of England had just been created from which the government could borrow large sums at what were then moderate rates of interest.

On the other hand, if the government should suddenly declare all mutilated coins not a legal tender but worth only their weight in metal, there would be a heavy loss to all who were left possessed of mutilated money. The holders of the money, though they might be wholly innocent of any mutilation themselves, would have to stand the loss which under the other scheme, would be taken by the government.

A third plan was devaluation, raising the mint price of money, as has just been proposed by the 300 eminent business men composing the organization known as the committee of the nation.

Macaulay Tells Controversy.

Now let Macaulay tell of the controversy:

"At the head of this party which was urging devaluation was William Lowndes, secretary of the treasury and member of parliament, a most respectful and industrious public servant, but much more versed in the details of his office than in the higher parts of political philosophy. He was not in the least aware that a piece of metal with the king's head on it was a commodity of which the price was governed by the same laws which govern the price of a piece of metal fashioned into a spoon or a buckle, and that it was no more in the power of parliament to make the kingdom richer by calling a crown a pound than to make the kingdom larger by calling a furlong a mile.

"He seriously believed that if the ounce were divided into seven shillings instead of five, foreign nations could sell us their wines and their silks for a smaller number of ounces. He had a considerable following, composed partly of dull men who really believed what he told them, and partly of shrewd men who were perfectly willing to be authorized by law to pay a hundred pounds with eighty.

Lowndes' Theories Refuted.

"Had his arguments prevailed the evils of a past confiscation would have been added to all the other evils which afflicted the nation; public credit still in its tender and sickly infancy would have been much risk of a general mutiny of the fleet and army. Happily Lowndes was completely refuted by John Locke, who recommended that the king should by proclamation fix a year and a day after which the hammered money should in all payments pass only by weight.

"The advantages of this plan were doubtless great and obvious. It was most simple and, at the same time, most efficient. What searching, fining, branding, hanging, burning had failed to do would be done in an instant. The clipping of the hammered pieces, the melting of the milled pieces, would cease. Great quantities of good coin would come forth from secret drawers and from behind the panels of wainscots. The mutilated silver would gradually flow into the mint and would come forth again in a form which would make mutilation impossible. In a short time the whole currency of the realm would be in a sound state and, during the progress of this great change, there would never at any moment be any scarcity of money."

Locke's Plan Adopted.

Locke's plan in the main was adopted. Devaluation was defeated. A portion of the loss was absorbed by the government. The wealthy classes had been able to pass their coins along to the government in the form of taxes and subscriptions to government loans in time to avoid losses.

But the result was not an entirely happy one. The working people who had been left holding their small bags of mutilated coins paid much of the cost of establishing a sound coinage. In the midst of a war there were riots against the deal all over England. A further result was a collapse in the markets and a renewed deflation of prices.

Milwaukee Road Deficit 23¼ Million

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad fell 23¼ million dollars short of earning interest charges on its funded debt last year. The system had a deficit of $288,000 even before interest charges, this amount representing the excess of rental on its lease over net income. Net railway and nonoperating income slumped from $10,419,000 in 1931 to $1,001,000 last year.

These facts are set forth in the pamphlet report mailed to stockholders yesterday. At the close of the year the funded debt of the road amounted to slightly more than 482 millions, compared with 479 millions at the end of 1931. The increase was accounted for by the $7,963,000 loan obtained from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which was only partially offset by retirements.

Deficit Is Larger.

Interest charges on the fixed interest bearing obligations last year were $13,883,000. Interest on the convertible adjustment bonds made an additional $9,144,000 in interest charges, bringing the final deficit to $23,270,000. This deficit was $9,447,000 larger than the 1931 loss.

President H. A. Scandrett says in the report that one of the chief obstacles to reducing expenses was the staggering state and local taxes which the road was forced to pay.

"In 1913," he said, "The company received in railway operating revenues 17.5 cents for each dollar of investment in road and equipment and paid for each such dollar invested 72 cents in taxes, other than federal, a ratio of 24 to 1.

Shows Increase in Taxes.

"In 1932 revenue was 11.25 cents and taxes 1.05 cent, a ratio of 11 to 1. This indicates the burden placed on industry by the cost of government. These taxes were 4.1 per cent of the total revenue in 1913 and 9.3 per cent of the total revenue for 1932."

The Milwaukee railroad reported revenue carloadings totaling 40,133 cars from April 1 to 14, against 34,415 cars in the first two weeks of March and 42,962 cars in the same 12 business days of 1932.

EASTERN HOME OWNERS DEMAND MORTGAGE CUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 16.—A situation described as a "mortgage strike," as a means to bring to the attention of mortgage holders the necessity for reduction in monthly payments in conformity with largely reduced incomes, has developed at Sunnyside Gardens, a home owning community in Long Island City, Queens, consisting of 563 one, two, and three family houses.

"Sink or swim we will stick together," was the declaration at a homeowners' massmeeting.

It was decided that while no concerted action was planned each individual homeowner in the community feels convinced that the situation has now become general and that the community as a whole should be given reduced payment terms in accordance with the general depreciation in real estate values.

The trucks, of four tons' capacity each, will be used for new city routes. The tractors will haul beer to distributing points. Delivery is to start Wednesday at the rate of one each day.

EASTER GIVES CITY BEST TRADE SINCE CHRISTMAS SEASON

A good rise in wholesale and retail turnover which reached the peak of the Easter season, greater activity in the steel industry, with the largest gains taking place in the local area, and a steady trend upward in electric power output, characterized the last week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Stimulated by the last minute demands of Easter buyers, the local department stores reported purchases equalling those of the Christmas holiday season, both in volume and in dollar value. Crowds in the stores were better than expected, and the turnover of goods was particularly heavy in women's apparel lines and children's wear. Wholesalers were busy, with the usual seasonal rush in filling orders for distributors. Trade expansion was more marked at wholesale than at retail.

In the Chicago district electric power output for the last week showed an accelerating improvement over that in recent weeks in comparison with the production in corresponding periods last year.

INFLATION TALK IS CHIEF TOPIC IN WALL STREET

Trade Sees Business as on Mend.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 16.—Inflationary psychology has become the definitely dominating influence of Wall street speculative thought. Although commentators have maintained that nothing of a downright inflationary character has yet been done by the new administration, with the one possible exception of the liberalization of currency privileges under the emergency banking act, but that most of the policies inaugurated so far have been on the other hand decidedly deflationary, the belief grows that the thing is working under the surface and that eventually it will all "come out in the wash."

The various measures introduced in congress to bring about an "expansion" of the dollar's value by one means or another; the week's rise in

RECORDS SHOW HIGH COST OF RECEIVERSHIP

Irving Schreiber Report Discloses Loss.

BY AL CHASE.

For the ten months before Ald. Irving J. Schreiber was made receiver of the Fairfax apartment hotel by Judge Genzel, that property's operating profits had averaged in excess of $5,000 per month after ground rent and before taxes, the records show. During the period of Schreiber's receivership [a few days over one year] an average deficit of approximately $500 is shown in the court records. Since Schreiber's discharge, the original manager, Paul A. C. Anderson, has been in charge and has shown an operating profit after ground rent of approximately $2,000 per month.

The records show that Schreiber, as receiver, on Oct. 19, 1931, took over assets from the former owners amounting to approximately $3,200, consisting of current accounts receivable, inventories, unexpired insurance, etc.

Deficit of $10,900.

At the discharge of Schreiber as receiver on Nov. 1, 1932, he turned over to the successor representative for the bondholders, net liabilities after credit for accounts receivable, inventories, prepaid ground rent, etc., of approximately $10,700.

For the period of twelve months and ten days, on the basis of these figures, the operating of this property by a receiver afforded a net deficit of $5,900 before tax payments and $13,900 after the tax payment of $8,000.

These figures are arrived at as follows:

Net assets taken over by receiver on Oct. 19, 1931	$ 3,200
Net liabilities left by receiver on discharge, Nov. 1, 1932	10,700
Total deficit for period	$13,900
Paid on property taxes	8,000
Operating deficit before tax payment	$ 5,900

"We've increased occupancy from 66 per cent to 75 per cent since Nov. 15, when we took possession," said Mr. Anderson yesterday. "We've also paid $7,000 on 1931 taxes and reduced the receiver's accounts payable from $13,900 to $3,000."

Profitable Before and After.

It was learned that the dining room of the Fairfax hotel lost money every month Ald. Schreiber was receiver. It made money prior to Schreiber taking charge, and records show that it has been in the black every month since the receiver was discharged.

Occupancy slid steadily downwards during the Schreiber receivership, according to the records. When he took charge it was 90 per cent. In February, 1932, it had dropped to 84.69 per cent; in March to 83.67 per cent; in June to 82.7 per cent; in August to 78.2 per cent, and later to 66 per cent.

The costs of redecorating and reupholstering [and Schreiber was reported to have been lavish with both] were excessive, according to the bondholders' protective committee.

Wollenberger Bond Issue.

The Fairfax is a ten story building at the southwest corner of Hyde Park boulevard and Dorchester avenue, with 135 furnished apartments of one, two and three rooms. It was financed with a $675,000 Wollenberger & Co. leasehold bond issue, at 6½ per cent, dated Nov. 1, 1925. Charles L. Anderson is president of the borrowing corporation.

Newton C. Farr, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee. The other members are Harry F. Brussing, William H. Colvin, Theodore L. Grote, and John J. Duffin. Harold C. Bull is secretary.

ATL. REFINING FIRST QUARTER LOSS $3,127,000

Philadelphia, Pa., April 16.—(AP)—The Atlantic Refining company and subsidiary concerns today reported a loss of $3,127,000 for the first quarter of 1933, after deducting an inventory adjustment of $1,879,000.

This compares with a profit of $435,000 for the corresponding quarter of last year, during which $555,000 was deducted as an inventory adjustment. Both figures are after allowances for depreciation and other charges.

The loss per share of common stock for the first quarter of 1933 was $1.16, compared with a profit of 16 cents for the first three months of 1932.

STEEL PLANTS JUMP OUTPUT; DEMAND RISES

Motor and Rail Orders Expand Sharply.

The spread in consumer interest from pig iron and scrap to finished steel products resulted in an increase of 3 points to 20½ per cent in the steel operating rate last week, "with indication of a further gain of a point or two this week," according to the magazine Steel.

This restoration of the early February rate is supported largely by automotive and general miscellaneous requirements.

"Automobile production has come back so rapidly that April output now appears certain to top January and exceed every month since last June," the magazine says.

Predicts Better Rail Buying.

"The Erie railroad's order for 24,549 tons of rails, its inquiry for more than 4,000 tons of track fastenings; the Missouri Pacific's inquiry for 7,000 tons of tie plates, and the New York Central's authorization of 9,000 tons of rails are believed forerunners of slightly improved railroad buying," says the magazine. "There is an undercurrent of opinion in the east that President Roosevelt's railroad program will involve the scrapping of much equipment and its replacement, partly to provide work."

The first pipe line order of consequence is for 4,000 tons for the Pure Oil company's Toledo-Detroit line, booked by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and the National Tube company.

The volume of structural shape orders is reduced to 5,215 tons. This includes 1,055 tons for breweries at Buffalo and Milwaukee.

Wave of Scrap Buying.

"A surge of buying continues in scrap, both for domestic consumption and export," says Steel. "One eastern scrap interest alone is loading 8 cargoes for shipment abroad. Stocks are being accumulated at Chicago in anticipation of a heavy vessel movement this season. Prices again have advanced at Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia."

Pig iron deliveries so far this month by lake furnaces exceed their entire volume for March.

"A tendency on the part of steel consumers to anticipate requirements, in some instances to acquire stocks, is responsible to no small degree for increases in ingot production in virtually all districts," says the magazine. "Chicago is up 5 points to 20 per cent; Buffalo up to 5 to 19 per cent; Pittsburgh ahead 4 points to 18; and Youngstown advanced 2 points to 19 per cent."

Steel's iron and steel composite continues $28.14, the finished steel composite, $44.90; while that for scrap is up 16 cents to $6.87, compared with $6.21 Jan. 1.

BRITISH STEEL GAINS.

LONDON, April 16.—Increasing activity in the British steel industry is indicated by production in March at 577,700 tons. This compares with 482,700 in February and 462,800 in March, 1932, and is the highest monthly output since September, 1930, when the figure was 580,000. Iron production in March was 332,200 tons, against 270,800 in February and was the highest since March, 1932, when the output was 355,600. Furnaces working at the end of March numbered seventy an increase of seven for the month and only two less than a year ago.

140 PRODUCERS OF COAL COMBINE IN SALES DRIVE

Hope to Put Industry on a Profitable Basis.

Cincinnati, O., April 16.—(AP)—A new hand takes hold in the bituminous coal industry of four states tomorrow to help pull it from an economic morass.

Appalachian Coals, Inc., a mammoth sales agency of 140 producers of high volatile coal, will launch upon an unusual economic venture in an attempt to stabilize production and put more miners to work in Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia, and Tennessee.

With a potential output of 80,000,000 tons a year and an investment of some $350,000,000, the producers hope to eliminate a costly scramble for markets, stabilize labor conditions and revivify demand for bituminous coal. For the consumers they said they hope to bring better coal and cheaper heating.

Where there were 140 producers fighting for markets, one giant organization now will provide sales outlets.

Hope for Uniform Prices.

Where there was uncontrolled production, where prices and mine operations fluctuated widely, leaders of Appalachian Coals, their plan of organization says, now hope to balance production with demand, and establish uniform prices for definitely fixed grades.

"Hundreds of mines in our region have closed through failures and bankruptcy; others have gone out of business to prevent bankruptcy," said the company's plan of organization. "A large amount of useful and valuable coal has been lost and destroyed beyond the point of recovery."

Until now, it said, many agencies and producers sold coal blindly, without adequate information as to the cost of production and distribution, the needs of consumers, and the competition to be met. Hence, it added, "intelligent competition, both between the producers in this region [Appalachian], and the producers in competitive districts" was broken down.

Goal for First Year.

The company hopes to market approximately 40,000,000 tons of coal the first year, R. E. Howe, executive officer, said today. It plans to absorb, so far as feasible, the present wholesale outlets of the producers.

Appalachian Coals, however, was not born without a struggle. Although the United States coal commission, after an exhaustive survey, said the coal industry could right its ills "not through governmental coercion," but only through "enlightened self-interest of producers and consumers," the courts blocked first steps of the producers to operate their pool.

Organized here in December, 1931, the sales agency shortly afterward was named defendant by the government in a suit charging its operation would violate the anti-trust laws. Not until a month ago did the United States Supreme court rule that the agency could operate.

NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE WEEK GETS HORNER O. K.

National life insurance week, sponsored by life insurance firms throughout the United States, will be observed from April 17 to 22, it was made known yesterday.

Gov. Horner announced his indorsement of the movement. During the time he sat in the Probate court, he said, almost daily the value of life insurance was made manifest to him.

During the week, explained Dr. Roy L. Davis, chairman of the Chicago committee of the drive, there will be speeches over national radio networks, discussing the attitude of business firms to proposed legislation and the effect of the moratorium on life insurance.

WESTERN STATES TO SPEND $800,000 ON ADVERTISING

San Francisco, Cal., April 16.—The Bank of America estimates that nearly $800,000 will be spent this year for national advertising, a substantial portion of it for newspaper space, by "enterprising communities in the eleven far western states alert to the possibilities of post-depression business."

Oppose Plan to Reorganize International Combustion

New York, April 16.—The committee representing preferred stockholders of the International Combustion Engineering company has announced its opposition to the proposed plan of reorganization. The committee contends that the plan is against the equity position of the preferred stockholders, that its consummation is doubtful because of the threat of legal entanglements, and that it conflicts with current negotiations for the sale of the company's foreign properties.

Hopeful Interest May Be Resumed.

Hope was expressed yesterday for resumption of interest payments on the $4,200,000 of first mortgage bonds of the Medinah Athletic club, 505 North Michigan avenue, by the end of this year.

Saul B. Optner, receiver of the club, and Robert J. Virtue, president of the new Medinah Michigan Avenue club, recently organized to occupy the forty-four story clubhouse, announced that at the present rate of earnings the organization will be able to meet the unpaid balance of $241,000 on 1930 and 1931 taxes and still leave a substantial surplus to be applied to bond interest before the year end.

The bonds, which were underwritten by the Continental Illinois corporation, are largely held by members of the Masonic fraternity in smaller towns of the middle west. Below these bonds a $750,000 second mortgage, held by the Seneca Securities corporation, of which U. J. [Sport] Herrmann, prominent Mason, is the principal owner.

Increase Membership.

Organization of the new Medinah club, plans for which were approved last Tuesday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, has been successful, according to Mr. Virtue. During the six weeks' organizing period, he said, the membership has jumped from 911 to 1,114, notwithstanding the defection of a group of formerly prominent members, who expressed dissatisfaction over the receivership and were barred from admittance by Judge Woodward's order when they refused to pay the dues the receiver established.

The club is now 78 per cent occupied and is booked for 100 per cent occupancy during the Century of Progress exposition, Mr. Virtue stated. Among the conventions scheduled is that of the 40 and 8, inner circle of the American Legion, to be held in conjunction with the Legion's national convention. A program of sports and social affairs is now being planned to carry the club through the lull expected to follow the Century of Progress.

Scope of Efforts.

"The successful reorganization of our club has been made possible because the club has been considered a great business organization as well as a social institution," Mr. Virtue said. "It is impossible to regard a forty-two story property with more than 400 employés in any other light. In its operation, a distinct line has been drawn between business operations, as carried on by Mr. Optner, and the social and fraternal interests, fostered by the club itself. It is my feeling that all large clubs must adopt this principle if they are to function successfully."

Minority members of the old Medinah Athletic club, now incorporated as the Medinah Athletic association, are negotiating with the receiver of the Lake Shore Athletic club, 850 Lake Shore drive, for quarters there. The association is headed by Will J. Bell, president; John R. Fugard, vice president, and William E. Rodriguez, director and counsel. Approval of the negotiations will rest with Superior Judge William J. Lindsay, in whose court the Lake Shore Athletic club is in receivership.

American Steel Foundries.

I am the owner of 100 shares of American Steel Foundries stock purchased as an investment three years ago. Will you please give me some information on it?—S. R. W.

American Steel Foundries is one of the leading manufacturers of parts and castings for railway cars and locomotives. It also manufactures castings for other heavy duty products such as bridges, rolling mills, etc.

Drastic reductions in purchases by railroads have had their effect on the company's earnings. President Scott said that at no time in the history of the company had the rate of operations been as low as in 1932.

Freight cars ordered by railroads in 1932 numbered 1,968, against 10,880 during 1931 and an annual average of 88,233 for the ten years through 1930. During 1932 shipments by American Steel Foundries totaled 158,447 tons, against 243,894 tons for 1931.

The result for 1932 was a loss of $1,526,000, almost double the 1931 loss of $791,000. Operations in 1931 resulted in the first loss for more than fifteen years. Net income in 1930 was $2,801,000, or $2.37 per common share. Net for 1929 was $5,121,000, against $3,256,000 for 1928.

Although no statement of unfilled orders is available, President Scott on Feb. 23, 1933, said they were "very low."

On Dec. 31, 1932, current assets were $11,886,000 and current liabilities were $1,257,000. Cash assets alone amounted to more than $5,500,000. Working capital totaled $10,629,000, against $11,729,000 the year before.

Excluding treasury stock there are outstanding 57,557 shares of $100 par 7 per cent cumulative preferred and 976,414 shares of no par common. There is no funded debt.

With the March 31, 1933, payment preferred dividends were reduced to 50 cents a quarter, against the stipulated $1.75 rate. Nothing has been paid on the common since Sept. 30, 1931.

In the annual report to stockholders covering 1932 operations the president said:

"The railroads are the company's principal customers and their purchases at present are very light. Much replacement of obsolete equipment and much repair and maintenance work has been deferred, and it is expected that upon any reasonable improvement in general business conditions substantial orders for material furnished by your company should be released."

General Baking 5½s.

I would appreciate your opinion concerning an investment in General Baking 5½s, due 1940.—M. T. A.

PRICES FIRMER IN ALL METALS; DEMAND TAPERS

Copper Actively Bought by Foreign Interests.

New York, April 16.—Advances were reported in practically all metal markets this week, although demand became less active at the higher levels.

Copper was fairly active. Buying came chiefly from foreign and speculative sources, while domestic consumers were reserved in their purchases, apparently awaiting definite announcements of production curtailment or shutdowns of mines. However, the market was without official confirmation of such reports. While some producers were holding electrolytic ¼ cent higher at 5⅛ cents, smelters were offering at 5⅜ cents.

Tin Prices Recover.

Tin prices rallied to the previous high levels for the year, which had been established during the banking holidays. A large business was reported at the advance, with consumers covering both nearby and second quarter requirements. Sentiment was aided by reports of increasing activity in the tin plate and automobile industries. However, quieter conditions prevailed later in the week.

Firmness of other metals attracted buying of lead and following a period of active demand, producers raised asking prices. The buying extended into May shipment positions but demand tapered off after consumers, representing most branches of the industries, had filled requirements.

Zinc Holds Steady.

Zinc held steady with sellers reserved after booking large orders from leading consumers in the previous week. The improved statistical outlook, following inauguration of mine curtailment schedules, was reflected by firmness of the ore market.

Despite the better tone to other metals, antimony remained nominal in continued absence of buying interest.

New York Dealers in Tea Report Improving Demand

Dealers report a more active demand in the New York tea market at currently quoted prices. In a recent London sale, Java leaf grades were irregular, while others were firm.

A FEW GOOD MEN!

Which position would YOU choose if you could—a tideover or a permanent opportunity? We don't propose trying to give any man character or determination, but we can help him get the most out of these qualities. Past experience means so little—willingness to learn and work means so much in this business. No seasons, no layoffs, nothing to invest, deposit or buy. Absolute certainty of your money! Meet men who have come into this work the way you would.

Lester Larsen joined us last fall. He had been a building contractor. Getting started with us was not easy. But he kept at it and learned this new business. He is making good money today. The other evening after 6 o'clock he made $47 and often has $20 to $25 days. J. A. Jones, a young man who joined us recently made $45 in one evening last week. M. G. Neal didn't know how well he would succeed in this wholly different business, but last week he made $70. So did Floyd Wilson, Y. J. Cerny has made $143 and as high as $227 in a single day.

Syd Travis' week's earnings were $142. Others who may be mentioned as having good current earnings include Walter Bartel, H. H. Powell, E. J. McGreevy, A. Kallal Jr., Pat Corrigan, W. Mondale, C. D. Johnson, D. Brodus of Iowa, Bert Whitwell, and many others. Averages from $4,000 to $7,500 a year are ordinary. At the start you may earn but $110 to $165 the first month. Your income will grow by learning what we teach you.

This sound company does business worldwide. There's no snap in Electrolux, Inc. Their refrigeration line is here with a lot of real money for the earnest worker. Are you interested in calling for an interview to tell us why you believe you can meet the requirements? Any family obligations preferred. Then call Monday, April 17, between 9 a. m. and 1 noon, Room 329, at 9 S. Kedzie-av.

SOLUTION TO BALLISTICIAN MULVANEY'S REPORT

Mulvaney, finding pieces of tobacco in the barrel after being assured nothing in the office had been disturbed, knew that Wesser had not fired at Ryan. Had he done so there could not possibly have been any tobacco in the barrel—a fired bullet would have cleaned the barrel of everything but traces of its own passage. Ryan was convicted of murder.
